Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Late Last Thurski

by Larry "Ski" Smulczenski

Â Well, Christmas is over and Santa treated us all very well. By the time you read this I will be motoring back to Florida and hopefully I will be able to answer all the emails that have piled up while I had my computer problem and since I've been away for the holidays. Bare with me, I will answer those queries that some of you have sent and I have not got around to.

Â Â I was able to sneak away from the kids and grandkids one day last week and traveled down to San Antonio to Lone Star Coins to see some of my old collecting buddies. Ric Medina Sr. and Ric Jr. were doing a booming Christmas gift trade in the shop. There was a steady stream of folks coming in to purchase gifts such as state quarters and quarter boards to gold coins. Old Friends Robin Ellis and Dr. Claudio Cepeda were also there and we had a great time catching up on common collecting interests and rehashing old times. Ric Sr. was eager to show us some of his recent acquisitions. He had called me about a Mexican circulating check that he had picked up and I was very interested in seeing that.

Â Â Most of us have heard about and seen the emergency circulating checks of Italy, but I for one had never seen one from Mexico other than those pictured in World War II Remembered. These were issued in 1943, because of a coinage shortage probably caused by wartime hoarding. Remembered states that Neil Shafer and others did the research to produce the listing shown on pages 332-333 of the book. A great majority of the checks are denominated in a value of 50 centavos. If any of you have one or more of these in your collection, let us hear about them.

Â Â Ric also had some new POW chits that he recently picked up.Â His collection now comprises almost 225 of these interesting little items. That's a significant number as you just don't find many of them on the bourse floors. I have about a hundred more in my collection, but still was able to find a dozen that Ric had that I did not.Â No new locations, but some values and serial number suffix letters that I don't have. This was valuable data from the research point of view.

Â Â I was able to add four encased postage stamp small change tokens from Denmark to my collection from Ric's duplicates. These are coin substitutes, just like the Mexican circulating checks, but in this case feature a postage stamp on the face and an advertisement from a merchant on the back. You can see these on page 78-80 of Remembered.Â They are neat little items where a lot of room for research still remains.Â Â Â So all in all, Christmas and my visit to Austin and San Antonio were great, but I look forward to getting home to familiar surroundings. I'm currently in the second typing of this column, because I hit the wrong button on daughters computer and lost the first iteration. Hope you all have a Happy New Year and we'll see you next Thurski in 2002.

In the travels around the western states Ski's last column for 2001 got lost in the ether. Sorry about that! In order to try to make amends to everyone, we are running his column in the prime position of the year.

Â This gives everyone another opportunity to send in New Year's predictions! Send them in!

Dear Gram,
Â The EURO is here. Some say this introduction of a common currency on 1 January 2002 is the most significant numismatic event in modern times !
A good Web Site to get the facts and to view the coins and notes is:

www.euro.gov.uk

There are seven notes of common design in denominations of 5,10,20,50,100,200 & 500 EUROS.
Â The eight coin denominations have a common "EURO" side and each of the twelve countries have their own designs on the other side. That means 96 different coins for a set!
Â There is confusion as to which side of these coins is the obverse and which is the reverse. The current exchange rate is 1Dollar US = .97EURO.

Â Â Annual Prediction Gram

Â We received a few predictions for 2002.

Brad Peacock indicates lots of confidence with a prediction that the new MPC book will be released in 2002.

Mrav Mericle had a short list of predictions:

1. Calendar of Events will return to the GRAM 2. Someone will place a list in the "WANTED" section of the GRAM 3. General events will return 4. Ed Beaman and Warner Talso will have an email address listed in the Staff Section. 5. FEST III Will be a big hit. 6. More -- MPC information will be found!!!!

David Seelye gave us a short list of predictions:

1) MPC FEST III 40 attendees
2) 4th edition of the Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates will be issued, and then converted to the new and improved 5th edition In the Fall of 2002.

3) A special "MPC" issue of "The Bank Note Reporter"

4) A new "Major Discovery" will surface

Dear Editor,

Â Help!!! Just got home and find I am missing MPCGram 519 and 524. Please help.

Marv' Mericle

Dear Marv,

Â Wow, some are complaining about getting too many Grams and you are not getting enough! Seriously, I think that there may have been a problem with 519 and possibly even 524. If we can figure this out, we can send the Grams again.

Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Editorial

I thought that I was in a time warp. I had either been transported back to the 1950s and my youth, or back to that other time warp in Maryville, NY. Why do MPC collectors live in places like Maryville, NY, Port Clinton, OH and Duncan, OK?

Â A sidetrip to visit Doug Bell in Duncan, OK was not too far out of the way over the holidays so when Judy was sleeping, I moved off the interstate and headed that way. The first thing that we saw upon arrival was a drive in restaurant. We could not resist,. yes, we were served by a car hop.

Â While I was enjoying the experience, and even the food, Doug arrived. It only took him a few minutes to get to the Sonic drive in so I was a little surprised when he knocked on my car window. Due to the surprise, I missed a great opportunity to challenge him with my MPC challenge coin [sic].

Â I made up for the missed opportunity by challenging him the instant that we got out of the car at his house. Actually, Judy and I BOTH challenged him. Busted. He was busted. The only way to keep from losing such challenges is to always carry your challenge coin!

Â We had a great, if short visit. Among all of his wonderful notes and other things, Doug was most excited to show me his new, custom, stainless steel MPC box. Doug had this box built to hold his MPC collection. You might think that this would not be a big deal. Well, you must remember that we are talking about the Bell collection here. He is the one trying to get a complete position number collection. His collection consists of thousands of notes and will have thousands more when it is finished! It is a neat box I must admit. He plans to show it off at the Fest. Speaking of the Fest, it seems that Doug will be leading a serious delegation to Ohio. Three collectors from Oklahoma have reserved space at the Fest. No other state has more. Indiana also has three, but on a per capita basis Oklahoma wins hands down. California, New York,, Illinois, Pennsylvania and a few of the other "big" states should be embarrassed!

Â Â Â Â Â Â Mail Call

Just a comment further to David Klinger's letter on Euro coins.

96 coins would not include those minted by Monaco, San Marino and The Vatican. These would have to be added for a BASIC type set. The finnish 1 & 2 cent coins are currently only in the starter set and then, of course, you would have to include all of the pre 2002 dates and various mint marks making it closer to 300 pieces for a complete set through 2002.

Don

Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Skipredictions

By Larry â€œSkiâ€ Smulczenski

Â During a telephone conversation with our editor yesterday, I was reprimanded for not submitting my numismatic forecasts for the coming year to the Gram. I guess he feels that since I am the senior columnist for the Gram, I should be able to fearlessly prognosticate what the future has in store for the hobby. So in the best traditions of Jean Dixon, Carnac the Magnificent, and Miss Cleo, I decided to give it a try. I went into the bedroom and knelt down to look under the bed to see if I could find my thinking hat and crystal ball. You'll notice that those of us that live in Florida store things like that under the bed. I believe Carnac kept his in the crawlspace under the back porch. In Florida, you can't have that space under the porch because it would quickly be inhabited and become a breeding ground for Palmetto bugs. Anyway, I found my thinking hat, which really was a St. Louis Cardinals Baseball cap, the same one I used to predict that Mark McGwire would hit 72 home runs last year, (well, I only missed the number by one) but I couldn't find the crystal ball. Prudy probably threw it out when she was housecleaning and I was away at one of the papermoney shows. I did spot Prudy's old bowling ball under there which she doesn't use anymore since golf takes up nearly all of her time. The ball was a little hazy, but I figured it would work in the pinch. So here we go with Professor Thurski's predictions for radar year 2002. Â 1. Lets start off with a fairly safe one. I predict that a new major collection will come on the market this year. Now, I'm not copping out and considering the fabulous Leo May replacement collection that is being auctioned by Lyn Knight at CPMX in late February, early March. I'm talking about a collection that no one expected to be sold at this time. I feel this fairly certain based on the history of the many collections that have been sold over the years. Fred Schwan can spend all night telling you stories about the fantastic collections of Elmer Smith, Jerry Voigt and Alex Kesselman that were sold. So you can bet on this one, it's in the bag. Â 2. Another one that I feel pretty confident about is that there will be a major new discovery made in military currency this year. By that I mean something like a previously unknown MPC replacement note or a brand new Specimen Book. Nearly all the unknown replacements have been found but a few are still unknown. It seems that we get a major find at least once each year, so I'm comfortable with this one. Â 3. I also feel certain in predicting that a major military fiscal collectable will come out of the war in Afghanistan. We all know that there are propaganda leaflets being dropped all over the country. There should at least be one of them that is a safe conduct pass with the image of a banknote on one side. There could also be "Wanted" leaflet for Osama with a bounty on his neck. Or possibly could we see the reoccurrence of a money substitute such as a chit or token? As the press virtually litters the landscape with U.S. dollars, and more and more of them get into the black market and opium market, there is a good chance that we may see a money substitute. Â 4. Our government issued a Patriot Bond by overprinting an already issued Series EE bond. I predict that someone in the Treasury Department will wake up and redesign these bonds to encourage our population to invest in them. Something with patriotic vignettes--Statue of Liberty, Liberty Bell, Minutemen etc. I've noticed a surge of interest in bonds. Because of this interest, look for some major discoveries in the coming year. Â 5. I feel we have not heard the end of the 691/701 discoveries. Look for the troika to come up with another major item, possibly a set of specimens or progressive proofs. Â 6. The Gram is now almost two years old, and the number of subscribers increases weekly, however the number of overseas subscribers is limited. I predict that the Gram will gain a huge number of overseas subscribers during the coming year and even be translated into several other languages. Â 7. The following is a prediction that has to have a lot going for it to come to pass, but I will predict that your editor will turn over a new leaf and organize his office. While doing so he will uncover many valuable notes that belong to other collectors that have been misplaced in the black hole for years. He will even find the item he had promised to sell and send to Ms. Prudy which she wanted to give to me a couple years ago for my 39th birthday. This is a tough one. Â 8. Gary Hicks will finally find the "fours" he has so faithfully been pursuing. He may have to take up golf as a secondary avocation, and run from course to course, fairway to fairway chasing this well known golfing term. Â 9. And finally I predict that the Thurski column will be nominated for and win a Nobel Prize for Literature. Please don't bet the homestead on that one! Hope to see many of you at FUN.

Â Â Â Â Â More Predictions

By Bruce Potter

Predictions for 2002:

1. Twenty-nine attendees at MPC Fest III.
2. A new MPC "splinter" will be discovered and sell per auction in excess of $100.00.
3. A surprise "celebrity" will make an appearance at Fest III.
4. A worn MPC note will run thru eBay auction WITHOUT receiving a bid from Doug Bell.
5. Gary Hicks will expand his MPC field and start collecting "fives."
6. Harold Kroll, Fred Schwan, and Marv Mericle team up at St Louis and start their drive to the ANA Summer Seminar in Colorado. They start discussing ideas for the 5th edition on MPC.end up in Providence, Rhode Island.....
7. Smithsonian Institute appoints Marcus as "Head Honcho" over MPC/AMC artifact wing.

Â Â Â Â Â Editorial

Hm, you guys just love to keep me on pins and needles. Bruce and Larry gave us some great predictions for which I am pleased. However, they just could not give them to us in time for the predictiongram. I know that they did this on purpose. They just want to torment me! On the phone Harold Kroll indicated that he had some predictions. The bottom line is that we will take 2002 predictions for at least a few more days. Heck, we will take predictions for 2003, 4, 5, 6.

Â Â Â Â Â Mail Call

Dear Gram,
 Â Don't know who lives in Maryville, but we do have an MPC collector in "Margaretville"
 Best Wishes,
 Phil
 Gramsters!!!
 Â At the FUN show in 10 days or so, there will be at least 10 FEST II'ers in attendance.Â I know that there will be many other MPC collectors there too.Â If you plan on being there be sure to stop by table 212 and visit with Harold "the kid" Kroll and David "coinman" Seelye.Â Fred, Ian Marshall, and Leo "Paymaster" May all have tables.Â Don't be strangers, let's put faces with the email names and telephone voices.

Even if it was not a great show, there must be something to report. What and whom did you see? Market activity? Share your observations and thoughts with Gramsters everywhere.

----- Special "MPC" events

March 2002 8-10 - MPCFest III - reservations in order received: Guido Crapanzano, Harold Kroll, Larry Smulczynski, Gary "Got any fours" Hicks, Tom Warburton, David Seelye, Jack Lippincot, Phil Goldstein, Warner Talso, Nick Schrier, Richard Freyser, Tom Koch, Mark Watson, Bill Yanchick, Doug Bell, Sam Feedback, Bruce Potter, Elmer Smith, Marv Mericle, Wes and Rod Hardy, Marcus Turner, Gene Ryanwood, Al Glaser, Fred Schwan {running total 25}} [missing â€œoldâ€ Festers: Dan Swartz, Leo May, Al Glaser, Kevin Maloy (did I forget someone?), come on guys, give us your reservation]

Three airports are reasonably available for the Fest. In order of proximity they are:

Â Toledo

Â Cleveland

Â Detroit (Metro)

All three are reasonable. If you can arrive early enough AND coordinate it well ahead, every attempt will be made to pick you up at the airport to save on rental cars. Festers are encouraged to coordinate among themselves for rides. We will also run notices in the Gram and, finally, we will try to coordinate for Festers to run pickups from Fest central.

Post/Base Exchange (PX/BX/NEX) Dump your dupes! Your classified advertisement for items for sale will be run here for free. Send your ads to the gram. This service is for everyone, most humble dealer or most advanced collector. The point is to make the gram more interesting. Send in a list of items for sale and we will list them here in the gram. In all cases confirm your order via email first.

SPECIAL NOTICE

We are in a mad final push to complete the fourth edition of our MPC bible! We can and will have it to the printer before Christmas! The resources section is one of the major areas where work is needed. Place your advertisement now! If you ordered an ad in the past and we have not spoken about it recently, please confirm.

Â This is your chance to get your message to thousands of collectors and dealers world wide. With an advertisement in The Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates you will receive many extras (these may change over time): listing in the Hot Contact List every month in the Bank Note Reporter, in the book itself, at papermoneyworld and probably right here in the Gram.

Here is what is available:
Inside back cover, one spot $1900*
Last page $1700
Full page in resources section $750
Three quarter page $550
Half page $500
Quarter page $400

*full color available for this position. Monthly payment option available. Make your reservation now!

FOR SALE
World War II Remembered, the bible of military money collecting. $69 from the publisher. Email fred@papermoneyworld.net.

WANTED
Collectors may submit lists of items wanted for their collections for listing here. Dealers and collectors who have these items are then encouraged to list them or sale in the above section. This is a trial, if you like it, send your list.

Â More Blood (chits)

Submitted by David Klinger

The following is the official Department of Defense policy on blood chits as posted on a DOD web site.

To provide United States Department of Defense (DoD) policy clarification and guidance relating to "Blood Chit" use and compensation.

Â Through the blood chit program, the United States Government promises to compensate anyone who assists an American service member or other Department of Defense personnel to survive, evade, resist, or escape in hostile territory and return to friendly control. Blood chits, as identified in Joint Publication 3-50.3 Annex E, are a tool used by an evader or escapee after all other measures of independent evasion and escape have failed and the evader(s) considers assistance vital to survival. Upon receiving assistance, the evader or escapee provides the assistor with the blood chit number. When the assistor or his representative presents the blood chit number to American authorities and the U.S. Government has validated the claim properly, and upon the service member's return to friendly control, the blood chit represents an obligation of the U.S. Government to compensate the claimant, or his immediate family if the claimant is deceased, for services rendered to DoD personnel.

Â The U.S. Government policy is to compensate individuals who assist American service members and other DoD personnel in hostile areas to return to friendly control, independent of whether or not the individual was issued a blood chit. The U.S. Government may also compensate individuals who risk their life, livelihood, or freedom to assist DoD personnel, who do not survive or remain missing, when reliable sources can validate the claim. Due to the sensitivity of the issue, DoD must ensure that it communicates this policy clearly and consistently.

 Â DoD activities shall brief their personnel on this policy and ensure that it is followed.

 Carl Wolf from the Chicago Coin Club just called to arrange for a presentation on MPC at the meeting of the club at the Chicago Paper Money Expo. I gladly accepted the invitation/challenge. The timing is about perfect. CPMX is the start of what I now envision as MPC week culminating in MPCFest III the following weekend. My vision is to present the new discoveries in MPCâ€”multiple printings and multiple printing replacementsâ€”but of course, I will be happy to listen to the ideas that you might have on this.
 The meeting will be on Saturday at 1pm. I hope to see you there and you should expect at least a few surprises!

 Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Mail Call

 Dear Gram,
 Â I am always interested in the predictions from the MPC guru's regarding the future events in our hobby. I want to thank Larry for letting us know in advance that he will be selling his collection this year, as I need a number of his British Military notes. However, my confidence in his ability to predict the future has been slightly shaken. I refer to his no. 7 prediction in the thurski column regarding our editor turning over a new leaf and organizing his office. I too am waiting for a note that I bought over a year ago to surface. Of all predictions mentioned to date, I believe this to be quite a stretch. One prediction has come true, Marv predicted a listing in the wanted column of the gram and I have sent one in. Â In regards to David's note about putting faces to email names at FUN. BEWARE. I have seen all of their faces at FUN before. As they are shaking your hand, they are trying to determine how they can remove all of your money from your wallet before you leave their table. In my case, this has not been much of a challenge, as I seem to need everything they have.
 Maybe we can organize a mini pre-FEST III at FUN?
 Finally I have one prediction, I predict the SPECIAL NOTICE in the Gram stating the mad push to complete the fourth edition of our bible before Christmas is indeed Christmas 2001 and not Christmas 2002.

Al Glaser
 Dear Gram,
 Â I liked the prediction that there would be a note on ebay that DB wouldn't bid on. However, I think that might be overly optimistic

Shotgun

Dear Gun,
 Â Yes, I too thought that it was a stretch.

Editor

Dear Editor,
 I think either Larry is cheating or he read my article on propaganda in Afghanistan.
 Â There is a reward leaflet for Osama that shows piles of U.S. $20 bills. There are several that offer rewards, and at least one banknote known to have been overprinted with reward data.
 Â The one think we do not have this time is mock Afghan currency with propaganda on the back. At least, nobody has seen one yet.

Gram Back

Richard Nixon’s sinister forces must still be hiding to unleash their powers at the worst possible time! On the day that your editor was departing for the Florida United Numismatists (FUN) Convention, web master and wizard Doug Bell reported a major problem with the utilities used to mail the MPCGram. He has worked hard to resolve the problems, but has not been able to.

Now that we are back from FUN, we have been working on other solutions here at HQ. Unfortunately, there has not been much progress. Today, in an effort to get a Gram out, we are sending this Gram with the Yahoo mailing utility. This in itself is not so bad. The bad news is that the mailing list is out of date. Some new names that were added at papermoneyworld are not on the current list and some addresses that had requested removal from the list are included. We are very sorry about the inconvenience, but there does not seem to be any alternative.

New Festers

Three collectors, including two New Festers, have submitted reservations for Fest III. New Festers Carlson Chambliss and Ray Bows are both numismatic authors and MPC fans. In addition to participating in other Fest activities, they will be available for book signings at the Fest.

Currently 28 people are confirmed for Fest III. We are now clearly beyond the total for Fest II. We should pass 30 very soon and it seems that we certainly have a shot at 40 and possibly even 50. Get your reservations in soon!

Editorial

The following editorial was prepared before the computer problem described in the lead story. In many ways, the problem described below is minor compared to the above, but it, nonetheless, requires publication. I thank you for your patience during these many problems.

Gram 531 was a new low in technical and training problems! An incorrect shell was sent out. When Wiz attempted to bail us out, the technology got in the way and made it worse. We were tempted to use the ruse of many numismatic organizations and create a double issue of the Gram, but decided not to. Neither are we extending subscriptions (as we have sometimes done in the past). Instead, we will resend Gram 531. If that will be before or after Gram 532, we are uncertain even as we write this editorial.

Of course we are sorry about any and all inconvenience. We welcome your barbs, criticisms, and arrows about this most recent mess.

=====

Mail Call

Editor’s note: many letters have been received about the Grampause, examples will be published in the next few days.

Dear Editor,

Marcus was right! I made a donation to the Scholarship Fund and he said you would never or take a long time before you would update the list of donors. Shame, shame. Are there others not on the list?

Howard

Dear Howard,

Thank you (very much) for the generous donation. I am not certain about the shame comment though. It does sometimes take awhile to get the notice of a new donation in the Gram. First (of course) there is the well known, documented, and talked about inefficiency of the otherwise erstwhile editor. However, more importantly this same editor generally applies initiative to the reports so that they can be the major story of the day or at least get major attention. I am quite sure that no donations have been made for which the donor is not listed daily in the Gram. That is not because of a burst of efficiency, but because Marcus checks the list! Occasionally a person drops of the list in a copy/past operation, but Marcus catches it!

To the extent that we (I) have not lived up to the task of supporting the scholarship program editorially, I apologize.

Editor

FUN Show

by Howard A. Daniel III

I arrived at the FUN Show in Orlando on Friday morning and checked into the Quality Inn. There were so few people in the hotel, they allowed me in my room at 9AM instead of 3PM. A good start. I walked to the convention center and signed in, bought five raffle tickets, and placed my sticky badge on my shirt. Last year, my ANA Life Member badge was good enough, but this year I had to wear the sticky badge too. I wish they would honor the badge every year and not just once in awhile.

After I entered the bourse, I decided to start on the left side of the room. I ran into several U.S. dealers who I see at the Mid-Atlantic shows, and one of them I had just seen in a Vienna, VA, coin store before driving south. My first purchase was a "Vietnam" club token for the Flamingo Club. It did not look like something from that era and I was proven right by one of the Gramsters. He said it was for a Navy club (Cunningham-IT80f) in Naples, Italy.

I was going to walk back to the dealer and get my money back, but someone said Guido Crapanzano likes anything from Italy, so I am going to send it to him. At Allen Berman's table, I found several Dutch East Indies duits and Thai 1/2 Att that were VERY well struck. Even if they do not upgrade my collection, they will be very good trading material! At Enterprise Coins table, I found several plantation tokens for the island of Borneo and one Thai funeral money piece made from a cardboard-like material, painted silver and stamped to look like a Chinese coin of old. The plantation tokens will likely upgrade my collection, and the funeral money appears to be different than I already own. Good stuff! Somewhere on the bourse I found a modern Japanese 10 Yen piece with a large "X" counterstamped on each side of the coin. This will end up in Joe Boling's hands. I have no idea what it was used for, but I like counterstamped, countermarked, chopmarked, overprinted and over stamped stuff! I also found a chopped Japanese 1 Yen piece with a number "5" on it, but it will not see Joe Boling's collection. I like pieces with numbers and letters mixed in with the chops. Narit (Rocky) had it at his Mikell International table. We also went out to dinner on Friday night at our favorite Chinese buffet restaurant (Wong's) on International Drive. It was my turn to buy and we had a great meal.

As I worked my way to the left side of the bourse I found a table with Fred sitting at it. What a sight to see the MPCGram editor in person! Only kidding. Larry was there too and many other Gramsters showed up over the next two days.

The surprise of the show for me and others was the appearance of Ray Bows. Yes, Ray Bows. He had disappeared from my view for many years. Ray and I go back about 25+ years, so it was good to see him back on a bourse. His catalog on the Vietnam War club tokens is one of THE references that made a difference to numismatists! I bought a bunch of club tokens for Thailand from him; a Cambodian coin, two Borneo plantation tokens, and French satirical coin that was produced when they were trying to conquer North Viet Nam in the 1880's.

A former Navy guy by the name of Marvin or Mericle, or both, bothered me a couple of times during the show, but he has a great wife who makes some great cookies, so I allowed him to hang around me for awhile. I hate to drop names of the rich and famous I met at this show, so I will stop with a Navy (ugh) guy. I hope to see you readers at the next FUN Show! Right?

Scholarship Fund Fattens

Keith and Sue Bauman have made a generous donation to the military money seminar scholarship fund. The Bauman's are well known to MPC collectors. Keith is a collector and dealer who attends many paper money show. Sue is a paper money artist who has created several pieces based upon MPC. The most recognizable of these is the cover of the current MPC book!

Their donation is important to promoting the hobby. See information below about the scholarship fund.

Editorial

We are making some progress in digging out from the mess that we created (with the help of the cyber demon). The Gram mail box is full of complaints but not too many articles or other useful editorial material so please do send in some good stuff. Now that we are back on line it will go fast!

Mail Call

Dear Editor,

I had a great FUN considering I was not even going to get a table until Herb pressed me to. Sold quite a bit MPC and bought lots of U.S. coins etc. Turned most right at the show. It was great to meet some people eye to eye that I had only met previously on the internet. I hope to be able to make it to the Fest.

Mike Cummings

Dear Editor,
My name is Ken Kugler and the MPC gram I got today is the first I have gotten since the 2nd of January.

Was there any other reports of this or have I just been skipped?
I really really missed the issues, is there any why to get them re-sent?
Thanks,
Ken Kugler

Dear Ken,

Thank you for your comments. I am glad that you like the Gram enough to miss it. It sounds like you did not actually miss any Grams, but were just the innocent victim of our cyberspace problems.

More FUN and an Important Deadline

By Larry "Ski" Smulczenski

Even though Gram Central is down, I thought I would jot down a few things while they were fresh in mind from the FUN show. As usual FUN was indeed fun. Not a great number of papermoney dealers there, but still enough to find a few nice little items to bring home for the collection. Saw many Gramsters there and want to thank them for coming up and introducing themselves. It's nice to know that these things are going out and our efforts are read and appreciated. Marv Mericle had his award winning MPC collection on exhibit at the show and it won a disappointing second place. Maybe we're prejudice, but it sure outshone the first place winner by stones throw. Some of those judges don't appreciate the finer things in life.

My major acquisition was a small size cardboard merchant chit from the Grand Pacific Hotel in Fiji. You will notice that the 3d value in World War II Remembered is listed with letters 3 and 5 mm tall. I've had the 3mm piece as well as the 1d and 6d pieces both with and without signatures on the back for many years, but had never seen the 5 mm tall 3d piece even though I had looked for it intensely. Well, it showed up in David Seelye stock at this show and I jumped on it. Of course, not 24 hours later, Fred Schwan came up with another one. So much for my diligent searching.

We were discussing World War II Remembered with a couple of potential purchasers when someone came up and said "That's a great book, I use it almost every day." Fred's ears perked up and he got a big grin on his face, until the gentleman said. "Yes, everytime my grandson comes over, he gets the book to sit on so he can easily reach the table. It works great." Fred, not to be out done answered with, "Then you should buy another copy as your sure to have more grandkids."

Fred, Harold and I had dinner with Ray Bows the author of Viet Nam, Military Lore 1959-1973, Another Way to Remember. What a super individual this gentleman is. We talked about Viet Nam, chits, tokens, etc the entire meal, went back to the hotel and talked till the wee hours of the morning and it seemed like only minutes had passed. Ray is a real interesting personality. His residence is a travel trailer that he uses to roam to the far corners of the United States. He visits Veteran Hospitals along the way, and talks with fellow vets, reliving experiences and gathering information for another book that he is putting together. The time that we spent with him was really the highlight of the show for the three of us.

But now, FUN is over and TriFESTa is almost upon us, less than seven weeks away. One of the enjoyable events of last years Fest was the auction we held. Some great items were auctioned off and then there were a couple of fun items that also brought nice bids and those proceeds went to the scholarship fund. I'm referring specifically to the wooden splinter from the MPC Packing Crate that was eventually won by our esteemed editor. When Neil Shafer was told the story about the splinter his natural retort was the question " Was he 'Crateful' that he won.?"

Anyway, Phil Goldstein and I spent a good part of one evening cataloging the auction lots. In doing so we missed some of the spontaneous activities and verbal exchanges that went on during that time. Therefore we're asking you to submit your lots to me prior to the Fest. That will give us a chance to catalog the items before we get to Port Clinton. To those that do so, we will waive the sellers 10% fee. It will also give us a chance to list them in the Gram so others that can not attend the Fest will have a chance to bid. If you don't want to mail me the lots, at least give me a list of what you plan to submit along with a scan, a description, a grade and a minimum bid. Then if there is some disagreement we can easily correct it at the Fest. My mailing address is Larry Smulczenski, Box 263, Shalimar, FL 32579 or email at skifla@prodigy.net. Let us hear from you.

MPC Book Nears Completion (really)

The long awaited fourth edition of the Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates is about to go to press. Yes, we know that you have heard it before, but this time we really, really, really mean it. In fact it is scheduled to go to the printer on Tuesday. (You can be sure that we will report on this important event when it takes place).

There are a few loose ends. If you have a AMC yen type A replacement (specimen or issued) that has not been reported, we would very much like to include the serial number data in the book. Through negligence, we did not include these data in past editions so we want to "catch up." Send your numbers now!

Dealers, if you have not reserved space for your advertising, we can still get it in if you make your reservation by Tuesday at 10am. We will then insert the actual ad when the galley proofs are checked so we will have some time to create the ad. The important thing is to get the reservation in. We will be in the office all day Monday and can take reservations by email too (this address will work). Remember, your advertisement gets your phone number on our Hot Contact List which appears EVERY month in the Bank Note Reporter and other places. Starting today or tomorrow (or at least soon), the HCL will appear in most issues of the Gram as well! Your advertisement is BNR Press products is an investment in the future! See more detailed information below.

Editorial

While we were having all of the other problems, Yahoo changes some of its email system so going back there has created some new problems. Sure, most of it is just editor training, but he is notoriously hard headed AND hard to train so we will have to settle for these things for awhile. Most notably are the extra spaces that appear in the Gram. I cannot get rid of them! Drat.

=====

Mail Call

Dear Editor,

Hate to 'bitch' about a freebie, but I am now receiving the gram and it's spread over 9 or 10 widths of my monitor. I understand that this is controlled by the sender of the email. Could you have someone look into the problem and possibly correct it? I would appreciate it being on one screen width. It's so much easier to read it. Thanks in advance.

Donald T. 1SG, AUS (Retired)

Dear Top,

I will assign a squad of proGRAMers to look into it.

Editor

Dear Editor:

It appears the original message was returned. I would like to get two new MPC books. Please sign one for Del and the other for Bill. I have acquired to replacement notes as follows: 692 5 cents E 00451956 pos 57 BU, 521 10 cents E00664401 pos 84 VG.

Regards,

Del

Dear Del,

Thanks for the order and the reports. The reports have been added to the survey. The book order has NOT been entered. We will make an announcement in a few days about how orders can be made (we have a few surprises along that line).

Editor

Dear Editor,

Welcome back gentlemen (?)!!!

SJ

Dear S,

True, gentlemen is in doubt, but otherwise THANK YOU VERY MUCH for the KIND WORD!

Hot Contact List

Below is the BNR Press Hot Contact List. This list serves several functions. Obviously it is an outreach by the dealers listed for your business. Most of them buy and sell MPC. Others organize shows or publish periodicals. They have supported the new Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates with their advertising. They deserve your support and patronage.

Secondly, this is a draft from the book that participating dealers should check for correctness. Finally, dealers who are not on it and want to can still get their ads in if they act promptly. Respond to this email or call (419) 732-6683.

We are sorry if the format is a little messed up here in the Gram, we are not sure of how to fix it!

MEDAL OF HONOR FAILS AIRLINE SECURITY CHECK

Dick Johnson sent an article to The E-Sylum from The Washington Times, published January 19th. We stole it from there without seeking permission which we assume would be given. Gramster Richard Balbaton also submitted the same article.

"Airline security personnel at Phoenix's international airport questioned a retired general and war hero about the Medal of Honor he was carrying before he boarded a flight to Washington, D.C. "They just didn't know what it was but they acted like I shouldn't be carrying it on," retired Marine Corps Gen. Joseph J. Foss of Scottsdale, Ariz., said yesterday in a telephone interview. "I kept explaining that it was the highest medal you can receive from the military in this country, but nobody listened," he said. Gen. Foss, an 86-year-old former South Dakota governor whose resume also includes stints as president of the National Rifle Association and as commissioner of the old American Football League, said he was "hassled" about the medal by two separate security crews at Sky Harbor International Airport in Phoenix."

"Gen. Foss said he normally doesn't travel with his medal. "I do not carry the medal around with me. But I had it with me this time to show to cadets at the U.S. Military Academy at West Point," where he was a guest speaker last week." <http://www.washtimes.com/national/20020119-79003878.htm>

[The Medal of Honor is very unusual in that by law, there is no secondary market for the medal. They may be held by the family of the recipient, but cannot be bought or sold. Officials have had examples of the medal pulled from eBay auctions and other trading venues. Is anyone aware of other medals or awards that cannot be sold? I believe the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences frowns on the resale of Oscar statues, but it was only recently that nominees were required to sign an agreement that the Academy has the right of first refusal to purchase the statuette for the sum of $1.00. The agreement covers the recipient's "heirs, legatees, executors, administrators, estate, successors and assigns." See Rule 7: <http://www.oscars.org/72academyawards/rules72.pdf> -Editor]

[The e-sylum editor (Wayne Homren) also included reference to The Medal of Honor Society web site, featuring background information on the medal - its history, symbolism, types, recipients, etc. <http://www.cmohts.org/medal.htm> The Numismatic Bibliomania Society is a non-profit organization promoting numismatic literature. For more information please see our web site at <http://www.coinbooks.org/> A recent article in Numismatic News by David Ganz commented upon the strengthened rules about trading in Medals of Honor. Specifically it is illegal to possess a MoH except as a recognized recipient or heir. Also, an additional "copy" is going to be awarded to recipients for display purposes. Making possession illegal for someone who legally obtained it at the time (by trade etc) seems to be an ex post facto situation to this untrained editor. Not that I think that MoHs should be floating around. I also assume that exceptions are included for bona fide museums. There are probably lots of other little twists.—Ed]

Editorial

We REALLY are getting VERY CLOSE to finishing the MPC book! I expect to take it to the printer on Tuesday or possibly Wednesday. There were some last minute discoveries and additions that we will discuss in the next week or so. You will like them!

Once we get that project off our back, we can start on other things. The first of these of greatest interest to Gramsters will be the Fest. Preparations have been moving along nicely, but they will get intense when MPC goes to bed. Then there are some other book projects to announce and work on so it will be a very busy year!

Hi,
I need to get my subscription renewed.

Cheers,
Mark

Hi Folks,
Did I miss a payment or something? I haven't received a gram since Jan. 4, 2002. Don't know what's going on in the MPC world. Please reestablish my account. Thanks.
Dick

Hi!
Stopped receiving my gram about a week ago????? What happened????

Guy Araby!

P.S. NEED MY GRAM-PLEASE ADVISE! help anyone ?????!!!!!!:(

Hi,

My Christmas greetings this year didn't come through to you this year. So I'll try again with a different address. PS. I haven't seen any GRAMS the last week. Are things OK?

Very best

Flemming

Denmark

Dear Flemming,

Thanks, everything is not OK, but everything is the same as usual! Chaos.

Editor

Hello,

Just wanted to let you know that I have not received a MPC Gram since # 530 Thursday January 3. I am starting to exhibit signs of severe withdrawal. Could you find it in your heart to renew or extend my subscription for a while longer. Thank you very much.

Dean N, Canada

Dear Editor,

It was good to see so many friends at the FUN show!

Neil

Dear Neil,

Thanks for writing about something—anything—other than missed Grams!

Editor

Dear Fester in Chief,

Are they any plans for exhibiting at Fest? I am debating putting together a new exhibit that will probably take up between 5 and 7 cases depending on how things pan out. Right now I only have two cases. If push comes to shove I can always take my French Equatorial Africa Exhibit (only two cases). If cases were not such a burden it would sure be fun to have competitive exhibiting...

Marcus Turner

Hello Marcus,

Good question. Last year we had one exhibit (Harold Kroll et al of multies). We can have at least three exhibits this year with one starting each day. I think that we have five cases available although I think that we could manage to get a few more so, go for it. We can also accommodate other requests. Who would like to exhibit?

Big Fester

Larry "Ski,"

Can we deliver lots for the MPC FEST III auction to you at CPMX?

David

(PX/BX/NEX) Dump your dupes! Your classified advertisement for items for sale will be run here for free. Send your ads to the gram. This service is for everyone, most humble dealer or most advanced collector. The point is to make the gram more interesting. Send in a list of items for sale and we will list them here in the gram. In all cases confirm your order via email first.

SPECIAL NOTICE

We are in a mad final push to complete the fourth edition of our MPC bible! The resources section is one of the major areas where work is needed. Place your advertisement now! If you ordered an ad in the past and we have not spoken about it recently, please confirm.

This is your chance to get your message to thousands of collectors and dealers world wide. With an advertisement in The Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates you will receive many extras (these may change over time): listing in the Hot Contact List every month in the Bank Note Reporter, in the book itself, at papermoneyworld and probably right here in the Gram.

Here is what is available:

Full page in resources section $750

*full color available for this position. Monthly payment option available. Make your reservation now!

FOR SALE

Your advertisement of material for sale (related to military money collecting) will be accepted for this section at no charge as a public service.

WANTED

Collectors may submit lists of items wanted for their collections for listing here. Dealers and collectors who have these items are then encouraged to list them or sale in the above section. This is a trial, if you like it, send your list.

More Bad "Luck"

By Brad Peacock

The following is a letter posted by Jay Jackson - a good friend and fellow collector.

Luck ran out Howdy, y'all, Well, my string of luck ran out. I attended the Greater Houston Coin Club's show this past weekend and was hit by burglars. While I didn't lose a lot, it still hurts.

I lost a full set of Israeli 1955 notes in VF to AU condition, a German 50-mark, 20-mark, 5-mark, 2-mark, 1-mark, 10-pfg and 5-pfg from 1948 ("BANKNOTE" series) each in vf or so condition, a couple of BankDeutschlander 10-marks in xf condition, a couple of "devil's face" notes from Canada, one a Coyne-Towers and the other a Beattie-Coyne, a Philippines 1-peso from 1949 with "Genuine" in the underprint, a 1935 English $1 Canadian, 1937 Canadian $1, 10-cent US Fractional marked "Counterfeit", an Aussie 1937 crown (coin) and a 1903-s Philippine Peso. While not a lot of money in value, it still hurts and I feel terribly violated.

My van was taken also, but I'm fully insured for that loss. My friend and I went for supper Saturday night around 8 PM and when we got back at 10:30 PM the van was gone and our room was broken into. My friend lost a lot more than I did. Among other things, he lost a $5 MPC series 521 in XF condition as well as all his show receipts and a lot of cash. I guess I'll get over it someday. The cops seem to think the object of the theft was the van with the stuff in our room as merely an 'extra'... What hurts is that they probably tossed the paper money out the window and it is blowing down some Houston side street as if it were trash... Later, y'all... Jay in Garrison, TX reply, if ya' wanna, to "whohah1@yahoo.com"

The 521 $5.00 note Jay mentions in this letter was intended for me and was stolen before I got it. The serial number is E00448196E. Everyone be on the lookout for it because this should be an easy note to spot. Please jot down the serial number and be vigilant. If you deal or collect any of the other things Jay mentions in his letter please take a moment to make a note on what might be his. I hope he can provide me a complete list so that I may put a page on the net for him. The friend Jay refers to in his letter, Paul Garner, who was holding the 521 $5 for me also had numerous items stolen. Please click this link <http://home.swbell.net/bp22/pgarner/pgarner.htm> for a list and description of those items. He can be reached at pegarner@rocketmail.com and regular contact information can be found within the link along with a brief description of the events. This theft brings to total at least 3 friends who were victimized this weekend. Bob Reed in Baton Rouge (see last gram), and Jay and Paul in Houston. Our sympathy goes out to these guys, lets do what we can to help them. Its proven that material can be recovered - I helped find Ken Barr's notes which were stolen after the Memphis show. Ok gang, lets get these bastards.

Muscatine Art Museum to Have Camp Algona Exhibition including POW Scrip

By Steve Feller

As I write this a new exhibition on the World War II POW Camp at Algona, Iowa is being set up. I'm going to visit the exhibition at the Muscatine Museum of Art, next Tuesday (January 29) at around 3 PM for a special viewing before the exhibit opens to the general public. They will have many original artifacts from the camp including paintings, photographs, correspondence, drawings, cookware, music, suitcases, clothing, and of course scrip. The scrip has been donated by German POW survivors that have been contacted recently. I have been told that some of the scrip is from previously unreported camps as well. The person behind the exhibit is Michael Luick-Thrams an Iowa-born historian who is trying to bring World War II history to the people of Iowa and the Midwest. Michael has already visited dozens of Algona subcamp locations throughout Iowa and Minnesota. He has also interviewed well over a score of former prisoners at Algona from his home in Berlin. I will report back t o the Gram after I visit the exhibition. The address of the museum is 1314 Mulberry Avenue, Muscatine, Iowa.

Editorial

Are you tired of hearing about the work on the MPC book? You should be! This stage is always maddening. It usually turns into a computer file management nightmare—and this is no exception. At the moment, it is driving me crazy. I suspect that it will work out, but from this fox hole it looks like a long way to the mountain top.

Mail Call

Dear Editor, Do you have the capability to change the font in the gram, it sucks as it is.

BP

Dear B,

Well, yes, and no, and, heck, I really do not know. First as I explained a few days ago. During the time that we were not using Yahoo to send the Gram, some things were changed (Yahoo did not even ask us). Next, I do not know how it comes out on your computer. Finally, here is the real answer. Is there a Yahoo/computer expert out there who can help improve the Gram? Your Gram needs YOU!

Support the War Effort

By Larry "Ski" Smulczenski

I've written several articles about savings bonds but one that I've not mentioned to date is the Freedom Share. You'll remember that the Treasury had announced that there would be a new bond issued after the 9/11 disaster and that those funds would be used to finance the war against terrorism. Many of us had anticipated that these bonds would feature some of our famous land marks like Mount Rushmore, the Statue of Liberty, and the Liberty Bell. We of course were disappointed when they were issued with a simple "Patriot Bond" title printed on a normal Series EE bond. It is still a variety, but it sure doesn't have the clout that a brand new design would have. Then it was announced that the funds from your purchase of a Patriot Bond would not be earmarked to combat terrorism, but would go into the general fund and be spent according to law. In other words, Congress could use the funds for any of their pet pork-barrel projects that they wanted.

Anyway, back to the Freedom Share. I can remember purchasing these instruments as a young captain to support the squadron's bond drives, but we have cashed them all sometime in the 80's for some project that I can no longer remember. In fact, I hadn't seen one of these bonds since that time until the MPCKid came up with a $25 Freedom Share that he got his hands on. I at least got a scan of that one, and hopefully one will someday come my way for my collection. They are attractive bonds and would have fit the bill of the Patriot Bond nicely. The frame is similar to the Series E bonds, but the back ground is a pale yellow with the Capitol Dome in the center of the underprint. On the left side, the minute man stands proudly as it did on all the war savings stamps and MPC Series 651.

These bonds made their debut back in 1967 when the Treasury began one of the most intensive sales campaigns for savings securities since World War II. Freedom Shares were offered with a return of 4.74% when held to maturity of 4 years and six months (Series E bonds matured in 7 years). These shares could only be purchased in combination with Series E bonds of the same or greater denomination. The offering was effective from May 1, 1967 until close of business October 31, 1970. The shares were offered in four denominations:$25, $50, $75 and $100. Their issue price was 81% of their face value--$20.25, $40.50, $60.75 and $81.00. When bought through issuing agents over-the-counter, share purchases could not exceed $350 (face amount) per quarter and the annual limit was $1350 (face amount). The Treasury discontinued the sale of Freedom Shares largely because they never achieved the popularity predicted and the savings security portion of the national debt could be attained sat isfactorily through E and H bonds.

I still think they are neat. I personally do not remember what the subjects on the $50, $75 and $100 Freedom Shares pictured. If you have one or know anything more about this short lived series, let us hear from you.

Dave asked the question about handing me auction lots for the Fest Auction at CPMX. Sure, that's fine, but still I would like you to email me a list of what you are going to hand me so that I can start listing them as soon as possible. Dave Seelye sent me a package that I received today with some real interesting items for the auction. So we are moving in the right direction. Let me hear from the rest of you.

Editorial

The computer goblins continue to cause havoc (something new everyday), but the end of the book is in sight. It is not going to make it to the printer this week, but it will go at the beginning of next week. Man will that feel good.

Ski mentioned the patriot bonds above. I ordered a few of these late in 2001. They were waiting for me when I returned from FUN. They are interesting in some technical ways, but overall they are less appealing even than we had expected. The "Patriot Bond" legend is simply sprayed on at the same time as the name, address, and other particulars. Too bad.

Mail Call

Attention Festers and Potential Festers:

In light of Brad's recent article on the thefts in his area, I am soliciting ideas and solutions for possible security at the Fest.

While it is generally accepted that for the most part our collections are rarely left unattended, the need to go out to dinner or fetch supplies, AND not being able to bring our collection with us is a concern. Fred stated, we should take our collections with us, no matter where we go, but in my eyes that can be a little difficult when I am sitting in the jacuzzi room, and my notes sitting next to me are wilting in the hot steamy, humid air. Or when you are in shower, and there is no one else in room to watch your collection, and you think no one else has access to your room. I guess we can ask a fellow Fester to watch over my collection, but I would feel funny about imposing on any of you to watch my collection, and are any of you willing to be chained to my collection while I'm gettin g refreshed and relaxed??

I have suggested to Fred, that an armed, possibly bonded security guard (usually armed guards are bonded, with more stringent background checks for firearms laws), be hired from a reputable company to guard our collections.

I at first suggested an unarmed guard to save costs, but some of the unarmed guards I knew were usually of less reputable backgrounds, and Fred thought armed would be more of a deterrent. Then it was suggested Festers take guard shifts outside the rooms, but frankly if an armed robbery was to take place, I don't want any of my friends getting in the middle of a fire fight. Let's face it, Larry may be 39 and in top form for his age, but some of you are not, and would be unfair to expect you to put up a fight. Nor do I believe Harold, with a beer in one hand and a dress in the other, and cigarette dangling from his lips be capable of fending off an intrusion.

An armed guard is trained to guard, and that is wh at they get paid to do. It's a shame this isn't taking place here,

Phil Goldstein

Dear Phil,

Thank you for your concern and proposal. I will refrain from making comments now. I will make my comment (possibly as early as tomorrow) after allowing others to state their ideas.

MACV currency control cards

By Philip M. Goldstein

With the unusual lull of offerings on eBay of late, I have been looking for alternative things to purchase, and other subjects to occupy my search time. One subject I continuously hit hard, more so of late, is MACV (Military Assistance Command - Vietnam) Cards, also known as MACV Form 5. These are plastic cards and the same size as credit cards and they were manufactured by Addressograph.

Up until about a year ago, the only one I knew of was in Fred's collection, which he brought home with him from his tour of duty. His is issued for: USA (meaning United States Army). Approximately a year ago, I came across a MACV card on eBay, which I was successful in winning. Upon studying the picture provided on eBay, I discovered that this particular card was issued for USAF (United States Air Force). I immediately called Fred, and shared the news. He was as excited as I was, well maybe I was a bit more, as he had the only known card in our MPC circle up to that time, after all these years.

He proceeded to tell me, that some years ago, another military numismatist, Alan Menke, had proclaimed that he had one [a great story, I will tell it in the next few days—Ed]. Other than his, Fred said these were the only two he knew of that made it out of Vietnam. The reason for there rarity, is stated on the back of the card. Here is the complete text:

U.S. Military Assistance Command, Vietnam
Currency Control Plate
This card is not evidence of entitlement to any privilege, but must be presented to complete MACV form 385 for conversion to U.S. Dollars, Cash Deposits, and purchase of Money Orders, Treasury Checks, Military Payment Orders, Banking Paper and Controlled Exchange Items.

This card is the property of the US Government and may be used only by the individual identified o n the reverse side.

This card is not valid after the expir

Two days went by. No contact... Now I'm getting frustrated. Finally, an e-mail. He said he again sent a scan (I still didn't get one). He said that since we were having so much trouble, maybe he shouldn't part with it. I immediately sent a reply from two different computers and through two different ISP's (internet service providers) just to make sure he would get one.

He got them, and them said he didn't know what they were worth and maybe he should put them up for auction. I persuaded him not to, and made him an offer (which he couldn't refuse!) of which he accepted. He even threw in a MACV Ration Card! Now remember, during all this, I still haven't seen the card itself. He tries one more time to send a scan... Finally a scan did come through. It was indeed a MACV card, but when I looked at the issuer, it was embossed 1st Mar Div. It took a second or two to sink in... FIRST MARINE DIVISION!!!! This card was the Marine Corps issue! What was a question mark for a year, now turned into a big fat exclamation point!

I e-mailed the seller, and confirmed he was indeed a member of First Marine Division. I immediately sent out a Priority Mail envelope, containing another self-addressed with signature confirmation prepaid Priority Mail envelope. I wasn't taking any chances! It will be with at Fest III, right next to its US Air Force cousin in my album.

Now the remaining questions for MACV cards are:

- 1) was the First Marine Division the only USMC issuer of MACV cards, that being the reason why it is marked specifically 1st Mar Div, instead of USMC?
- 2) If not, then did other divisions of Marine Corps, issue cards?
- 3) Army and Air Force cards are marked as such (USA and USAF), and with that being so generalized... Did they possibly issue division specific cards like the 1st Mar Div card?
- 4) Did the Navy issue a card? (I personally believe so)
- 5) And although I highly doubt it, did the Coast Guard or Merchant Marines issue a card?

Oh, how I would can't wait and love to find out! Hope to see you at Fest III !

Editorial

This issue was prepared last Thursday for publication on Friday. I even prepared a diskette version to carry with me so that it could be mailed on Friday after which I would prepare Saturday and Sunday versions while on the road. As you have figured by now, I did not get ANY of that done so we went Gramless for another three days. Bad boy, Fred! We have received some very good responses on the security issues. They will appear starting tomorrow.

The matter of security for the Fest has been of concern since the very first phone call when Harold Kroll and I cooked up the idea. First let me say, the first rule of security for collectors is "Do not leave your material unattended." As much as it hurts to say it, the recent thefts, the theft of Leo May's material and many other examples were caused largely because this basic rule was violated.

Have you ever wondered why the pages of the numismatic papers are filled with listing for one-day shows? The answer is security, the cost of security to be more specific. Shows pay for their expenses by charging fairly substantial fees for the table space than they rent.

The Fest is different. Basically, it is a free event. The registration fee includes meals, lodging, use of facilities, and lots of "extras." True, a few dealers paid a small premium to be able to sell their wares at the Fest, but these fees just helped keep the registration fee reasonable. Security was also part of the reason for selecting the format that we have for the Fest. Without a "serious bourse," less material will be brought and displayed and what is brought/displayed will be shown for a shorter period of time.

At this time it just is not feasible to have security personnel for the Fest. Except of course for the secret measures that may or may not be in place. Of course this is not to say that we cannot and should not take more security measures at the Fest.

Not only at the Fest, but at all events: Do not leave your material unattended.

Dear Gram,

I have found a Series 481 25¢ MPC with a serial number that appears to be in the range of skipped numbers as reported in the Comp Catalog of MPC. The number is D08902779D. What do you think?

Dear E,

Wow, I was quite excited to receive your letter and photocopy. Finding such a note would be a major discovery. It would require a whole new round of research and analysis. I do not know if it is good news or bad news, but your note is NOT from the skipped range. It is from the expected range of numbers. The numbers skipped were from 2680001 through 2688000. I guess the chart in the book is not clear enough. Sorry about that. Thanks for writing and for giving my day a jolt of adrenaline (PX/BX/NEX) Dump your dupes! Your classified advertisement for items for sale will be run here for free. Send your ads to the gram. This service is for everyone, most humble dealer or most advanced collector. The point is to make the gram more interesting. Send in a list of items for sale and we will list them here in the gram. In all cases confirm your order via email first.

SPECIAL NOTICE

We are in a mad final push to complete the fourth edition of our MPC bible! The resources section is one of the major areas where work is needed. Place your advertisement now! If you ordered an ad in the past and we have not spoken about it recently, please confirm.

This is your chance to get your message to thousands of collectors and dealers world wide. With an advertisement in The Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates you will receive many extras (these may change over time): listing in the Hot Contact List every month in the Bank Note Reporter, in the book itself, at papermoneyworld and probably right here in the Gram.

Here is what is available:

Full page in resources section $750

*full color available for this position. Monthly payment option available. Make your reservation now!

FOR SALE

Your advertisement of material for sale (related to military money collecting) will be accepted for this section at no charge as a public service.

WANTED

Collectors may submit lists of items wanted for their collections for listing here. Dealers and collectors who have these items are then encouraged to list them or sale in the above section. This is a trial, if you like it, send your list.

Enigmatic Empire Club

By Larry Smulczenski

I recently acquired a pair of pieces for the editor's collection--two of the 1/6 mark token chits from the Empire Club, Salzuflen. We had cataloged a green one in the Angus Bruce collection; this pair includes an identically-designed red piece printed on the back of an English map.

The fragment of the map present shows numerous farms, none with distinctive names (places such as Beacon Farm, Heath Stud Farm, Lordship Farm, Bungalow Farm, Heath Farm, and Hill House Farm). Also present are ???sur Mile Stable Farm, Lingay Hill, Round Course, Beacon Course, and Stands. It appears to be horse country; can anyone identify the part of England that is represented? The green chit has a violet box stamp containing HQ GHQ TPS. The first two acronyms we know; what's TPS? (Not Theatre Puget Sound, the web site where I post theater reviews several times a week.) A writeup that accompanied the pieces conjectures that TPS stands for Transport Service, but that does not ring true to me.

The pieces were used in a joint British/Canadian club at a small post near Bielefeld. The 1/6 mark denomination was the equivalent of one penny sterling (40 marks to the pound). I hope the editor appreciates them. In the ephemera I have amassed over the years is a plastic 1989 calendar with a chit reprinted on the other side that uses exactly the same frame and counters as the Salzuflen pieces, but a different central design. In place of the rose and maple leaf representing UK/Canada, this other piece has a YMCA logo at the top and an inscription "token voucher for one sixth of a mark valid at Y.M.C.A canteen Bad Oynhausen only."

One of these chits is illustrated in a fixed price list (if I recall correctly) published by Schoene several years ago. [I believe that Joe is thinking of the Schoene catalog of post WWII emergency mony by Schoene (a good book by the way)—Ed] I'll throw in that calendar for the editor (no charge). (He's going to be staggered by the price of the two Salzuflen pieces, anyway.) Does any reader have either of these chits, or other pieces denominated in marks based on sterling exchange rates? Something else observed in the same batch of notes, for anyone who is keeping track: Thailand, 1 baht MPC format, SB81r: A00086959 position 11 AU-Unc ($650); A00365011 position 46 XF ($500). Write Bill Henderson if you are dying to own one of these.

Editorial

It is good to have Boling's column back. Let there be no doubt, the interlude was entirely mine because of the big break in Grams. I also am sure that Joe was not entirely disappointed to have a few weeks off!

It is indeed a small world. Larry Smulczenski called to ask me if I had seen on Henderson's list the Empire chits discussed by Boling above. I said that I had not. Larry went on to describe that he had immediately called Henderson about these items. Henderson then reported that Joe Boling had visited and bought them. Larry was not happy about having missed out.

I said that I wondered why Joe had bought them. I further clarified this thought by saying that it was not the kind of thing that he would like for himself. Finally, I said (exactly) "Gee, I hope that he bought them for me!" Well, know we know. Sorry Larry!

=====

Mail Call

Gram,
I can't speak for everyone else, but I think that for the most part, each person at the fest will have to be responsible for their own security. Unless it is for a short time when you might have a buddy watch your stuff while you make a head call, etc. I am going to try to travel as lightly as possible and will be providing my own security and provided I don't forget where I'm at or what I'm doing there, will attempt to always keep an eye on my items or anyone else's Items I might be watching at the moment. We are all human and nothing is completely infallible but that is my plan.

May Collection now online

By Joel Shafer

I wanted to let all Gram followers know that bids can now be made on the Leo May collection. The following link will take you to the first page of the MPC: http://www.collectors.com/auctions/lot_listing.xhtml?siteid=396&startingsiteid

It is worth noting that the Leo May collection will lead off the auction. We are also offering many other outstanding items, including a terrific selection of coupons from both Korea and Thailand. We hope to see all of you in Chicago; the sale will take place on Thursday, February 28 at 6 PM. Viewing will occur that Wednesday and Thursday. Anyone is welcome to contact me if there are any questions.

Mysteries of Series 541

By Joe Boling [ok, by Fred Schwan, but we needed to give Joe credit for something.]

Without question Series 541 is the most amazing and interesting of all series. This starts with the exotic beauty of the $5 denomination. This note is on the want list of many collectors and even for those who have one in their collections the note has a mystique.

Beyond the rarity of the $5 (and $10 denominations), the series has a mystery unlike any others. The mysterious high serial numbers have now been partially explained by the documented poor quality control of Tudor Press during manufacturing. We are unlikely to ever obtain any additional details concerning these mysterious numbers so it will be up to collectors to solve the riddles or at least bring some order to the chaos.

Our improved ability to analyze replacement serial numbers helps substantially. The multiple printings of replacements listed on the following page were in support of a single printing of regular issue notes.

After the series was issued and complaints were forwarded to the BEP about the poor quality, BEP and Tudor personnel went to Germany for an on site inspection. The Tudor personnel took replacements with them to replace any errors found during the inspection. Errors were indeed found. It is altogether likely that the highest numbers reported were from a special printing of replacements prepared for this inspection trip.

In spite of the fact that Series 541 had only one printing in the sense that we define printings, it was printed over many months. One of the consequences of this slow process was the apparent preparation of multiple printings of replacements for the one printing of regular issues. This conclusion is based upon analysis of the serial number data in the survey.

For the fractional denominations, it is quite clear that probably four printings of replacements were completed in a conventional way. That is a unit of 672,000 pieces four times with the appropriate serial numbers.

Fortunately (only because we like mysteries), the 50¢ denomination shatters this neat conclusion with many numbers beyond the four units that we described above.

Starting ending notes

854/r1 F00000001 F00672000 672,000

854/r2 F00672001 F01344000 672,000

854/r3 F01344001 F02016000 672,000

854/r4 F02016001 F02688000 672,000

854/r10* F10000000 F12000000 672,000

854/r16 F16000000 F17000000 672,000

The numbers for the $1- $10 denominations are both bewildering and simple. In each case "conventional" serial numbers and extraordinarily high numbers are known. We simply call these first and second printings. At least that is what we do for the $5 and $10 denominations. The $1 also has numbers that are from the second unit indicating a total of three printings--two in the conventional way and one with extreme numbers.

We will likely never solve all of the mysteries of Series 541, but we will continue to try and I for one think that this is the best of all worlds! In the catalog we generalize a little and identify six printings of replacements as shown below.

Editorial

Well, I really walked all over myself yesterday! In one of the most embarrassing mistakes as editor, I attributed yesterday's column to Larry Smulczenski instead of Joe Boling. To make matters worse, commentary in the column by me made it confusing instead of just wrong. Obviously, I was thinking about Larry when I typed the by line. I guess I will ask our columnists (and even feature article authors) to include the byline with the manuscript. If Fred can make a mistake, he likely will.

Mail Call

Dear Gram,

I have just received ten different pieces of propaganda that we have been dropping in Pakistan. I will try to scan the fronts and backs if anyone is interested.

Moe Letlow

Dear Gram,

Reply to the security issues... come on, what about some creative solutions, considering that there seem to be a lot of ex-military collectors? most thefts seem not to happen at shows, but after the show, when the collection is on the way to a car. so what about an escort arraignment? and at the show, have someone put their cammies on and hold an m-16a2/m-203 or an old ak-47 (or a demilled/dummy) version? signs on the luggage saying 'caution, bobby-trapped' (or even a dummy stack of tnt with a flashing led) ?

marianne ades

Dear Gram,
I have read of the security issues and suggest the following. Be very careful and totally vigilant. I suggest hiring a guard and provide a security room. That would take care of most of the difficult and risky situations.

lyn knight

Dear Gram,

One option I did not see - does the hotel offer any security option? Whatever, I am willing to pay for the necessary, reliable security. Note the below heading for the latest Gram. The byline lists Larry Smulczenski. Yet, at the end of the piece Joe Boling is mentioned several times. Does Ski live in the Puget Sound area? What gives?

Warner

Dear Editor -- You gave me credit for Joe's article.

PS (to Joe Boling) Since the editor doesn't know who is writing for him and can't keep things straight, how about if I offer you $25 above what you were going to charge him for the two notes?

--Larry

Dear Larry,

Just because you had a byline this week does not mean that you do not have to submit your Thurski column.

(PX/BX/NEX) Dump your dupes! Your classified advertisement for items for sale will be run here for free. Send your ads to the gram. This service is for everyone, most humble dealer or most advanced collector. The point is to make the gram more interesting. Send in a list of items for sale and we will list them here in the gram. In all cases confirm your order via email first.

SPECIAL NOTICE

We are in a mad final push to complete the fourth edition of our MPC bible! The resources section is one of the major areas where work is needed. Place your advertisement now! If you ordered an ad in the past and we have not spoken about it recently, please confirm.

This is your chance to get your message to thousands of collectors and dealers world wide. With an advertisement in The Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates you will receive many extras (these may change over time): listing in the Hot Contact List every month in the Bank Note Reporter, in the book itself, at papermoneyworld and probably right here in the Gram.

Here is what is available:

Full page in resources section $750

*full color available for this position. Monthly payment option available. Make your reservation now!

FOR SALE

Your advertisement of material for sale (related to military money collecting) will be accepted for this section at no charge as a public service.

WANTED

Collectors may submit lists of items wanted for their collections for listing here. Dealers and collectors who have these items are then encouraged to list them or sale in the above section. This is a trial, if you like it, send your list.

Series 003-Number 542, Thurski, January 31, 2002

A Nice Auction Item

By Larry "Ski" Smuczenski

For the last two Thurski's, I've been asking for inputs for the FEST auction but to date I've only received the one from Dave Seelye (in fact he sent two packages) and an email from Marv Mericle. Marv gave me the information on the lots he had which were a scholarship donation from Angus Bruce and will turn them over to me at CPMX. That was fine in that I can write them up and make the final adjustments in that week between CPMX and FEST. David is really to be commended in that he sent two packages stuffed full of notes with instructions that " all proceeds are to go to the Scholarship Fund. That's overly generous David and we all thank you. Now don't get the idea that we are only auctioning things where the proceeds go to the scholarship fund. That's not true. The auction originated to sell quality items to the collectors who have a mutual interest gathered at the FEST who would most appreciate them. So I make one more plea for you to let me know if you have items that y ou want to put up for auction at the FEST, email me with an item description including grade and minimum acceptable bid and I'll take it from there. ""Nuff sed."

Now that I've made my plea, let me tell you about one of the many items that Dave Seelye donated for auction at the FEST with the proceeds going to the scholarship fund. This is a real beaut and believe me it would be a great addition to any MPC collection. I'm really torn about writing about this item in that if I'd keep quite about it, and hide it behind some other lots maybe nobody would notice and then I could own it with a low bid. But this is too good of an item to keep quite about. I even called Dave to confirm that he was donating this to the scholarship fund. Without hesitation he answered "Of course."

The lot consists of a letter and three MPC notes. The letter is written on the stationary of "The First National Bank of St. Mary's" in Leonardtown, Md. and addressed to the "National Central Bank of Baltimore and dated 9 January 1958. It reads--

Gentlemen:

Receipt is acknowledged of your collection letter NO. A 81002, dated 30 December 1957, addressed to the U.S. Treasury Department, Washington, D.C., forwarding for payment the enclosed Military Payment Certificates, Series 521, in the amount of $30.00. Your letter has been referred to this office for consideration and reply.

The possession, use, and exchange of Military Payment Certificates are restricted to authorized personnel as stated on the certificates. Authorized holders of Military Payment Certificates are required to exchange their Military Payment Certificate holdings prior to departure from the overseas MPC area in which they were acquired. However, this office under certain conditions, is authorized to approve claims for exchange of these certificates.

In view of the foregoing, it is suggested that the certificates be returned to the individual from whom they were received . That individual should then forward the certificates to this office by letter, making reference to the above file, stating the source of the certificates, the reason they were not exchanged prior to departure from the oversea MPC area, and his date of departure from the oversea area.

It is signed by a "B. H. Burch" who was titled " Asst., Field Service Division" and there was an enclosure of "MPC ($30.00)"

First of all, I had never heard of St. Mary's or Leonardtown, so I grabbed my trusty atlas and found Leonardtown about fifty miles almost straight south of Washington D.C. and noted a current population of 1475. St. Mary's was another fifteen miles down the road. Both of them are on the point of land where the Potomac River and Chesapeake Bay join each other. The $30.00 in MPC that you read about in the letter are indeed three Series 521 $10 bills. The notes are nice clean notes that easily grade Fine or a little better. There are a number of staple holes in the upper left hand corner which can be lined up when the bills are held together and indicate that they where at one time stapled in mass to some correspondence. These notes all look good enough to be included in most collections.

My interpretation of the letter is that someone tried to pay a debt or a bill to the Bank in Baltimore with the three MPC $10.00 bills. That bank probably tried to do their customer a service by submitting the notes to the Treasury for redemption. The Treasury in turn forwarded the letter to this bank. This letter is the response from this little bank to the bank in Baltimore which originated the request.

I personally did not know that there was a procedure in place to redeem MPC stateside as indicated in the last sentence of the second paragraph. I thought that if you didn't redeem them in the theatre of use, you were out of luck. The amazing part to me is that a bank in such a small town would be the focal point for such a procedure.

It appears that who ever had these three notes could not or did not comply with the instructions in the third paragraph, as the notes remained with the above letter.

I think you will agree that this letter with the notes is a great piece of MPC lore. The only thing better would be if the letter had listed the three notes by serial number, but the staple holes prove that the three traveled together. We will have this jewel on exhibit at CPMX and at FEST before it is auctioned.

Editorial

Ron Waddell has provided a very nice list of MPC for sale. Please see the For Sale section. We have not done a good job with this section in the past few months. Hopefully, we can correct that, but it can be done only with your help. Do you have material for sale? Make a list and send it in!

Mail Call

Dear Gram,

I am not sure if this is of interest to anyone but I thought I'd let you know anyway. I finished my last volume on Surinam currency (published next week but already sold out) so I have started research for my BMA and AMLira book to be out sometime soon - don't hold your breath.

Why I am writing though: I came across some details on the French Equatorial African notes ref WWII Bible page 124. These were printed by the Bank of England printing works in April 1941 in the following quantities: Frs 5 32,000,000 notes Frs 25 4,200,000 notes Frs 100 1,300,000 notes Frs 1,000 85,000 notes More details such as specs, cost of printing are available if interesting.

Regards Theo van Elmpt

Dear Theo,

Wow, what a wonderful message! All good news. Thanks for the great info on FEA and we sure look forward to your new book. Actually, I did not know that the new BMA book would also include AM lira. All the better though!

We hope to hear from you as your work continues. If the Gram can help gather information or anything else, please write. I am sure that Gramsters would like to help.

Three airports are reasonably available for the Fest. In order of proximity they are:

Toledo

Cleveland

Detroit (Metro)

All three are reasonable. If you can arrive early enough AND coordinate it well ahead, every attempt will be made to pick you up at the airport to save on rental cars. Festers are encouraged to coordinate among themselves for rides. We will also run notices in the Gram and, finally, we will try to coordinate for Festers to run pickups from Fest central.

Hot Contact List

Below is the BNR Press Hot Contact List. This list serves several functions. Obviously it is an outreach by the dealers listed for your business. Most of them buy and sell MPC. Others organize shows or publish periodicals. They have supported the new Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates with their advertising. They deserve your support and patronage.

Secondly, this is a draft from the book that participating dealers should check for correctness. Finally, dealers who are not on it and want to can still get their ads in if they act promptly. Respond to this email or call (419) 732-6683.

We are sorry if the format is a little messed up here in the Gram, we are not sure of how to fix it!

More on Fest Security

By Marcus Turner

Once again Phil has come up with an excellent item for discussion. Let me start by stating that I do not support the idea of having a full-time armed guard on duty. Fred has always told me that the most secure location for your collection is on the bourse floor. The closest thing that we have to a bourse is the meeting room. Lots of As it relates to the Fest, I believe that our collections are most vulnerable to theft when we are traveling to and from the event, when we are transferring our baggage from our vehicles to and from our rooms and when we all be out dining in the evenings. I have little or no concern about the room security. We typically transfer our collections Employing a guard would not only introduce a totally unknown person to the situation but would attract undue attention to the room, the event our ourselves. We should probably concentrate on addressing vulnerabilities that I have listed above. It might be a good idea to employ a guard for a small time slot when we are out dining as a group. I think that bigger issue is to address how to travel with our collections, take steps to insure our security when transferring our baggage and how to not attract undue attention from other hotel guests. Security is a huge issue, but I do not believe that a hired guard To take this a step further, perhaps we should have a session at Fest On security.

Topics could include:

- * Security at Home
- * Security at the Show
- * Security on the Road
- * Air travel
- * Travel Abroad (including clearing customs)
- * Documenting your collection
- * Protection of collection from Physical Damage while in Transit
- * Shipping banknotes

Feel Free to add to the list

We will have some excellent resources in attendance.

Editorial

The first two letters below are about the 1/6 mark paper tokens that Joe Boling (called Larry Smulczenski at the time) wrote about in the Gram. This seems to be a continuing saga. You probably should read those letters before continuing here.

I have known about these pieces for a long time, but have not been too interested in them. I sort of dismissed them as elaborate versions of local chits. Also, I probably thought that they were not so significant because I did not have any! Now that I have a pair, I like them more! However, the real thing that changed my mind was the letter from Tom Warburton, below.

As Tom says in his letter, he included a scan of the letter that he had received from TOC H with his letter to me. Well eventually I was able to down load the letter and have a look.

The writer quotes (and shows) a reference to the notes in a June 1945 publication where it is stated that the notes were in use on April 14, 1945. Wow, really early.

Tom will probably be amazed to know what I thought was the most significant part. The legend at the center of the notes "TOC H RESTAURANT" was mostly meaningless to me. I thought that TOC was for "tactical operations center," or some such thing. Quick, you North Americans, before you read farther, do you know what TOC H is?

The letter that Tom received had the website for TOC H: www.toch.org.uk. When I went there, I found that TOC H is an important charity in England. It was founded during WWI. I could not find anything about what it did during WWII, but this information in itself elevated the importance of these notes in my mind.

Back to the 1945 article. It appeared in the internal journal of TOC H. It points out that 1/6 mark was 1 pence. Furthermore, it explains that the club had been open for a week and was operated by three English women who had traveled to Germany for that purpose.

Finally, the writer of the letter forwarded Tom's request to some fellows who had been there so there is some hope of finding more information. Even if we do not, we have far more info than before!

=====

Mail Call

Sorry, Ski,

I put them [1/6 mark tokens] in the mail to him [editor] as soon as the column was submitted. To the editor - you obviously cut the lead article on series 541 right out of the book manuscript, because it has two references to other pages that are not present in your gram treatment. You need an editor.

[written in response to this comment by Ski << Since the editor doesn't know who is writing for him and can't keep things straight, how about if I offer you $25 above what you were going to charge him for the two notes? >>]

Joe

Dear Joe,

Thanks, I look forward to receiving the notes in spite of the poor editorial work!

Editor

Dear Joe,
re your piece in #540, refer back to #524 . Susequent to that I wrote to Toc H. Attached is their reply - I'll advise of any further information.

Tom W

Dear Esteemed Editor,

I recently received an email from a friend with a joke in it. I usually do not keep them longer than it takes to read them, but this one made remember my active duty days. Some of you were probably involved in naming an operation, program or some other piece of work, and sometimes when abbreviated, they gave us a laugh. The following is something that will likely make you laugh too; Almost 150 years ago, President Lincoln found it necessary to hire a private investigator, Mr. Alan Pinkerton. He was actually the beginning of the Secret Service. Since that time federal police authority has grown to a large number of agencies - FBI, CIA, INS, IRS, DEA, BATF, SS, ATF, etc. Now Congress is considering a proposal for another agency; the "Federal Air Transportation Airport Security Service." Can't you see it now, the new service in their black outfits with their initials in large white letters across their backs? FATASS I hope you enjoyed the above because it had me laughing eve rytime I thought about it this evening

Howard A. Daniel III

Dear Steamy,

We have received a few jokes here at HQ, but have always resisted including them in the Gram. Somehow, this one just seemed appropriate.

Editor

Dear Editor:

Some time ago, the Gram solicited suggestions for the design of a T-shirt commemorating FEST III. I have seen nothing more. I don't have any grand ideas for the design. I can only suggest using the 2000 or 2001 design updated to 2002.

But, I would be most disappointed if the idea dies (I lust for T-shirts, I'll take two). So I encourage all FESTers to show some interest! Let our esteemed Editor know it is important.

Warner

Dear Warner,

Thanks for writing. For the record, your steamed editor is not the project manager on this. Doug Bell is. However, I am sure that he appreciates the input. I too want some shirts. I will point out that you suggested to be sure to include some multi X sizes.

See you soon.

Editor

Dear Gram,

I received FOUR copies of Gram 542/2. Anyone want my three extra copies? No charge!

David Klinger

Dear David,

Why would you want to give these away. You might be able to list them in the For Sale section and make some retirement money. Sorry about the inconvenience, we will extend your subscription by three issues.

Obviously, we had some trouble sending Gram 542. If you did not receive ANY Grams write and we will send you one. It will be helpful if you tell us the number after the slash that you normally receive. If you received one copy but are jealous of David for receiving four, well, write to David, he is giving them away.

Three airports are reasonably available for the Fest. In order of proximity they are:

Toledo

Cleveland

Detroit (Metro)

All three are reasonable. If you can arrive early enough AND coordinate it well ahead, every attempt will be made to pick you up at the airport to save on rental cars. Festers are encouraged to coordinate among themselves for rides. We will also run notices in the Gram and, finally, we will try to coordinate for Festers to run pickups from Fest central.

Hot Contact List

Below is the BNR Press Hot Contact List. This list serves several functions. Obviously it is an outreach by the dealers listed for your business. Most of them buy and sell MPC. Others organize shows or publish periodicals. They have supported the new Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates with their advertising. They deserve your support and patronage.

Secondly, this is a draft from the book that participating dealers should check for correctness. Finally, dealers who are not on it and want to can still get their ads in if they act promptly. Respond to this email or call (419) 732-6683.

We are sorry if the format is a little messed up here in the Gram, we are not sure of how to fix it!

C-Day Adventures

By Stephen T. Schoch with Brad Peacock

The following is some memories of a friend who I asked to pass along for us MPC'ers. If Fred doesn't mess it up, it should be fun reading. Enjoy.

In Korea in 1960 as a young soldier I was in a C-day. I probably had two bucks in my pocket. The KATUSA (Korean Augmentation to the United States Army) who worked with us were not supposed to have MPC and some were black marketers. But we changed theirs for them anyway. The compound was closed and those who had a stash at home lost out. Of course that is the whole reason for C-day. The mama-sans from the village were throwing MPC over the fence with their business card promising a real good time for anyone who would change the money and bring it back. The guards on duty before we turned in our money made out like bandits. Later on in the day the perimeter was lined with MPC blowing in the wind.

In Vietnam in 1970 I was a sergeant first class in charge of a communications site on a hill outside of the defensive perimeter of Cam Ranh Bay. I was supposed to have a Lieutenant or Captain but at this time did not. I had about 35-40 men and two other outfits had about 20 more, also 8 civilians. Everything that happened on this site was my baby. Among five or six more hats I wore was Currency Conversion Officer. In my safe was an envelope marked Confidential NOFORN (no foreign nationals), I forget how it was marked but it was C-day instructions. Also in the safe was the widows and orphans fund, money I had confiscated from the housegirls and troops I had caught dealing dope. Partly piasters and partly MPC. Anyway one morning early I was woken up by the night shift supervisor and told to call battalion. I did and the Sergeant Major told me today was C-day. The instructions said to lock up the compound (it was of course). Theoretically everybody in Vietnam was restricted to their base or wherever they were caught in travel. All PX's, NCO and Officer's clubs were closed planes were grounded etc. Nobody was to go in or out, except me. To collect everybody's money, make an inventory, and note the name of anyone who had $100 or more. This was just before payday (this does not agree with 10-7-70) and everybody was pretty broke, that was the idea of the date, least cash in circulation. The gamblers and savers had to make deals with buddies to stay off the $100 list (they would be questioned by the CID), and I had to do the same with the W&O fund. I had several who were saving up money for an R&R trip, the CO cleared them somehow. I collected about 3-4000 dollars. The civilians had the most individual money. We had no mess hall, we drove ten miles in an armed convoy three times a day. Anyway I drove to battalion with just a little hassle at the gate and turned in the money to the regular pay officer. It was all counted three times. We would be responsible for any shortages. Then he went to the finance of

Sergeant First Class Stephen T. Schoch, 34th Signal Battalion

What really freaks me [Brad] out is Stephen's phrase "Later on in the day the perimeter was lined with MPC blowing in the wind." - Stop and imagine that for a moment.....

Editorial

Today is the last time that we will run the nice list of MPC for sale by Ron Waddell. This is a very nice list of notes. We thank Ron for sending it. We consider the sales items an important feature of the Gram and encourage all of you to send in lists of things for sale. We have a report that Ron received an order before he had even received the Gram! Your Gram sells!

Mail Call

Dear Gram,

I found a Web Site which may be of interest to Gramsters:

www.psywar.org

This site includes most all propaganda leaflets used from WWI to present (includes Afghanistan).

Pictures and descriptions are included - and more.

David Klinger

Dear Editor—

All of a sudden with this issue, some of the lines go flying off to the far right of the screen resulting in scrolling back and forth to read the whole sentence. Is there a way to fix this for those of us who are hand-eye coordination challenged?

8) WW

Dear W,

We do not have a clue about what happened.

Editor

Dear Editor,

I feel a little presumptuous because I have never been to a FEST, but I have a suggestion. Have you considered having a "business meeting"? I use the term advisedly. A meeting where the attendees discuss the state of MPC collecting, where it is going, what we want to see happen, the state of the Gram, new activities, the future in general. Nothing high pressure, just a gathering of ideas. Is appropriate? Does it fit the tone of the FEST? Is it necessary or worthwhile? Your call, I am just brainstorming.

Warner

Dear Warner, Hm, a business meeting. Well we have scheduled the first elections of officers for the group for Grond Hog's Day 2222.

Ok, seriously (hard for me sometimes), yes, a business meeting is in order. We included most of the functions over the three days. Will tentatively put it on the schedule. We expect to have a draft schedule out on Wed.

AMC Riddle Exposed

By Theo Van Elmpt

I have the following details on the Danish invasion currency. Printed on Portals paper by the BoE printing works in September 1944.

The following numbers were printed:

- 25 oere 2,000,000 notes
- 1 krone 1,000,000 notes
- 5 kroner 1,000,000 notes
- 10 kroner 1,000,000 notes
- 50 kroner 1,000,000 notes
- 100 kroner 1,335,000 notes

The initial intention was to print notes in units so they could be used for other countries as well. The War Office was getting a little tired of having to redo the same thing for each individual country. Not surprisingly, this idea did not take at all. These unit notes were designed and some printed.

The kroner notes are based on this design (99% the same). The unit notes were in English. The final notes, as we know, were in Danish. Initially a 50 oere and a 20 kroner note were planned. This plan was dropped. Instead a 100 kroner note was included in the series. The 50 oere note was scrapped. Hope this of interest.

Editorial

It is really exciting to have the above report from Theo Van Elmpt. Theo is one of the great current numismatic researchers. His BAFSV book is in a class by itself. We hope that he will contribute regularly to the Gram. (Theo would you like a monthly, bimonthly, weekly, daily column?).

To top things off his report concerns one of our favorite mysteries—kroner AMC. This is the first new information that we have had on these notes in 20 years or so. Wonderful! And what great info it is too!

Sure printing quantities are only part of a numismatic story, but in many ways they are the first part! Now if we can find out where, for how long, and by how many troops the notes were used, we will be well on our way to understanding these notes.

Mail Call

Dear Gram,

I'd like to thank you and the Gram for the excellent results I got through the "Forsale" section of the Gram. I bought a nice collection of MPC from a former military gentleman (now 89) which added quite a few notes to my collection and upgraded several more. I thought it might be of interest to show how easy it is to dispose of these duplicates through the Gram (the wonders of the computer age).

I decided on Wednesday to advertise the notes in the Gram. On Thursday, I put the list in the form of a letter to you, and e-mailed it late that afternoon. I'm not a real whiz with the computer so about 10 PM I checked my e-mail to see if you had advised of any problems with receiving the attachment. I already had five orders, along with two copies of the Gram. One of the orders actually beat the Gram to my computer.

Over the next two days, Friday and Saturday, I received eight more orders. Quite a few were for notes that were already spoken for. I shipped five of the orders by Saturday and the rest will go Monday. I "hope" the checks were mailed as fast.

Of the total notes offered (58), as of Sunday noon, forty-two have been sold. In less than two weeks, all transactions should have been completed and everyone happy. At least I hope so. I think the notes were accurately graded, and any can be returned for any reason, so we'll have to see if I get any back.

As a suggestion to others, selling through the Gram is an excellent way of disposing of duplicates. When I bought the collection, I had to pay more than the Green Sheet bid, so selling the group to a dealer would not have been too economical. By selling in the Gram, I get my money back and other collectors get a good deal.

Thanks again. Also, I'm still trying to decide on Fest III. Will let you know.

Take Care,

Ron

Ron,

Thanks (very much) for the report. Yes, the Gram does sell. I made that pitch yesterday in the editorial. I guess that I should have waited a day! Your good results are particularly important when you consider that we have not been consistently offering material in the Gram so many people probably have not been checking. I hope that we can change that!

You really should come to the Fest. I can guarantee that you will have a good time! There is nothing like it!

Editor

Dear Joe [Boling],

In your column you mentioned a chit printed on the back of a section of map and asked if anyone could identify the area of the map. There's an area east of Cambridge (Just SW of NewMarket) that contains names similar to the ones you mentioned. Below is a link to an online map of this area. <http://www.streetmap.co.uk/streetmap.dll?grid2map?X=560500&Y=260500&zoom=4> >>

Russ,

Dear Russ,

I've already sent the chit to Fred, and did not keep a copy, so I'll let him compare the two.

Thanks,

Joe

Dear Gram,

Just wanted to pass on information on 2 items I have- one is a 1/6 Mark Token I guess similar to the others- this has text on top "Talbot House - Once of Poperinghe and Ypers" Then the value and "VALID ONLY AT / TOC H RESTAURANT / LUBBECKE" Uniface.

Second item: One Penny 75 x 65mm. At top, "1D CCG 1D", then "ONE PENNY" and 3 lines of text following: "Valid only at / EMPIRE CLUB / Bad Salzuflen" Printed in red, with yellow letters CCG- wonder what they stand for? Anyone hazard a guess, or definitely know?

Neil S.

Dear Neil,

Thanks for the information. However, PLEASE do not send things like this as an attachment to an email. It took me an hour to get the darn thing open! It was a real pain!

Now important data on AM lire!

By Theo Van Elmpt

Thank you for the offer but I think no [on the offer of a regular column. Nevertheless, here is something else you may like to know. Ref. WWII Remembered page 276/AM Lira The change from 1943 to 1943A series took place on 1 April 1944 The first serial numbers to bear the amounts in words were:

- 5 lire A 68640001 A
- 10 lire A 22176001 A
- 50 lire A 49308001 A
- 100 lire A 38508001 A
- 500 lire A 07812001 A
- 1000 lire A 04192001 A

All notes with these and higher numbers therefore had amount in words. The 1 lira and 2 lire notes were never printed with the amount in words (so we can stop hoping to find one).

Wartime drop addresses
Reviewed by Howard A. Daniel III

The January 28 issue of "Linn's Stamp News has an item, Wartime drop addresses, by an unknown editor. It describes an article in the November issue of the "Posthorn," the journal of the Scandanavian Collectors Club about the Swedish World War II undercover addresses. These addresses were used to get around mail being mailed between enemies. For information about this club and journal, the item has the SSC Executive Secretary's address at P.O. Box 13196, El Cajon, CA 92022.

Editorial

The deed is done. Yes, the book has gone to the printer. I do not know how many false starts there were or even when we really started to work on this edition, but I know that it is (finally) finished. Actually, there are a few little lose and bothersome ends to resolve and there certainly will still be plenty of opportunity for disaster. If none of these disasters is too great, the book will be sent out before CPMX. It will then be available over the counter in Chicago and then at the Fest!

It is always exciting to get rid of a project. It is then of course more exciting to see the project finished and held in one's hands. This time there has been an extra twist—the Gram and Gramsters. I have been able to share many of the frustrations with you as we struggled. This has been a helpful and enjoyable innovation.

Speaking of innovation, the book includes some of those. Some in the way of new discoveries, others in the way we have assembled the thing.

I will tell you some more about this in the next few days.

Theo VanElmpt declines to have a column, but on two consecutive days he provides great information. Theo, call it a column, call it an article, call it a letter to the editor, but please write often. I assure you that I and many others love this information!

Dear Gram

- I would like to offer some notes in the MPC Gram. I will donate 20% of the sales price to the Scholarship program. I was impressed with how quickly the other notes sold and hope these will find some new homes.

Thanks

TIM

Dear Tim,

Thank you very much for your list of notes for sale and of course for the generous offer of a commission for the scholarship fund. This is a wonderful and generous offer. Hopefully, a bunch of Gramsters will adopt your notes. See the list below in the sale section.

Maloy in, Warburton out

Kevin Maloy (aka MPC West) has figured out a way to juggle his schedule and make it to the Fest. Maloy is an original Fester therefore attending his third Fest. On a sadder note, Tom Warburton (the only past European Fester) must withdraw from the Fest for medical reasons. Because Tom has a medical excuse (and because he is a past Fester) he will receive credit for attending the Fest AND will receive partial pay!

MPC Exhibits

By Joe Boling

It's time to submit your exhibit applications for Jacksonville -- oh, I forgot. You guys are going to be at something called an MPCFest, worrying about armed guards, while I am in Jacksonville supervising judging for the ANA spring show.

Well, in the event you live in the southeast quadrant of the US and don't want to visit frost central in March, come to Jacksonville and let those who do not collect MPC see what you have. The only way to show a full wall-to-wall exhibit of MPC (all the collectible notes, some replacements, some literature, a crate splinter or two [Joe, sorry there is only one splinter known!--Ed) is to show it at Memphis or the spring ANA. At the summer ANA you have a seven case limit, and that is not enough room for the exhibit I just outlined. At the spring ANA you get fifteen cases to divide up however you like--one humongous exhibit, or a dozen small ones.

If you don't have the ANA exhibit applications for 2002, download them from the ANA web site at www.money.org; then fax or email the one for Jacksonville back to Colorado (don't rely on the US Postal non-Service). The application deadline for the 2002 spring ANA is 11 February. At Memphis, the space you get is a matter of negotiation with Mart Delger.

Memphis exhibit invitations have already gone out, so if you want to show notes there and have not requested space yet, write to Martin Delger immediately: 9677 Paw Paw Lake Drive, Mattawan, MI 49071, 616-668-4234 after 1800hrs. As far as I know, he is not yet wired.

At the spring ANA show, exhibits are grouped into clusters of like material (US coins; world coins; tokens and medals; paper money; and so forth). The top two exhibits from each cluster are moved to the best-of-show round for further judging. Bad news; some of you may have seen the recent announcement that the Franklin Mint is getting out of numismatics completely. That means that they will no longer be manufacturing and donating that luscious gold medal for the spring best of show award. I don't know if there is one available for 2002, but if there is, it is doubtless the last one. (There will also no longer be a nice proof banquet medal for the summer show, but that's another story.)

2002 is the first year for the new Asian Numismatics exhibit class at the summer ANA. If you have an exhibit that can no longer be shown in a class because of too many wins, or if you find there is more competition than you like in the major paper money classes, see if it can be tailored to fit Asia; if so, it can be entered there. The class description is "All numismatic material issued or used in areas from the Dardanelles east to the Bering Strait and south to (but excluding) Australia and New Zealand." That means that MPC used in Asia are eligible, even though not issued by any Asian nation. However, as chief judge, I would probably not allow Operation Crossroads short snorters (from the Bikini nuclear tests).

There is a limit of one exhibit (normal case limits) per entrant for New York (application deadline 3 June 2002). For Baltimore in 2003, the regular rules are in effect--up to four exhibits, up to seven cases each. In fact, starting in 2003, the seven-case limit applies to ALL ANA summer show exhibits, not just paper money and other exhibits of "large material." So, if you have a token exhibit that needs seven cases, you can start showing it at summer shows in 2003. If you are an inexperienced exhibitor and want some guidelines, go to www.pnna.org and see my exhibit guidance there; or go to www.money.org and find John Eshbach's exhibit article. You can also find the rules for spring and summer ANA shows (with the exhibit applications) and the exhibit scoring criteria at that site.

So you are going to be chopping holes in the ice in Port Clinton in March and can't afford to go to another show in 2002? Then exhibit wherever you are! If there are no nearby shows that include exhibits, press the show organizers to change their policies (particularly if the shows are non- commercial, sponsored by non-profit educational organizations). The way to generate more collectors of MPC is to show what you have; the material sells itself. More collectors means more dealers buying MPC over the counter, which means more available for you to collect, and higher prices 25 years from now when you are ready to sell. And after you have exhibited, send Fred a note so that your effort can be recognized in this rag.

Editorial

A few months ago I received the following letter from a Gramster. "Considering the price of books these days, why can't you just publish a supplement to the MPC book. There has not been all that much new material."

This was a real letter although I have had to paraphrase it because it is currently lost. I have been waiting for the opportune moment to respond.

As you probably guess, I quite strongly disagree with the writer's basic premise.

First, there has been more new information on MPC in the past three years than any other period in MPC collecting history. The book has expanded from 286 to 400 pages. Admittedly, some of the expansion is taken up by features that are not directly related to "new" material, but certainly 75 pages of the expansion are the result of new information, discovery, and important research features.

On the surface the idea of a supplement to save collectors' money sound attractive. Indeed, not only has this been tried in numismatics, it has been tried in our specialty!

The very first book devoted to military money by A. J. Swails in the 1960s also had a supplement (our MPC literature specialists can tell us about it!). Other tried it too.

Frankly, my idea of publishing a book on MPC replacements was sort of a way of creating a supplement for the MPC book. Heck, the MPC book itself is sort of a supplement for WWII Remembered although the time line on that sort of messes up the argument. The idea in these cases was to create complete titles that could stand on their own even if the subject matter was sort of extracted from the larger, more broad title.

In many ways the problems of a supplement boils down to money and marketing. The first problem is that a supplement is mostly of interest only to those who have the basic/original title. That is not all bad, but one of the greatest benefits of these books is that they create collectors. They really do.

While the price of a supplement might be lower than a new edition, proportionally it would be higher. The costs of marketing the smaller number of supplements would be the same as marketing a new edition.

Finally, a supplement does not give a very satisfying product. Material is then split between two different books. When done correctly, a book is a companion, an old friend (or even a new friend). My personal copy of the current (third) edition is about worn out. It has notations throughout, sticky notes hanging from the edges and many other signs of frequent use.

When the new book comes out, the old one will be retired to an honored place on my book shelf. Even though replaced in daily use, it will still be used occasionally. Sometimes it will answer the question "When did we know that?" At other times it might be more available and suitable for answering a question like "What was the issue date for Series 611?"

Thank you for your question. I hope that you appreciate the answer even if you do not like it.

Mail Call

Dear Editor,

I CONGRATULATE YOU ON THE DELIVERY OF THE 4TH EDITION TO THE PRINTERS!!!!

Can you tell me about the "special" edition that may be available? Now when does the replacement book go to the printers? Before or after WW2 Remembered's new edition?

David

Dear David,

Thanks, I think. I hate to add fuel to your fire, but on my personal schedule before either of the forthcoming books will (probably) be an AMC book. That book is actually quite advanced. It was just about ready for publication in 1993 (!) when Joe and I started serious work on Remembered. I shelved it at that time in favor of Remembered. I would like to get that out one of these days soon.

However, we also have some "non-military books" (gasp) to get out in the next few months. On the other hand, I use the non-military label liberally. The new Hessler on essay, proof , and specimen notes includes MPC as does the new Bart error book. I guess that people will realize soon that "MPC is everywhere!"

Yes, there will be a special "collectors' edition" of the new MPC book. I will give details on that within a few days, but I think that you will like it.

Editor

Dear Editor,

In regard to Howard Daniel's mention of Swedish "drop addresses," somewhere around here I have an entire booklet on the subject of those secret POBs. They are not so secret these days since there has been a lot of research on them.

Herb

Dear Gram,

Would the person to whom I sent the wrapper for the $1.00 Series 661 M.P.C.s, PLEASE acknowledge as having received it or not!!!

Dick Balbaton Doric C&C

Dear Editor,

I spoke to one gentleman who worked for the contractor RMK in Cam Ranh Bay during the Vietnam War. He was on board a cargo ship (unfortunately he could not recall the name of the ship) and recalls seeing among the cargo several wooden containers marked "MPC." He knew "MPC" was the abbreviation for the red dollars. The ship was sunk the next night by the communist special agents' explosive before it was completely unloaded. The time frame was middle of 1968, shortly after the famous Tet attack. Is there any record of this event? If the MPCs were destroyed, were all the notes replaced? If so there must be thousands of replacement notes out there. Would this create a huge gap in serial numbers?

Best regards,

Trung T. Nguyen

Dear Sir,

I cannot think of any supporting information for this report. Stories of sunk notes are always popular with collectors. Of course if we can verify the report, it will create more questions.

Fred

Philippine Guerrilla Posts

by Herman Herst, Jr. Reviewed by Howard A. Daniel III

I recently acquired the July-September 1999 issue of the "Bulletin of the American Historical Collection Foundation." This bulletin is published by the foundation from their headquarters in Manila. Sara Collins Medina is the editor and the address is 15 Amsterdam Street, Merville Park, Paranaque, Metro Manila, Philippines. The article of interest in it for me was "Philippine Guerrilla Posts by Hermean Herst, Jr.

He starts off by describing the Spanish-American War and Emilio Aguinaldo, the first president of an independent Philippines. When the United States government arrived to claim the country, he led a rebellion against it. During the rebellion, his government started issuing stamps in late 1898 and there are five them illustrated in the article. When the Japanese Army arrived, another guerrilla war was started against them, and stamps were also issued. He writes that it was believed that the Manuel L. Quezon, president of the commonwealth authorized the stamps, but the order was placed by a Colonel Wendell W. Fertig, commander of the 10th Military District on Mindanao.

This colonel was also a stamp collector, so he must have been really enthusiastic about being involved in creating them. It is said they were printed in Australia, and maybe in Sydney, but there is no documentation about their manufacture. Does any Gramster have this information? One of the stamps is illustrated, and one on an envelope with "Confidential" and "By Officer Courier" is over stamped on it. Herman writes that the stamps were intended for use only by the military, however, some civilian mail was allowed with them. The stamps have "FREE PHILIPPINES" across the top; "GUERRILLA POSTAL SERVICE" in two lines across the center; "2" in the lower left and right corner, and "TWO CENTAVOS" and "SERIES 1943" in two lines at the bottom. Was Colonel Fertig also responsible for printing guerrilla notes? He writes that a Colonel Walter H. Adler (U.S. Army Retired) living at 265 Pasadena Avenue, Elyria, OH 44035 is seeking information about these World War II stamps.

This colonel did his research in 1979, so he might not be alive today, but I am sure one of you Gramster philatelists living in Ohio might check up on him. If he passed away, his research might still be in possession of his heirs. They might allow you to copy it, so it can be placed in a library available to others interested in Philippines history. The stamps also might be published in the next edition of "World War II Remembered." The author of this article lives in Boca Raton, FL and he was assisted by Bill Hornadge of Dubbo, New South Wales, Australia in writing it. There are no addresses for them, but I am sure one or more of you Gramsters can find them. Good luck and good hunting in finding these military stamps and more about them.

[Herman Herst was the most prolific philatelic authors ever. I also believe that he was the most entertaining. Unfortunately, Herman is no longer with us, he is at the great stamp show.—ed]

Editorial

I received a wonderful package in the mail yesterday. I think that you will be as surprised about what it is as I was when I first learned of it. It is a book. A world War II book. Probably neither of those facts surprise you much. Now the title.

"The Pay Services of the Canadian Army Overseas in the War of 1939-1945"! Wow, is that amazing or what?! As so often with me there is a story to go with the acquisition. Joe Boling found this fantastic title on a book list about 10 months ago. As I recall instead of simply calling to order it, he took the chance of losing it by contacting me first. As luck would have it, the book was not sold when he did contact the firm. He paid for the book with his credit card giving my shipping address.

Then we waited, waited, and waited some more. The charge was processed in due course on his credit card, but no book. Many months and many inquiries passed. As you can imagine, I was unhappy. When I did not know that the book existed, it did not bother me to not have it. Once I knew that it exists, I wanted it and I wanted it fast. I also worried about the possibilities of finding another copy would not be good.

Well, the book finally arrived. This serves as the notice to Joe that it has arrived. He may have some comments about its delay that I do not know, but it is HERE and it is MINE!

The first amazing thing is the letter dated Sep 26, 1950 found loose in the book. Basically, it is a letter of transmittal of a review copy to the Toronto Globe and Mail. That is not too surprising. The letter is from H. T. Goodeve, president of (are you ready for this?) the Royal Canadian Army Pay Corps Association! Wow.

A google.com search of the internet yielded some useful information. Although the association no longer exists, it merged with another organization creating one of slightly broader focus.

It looks like this book and the successor of the RCAPCA might be sources for some great research. I will review the book soon.

MPC Gram:

I need some help please. I am a new MPC collector and am trying to locate an MPC pricing guide. Does the MPC world have a pricing guide similar to either the Red Book or Grey Sheet for coin collectors?

Thank you for you help.

Dear Editor,

Thank you for sending the visually challenged version of the gram. It was a treat!

SJ

Dear Editor

Kudos to you and your esteemed staff. Love the new type and size. I can actually read it without my glasses. Still receiving two copies, but hey, it's better than not getting one at all. A thought about the special edition book. How about a signed leather bound limited edition for those who attend the FEST! Produce only ten extra copies which could be auctioned off on ebay or the FEST auction with proceeds going to the scholarship fund. Might increase FEST participation and increase the scholarship fund at the same time. Regards Al

Dear Al,

Wow, we seem to have fixed a problem we did not know that we had. Furthermore, we did not try to do it!

You have a great idea there about the Fest auction. The number one copy of the special collectors' edition of the new MPC book will be put in the Fest auction. Probably we will put some other copies and related items in too. The auction will be available for anyone to bid so it should be interesting.

Hot Contact List

Below is the BNR Press Hot Contact List. This list serves several functions. Obviously it is an outreach by the dealers listed for your business. Most of them buy and sell MPC. Others organize shows or publish periodicals. They have supported the new Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates with their advertising. They deserve your support and patronage.

Secondly, this is a draft from the book that participating dealers should check for correctness. Finally, dealers who are not on it and want to can still get their ads in if they act promptly. Respond to this email or call (419) 732-6683.

We are sorry if the format is a little messed up here in the Gram, we are not sure of how to fix it!

We Can Learn from this

By Larry "Ski" Smulczenski

A couple days before I left for the FUN show, I was surfing through some of my favorite search areas on eBay without finding anything of interest. I was about to call it quits, but decided to just scan the first couple of pages of the general listing of World Bank Notes. On about the third or fourth page, I saw a listing for "The Govt of Ceylon 1942 UNC Specimen Banknote."

I scrolled down to the picture and there was the emergency 25c note issued by the government when small change became scarce during WWII. Now there was something of interest. I knew I had the issued note, and I even remembered that I had bought it from Leo May, but this was a Specimen. I grabbed my well used copy of World War II Remembered and reread the paragraph preceding the listing of these notes. I confirmed that this was an emergency issue and that it was a local printing, The emergency notes circulated for a short period of time until the contracted for notes arrived.

Since the emergency notes were dated 1 January 1942 and the contracted notes dated 1 February 1942 that could have been a very short period of time. Additionally, You don't usually find a specimen of a locally printed note. Countries are interested in taking care of the emergency rather than worrying about the documentation that goes along with a monetary issue in less hectic times. The scan of the note showed what looked like a rubber stamping of six zero's and the word SPECIMEN in the lower left corner were the serial number normally appeared right above the date January 1, 1942. I really wanted this little gem for my collection. But it wasn't going to be easy because the end date for the auction was on the Saturday of the FUN show. I figured I would throw in a cursory bid and then hope that Fred or someone would have a computer at the show that we could use to place a bid later in the week. I entered a $25 bid and found that someone already was at $26. I guess I expected that. If it was a good note, you weren't going to be able to steal it. I was willing to go higher, but decided to let it stand and make a pitch for it later in the week.

When we got to the show, I went to Fred's table--BNR Press. Right next to us was Remy Bourne as has become the custom at this show. We have enjoyed this arrangement through the years. I looked to the other side and couldn't believe my eyes! Who was setting up right next to us but eBay. I couldn't believe my luck. They had two portable computers on display and they allowed customers to come by and use them to make bids or check eBay auctions. I discussed the note with Fred and he confirmed that it was a great note.

We decided that we had to some get to one of the computers so that I could place a bid near the end of the auction. Of course over the four days we became good friends with the girls working the eBay booth. The bid had risen to $51.00 and I was beginning to feel real good about my chances. I had decided to put in a bid of $150. Fred said "Don't lose it because your trying to save a buck". So we decided that I would bump that up to $250. The girls let me on one of the computers at about 10 minutes left in the auction. The bid had only gone up to $52.00. So with just over a minute left, I entered my bid of $250, thinking that the bidder that was leading had to have a reserve in there that would take my bid over $100. To my surprise, the computer showed that I was the leading bidder at $56.75. He only had a $3.75 pad in his bid. Those remaining seconds seemed to be an eternity, and I fully expected someone to throw in a last second bid. But to my surprise, no one did and I was elated when the screen flashed "auction has ended." Fred's only comment was--"You stole it."

I couldn't wait to get the note and it finally arrived last week. I ripped open the envelope as I walked out of the post office and there it was, a nice crisp uncirculated note just as advertised. The word SPECIMEN and the 000000 looked just as they appeared on the scan, as if they were applied to an unnumbered note. BUT, something bothered me about the note. The paper just felt a bit too smooth or something. I couldn't exactly put my finger on it.

When I got home, I pulled my issued note out of the box and compared the two. Yep, the paper of the issued note was much rougher than the smooth, shiny specimen. I remembered that World War II Remembered said that the paper should have part of a watermark that says CEYLON/ GOVERNMENT in two curved lines with a smaller text between these two lines saying "Restricted." No doubt about it, it was on my issued note clear as a bell, but the specimen was unwatermarked. I began to worry. I took out my fluorescent light and checked the two notes. The specimen glowed under the light while my issued note just laid there. Bad news.

I wanted to make one more check. I got my 30 power magnifier from Radio Shack and took a look at the specimen. What did I see? DOTS. Colored DOTS. Lots and lots of DOTS. The same thing you would get if you looked at the comic pages thru this magnifying instrument. The issued note showed solid lines. My specimen was a fake, a real phony. Someone had made it on a computer and printed it on a dot matrix printer. I emailed the seller, and he apologized profusely. He agreed to refund my money. I asked where he got it and he said from an Australian dealer. I had never heard of that particular dealer. I just hope this seller does refund my money.

So that is my little tale. From elation to despair. The one thing that I would like to impress on readers is the usefulness of this little magnifying instrument from Radio Shack. I have seen at least two other notes that were being sold as genuine when in fact they were printed on a computer printer. The $10 magnifier from Radio Shack can pay for itself many times over if it keeps you from buying just one fake. And there are a number of them showing up in the market these days. Think about it.

Editorial

We can learn lots from Larry's tale above. Obviously, there is the possibility of making a bad purchase and having a loss. Larry handled everything correctly.

By the way, what is the return privilege on a fake? We would love to have an attorney comment on this, but here is my take on it. Where a fake/counterfeit/alteration is involved there is no time limit on a return. Of course this is in the case of no dispute on the identity of the item. There is also the matter of jurisdiction. In Larry's case, it was international in nature. Even in the United States there is the possibility of multiple states, but in those cases there is often also the possibility of federal postal regulations and laws.

I recently had my first personal involvement in an alteration case. I will tell that story one day soon, but I want to make another point today.

In this case, Larry obtained the note and we determined that it was a fake. It was not even a good fake. Possibly good enough to fool a new collector, but still not a great fake.

What would have happened if the buyer were not active enough in our specialty to report the note? Well, Larry (and I) would have made an annotation in our work copies of Remembered and we would have almost certainly listed the fake in the next book. The listing then would have facilitated selling more of the fakes or at least the original one as it "recirculated."

Dear Gram,

Regarding the sunk notes. It would have nothing to do with replacement notes. The numbers lost would simply be lost, not replaced in serial number order.

Hot Contact List

Below is the BNR Press Hot Contact List. This list serves several functions. Obviously it is an outreach by the dealers listed for your business. Most of them buy and sell MPC. Others organize shows or publish periodicals. They have supported the new Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates with their advertising. They deserve your support and patronage.

Secondly, this is a draft from the book that participating dealers should check for correctness. Finally, dealers who are not on it and want to can still get their ads in if they act promptly. Respond to this email or call (419) 732-6683.

We are sorry if the format is a little messed up here in the Gram, we are not sure of how to fix it!

Special MPC issue of BNR

The March Bank Note Reporter is the annual MPC issue. This is an underground special issue. Krause publications does not recognize it nor even know about it! Do not tell them, but do not miss out!

It is the annual special MPC issue because we infiltrate the Iola offices and salt the editorial AND advertising desks with MPC news, features, and advertising!

This is the third MPC attack and looks to be the most successful. Material in all of the above categories has been accepted and there are still opportunities.

Here is what you can do. If you are a dealer, you can still submit an ad featuring MPC (call 800 573 0333, be sure to NOT mention special MPC edition). If you do not subscribe (gad) you must get the March issue. Call KP using the number in the Hot Contact List below. Finally, after the issue is out write to the BNR telling it/them how much you liked the MPC material in the March issue! Do not call it the MPC issue and be sure to wait for the paper to be published to write!

More on Herman Herst

By Herb Friedman

In regard to Howard Daniel's post about Philippine Guerrilla stamps, The article must have been a very old reprint. Herman (Pat) Herst Jr. was a good friend of mine when he lived in Shrub Oak N.Y. He wrote the book "Nassau Street." He There are two basic sets of Philippine Guerrilla stamps. The one set that is mentioned in the article, and another set from Cebu.

I have done intensive research on both issues and there still is a lot of doubt as to their genuiness. They were prepared during the war, but whether there was an actual need for them or it was a project to produce a valuable philatelic souvenir of the war is still debated. I think the latter is about 70-30.

At any rate, the "Free Philippines" stamp sells for from $400-500. You can probably double that figure on cover.

The four values of the Cebu stamp are a bit cheaper. They are usually about $25-50 each, although a set of four recently sold in Ebay for $10. The owner had no idea what they were.

I would go into this in more detail but it would take about 5000 words. [Herb, we look forward to the 5000 words-Ed.]

Medals of America

by Howard A. Daniel III

I recently received another catalog from Medals of America. This firm retails many U.S. and foreign military medals in various sizes; ribbons; commemorative medals; presentation cases; frames for certificates and many other items; dog tags; badges; insignia; ties; baseball caps; brass; patches; references and other items for all of the U.S. military services. Their address is 114 Southchase Blvd., Fountain Inn, SC, 29644 and telephone 864-862-6425. Their web site is www.usmedals.com. You can easily request a copy of their catalog and I am sure you will find something of interest in it.

The January 28 issue of "Linn's Stamp News" has an item; Military postal history election about the Military Postal History Society election. The item names all of the officer elected and they are Alfred F. Kugel, Robert Kinslet, Norman Gruenzner, Tony Brooks, Alan Warren, Leonard Lukens, Harvey Tilles and Alan Warren. Their next meeting will be during the April 5-7 Texpe show in Dallas, Texas. The society also publishes the "Military Postal History Society Bulletin." I believe many of their members might be interested in receiving the MPCGram and/or share information with us and we with them. The contact person is Robert T. Kinsley, 5410 Fern Loop, West Richland, WA 99353-9806.

Editorial

Yesterday I wrote about the possibility of making false catalog entries because of altered/fake notes appearing on lists, in auctions, on the Internet etc. The problem of what to include, or, more correctly, what evidence to require for inclusion of an item is an interesting—and old question.

Only recently, a collector wrote repeating a complaint about me that he had heard recently at a show. The complaint was "Fred will not fix his book. I told him (Fred) that I used MPC in Africa and he will not change it."

Of course the collector who quoted the complaint to me may have gotten it wrong which is an example of the problem. Anyway, in this case, I pointed out that the MPC book lists MPC as having been used in Morocco. Africa I pointed out.

Suppose the fellow said that he used MPC in Algeria and we do not have any other evidence that it was used there. Do we list it because the collector says so? Because he recalls it?

Basically, the answer is no. It makes people angry sometimes, but it seems like the best approach but no two cases are the same. How old was the person at the time he/she used the notes? Was he/she a collector (and therefore likely to have paid more attention? Did he/she save any notes and if so still have them.

When was supplemental A and B yen issued? The arguments on this may go forever. In this case we get to what does issued mean?

When were supplemental franc notes issued? Obviously they had been issued by June 6, 1944. Equally obviously they had been issued to most of the invaders by June 5th. If the stocks to pay soldiers were distributed to pay officers on June 3rd, is that the issue day?

There is no easy answer to these questions. The final answer that I believe must be used is that every case is different and must be considered on its own merits. Not very satisfactory I am afraid, but the best that I can do.

Mail Call

Dear Gram,

I have reread Phil's editorial about security for FEST III. I like the idea of an armed guard at the hotel on guard during the FEST. Whether Port Clinton has this available as an option is another question. Along the same vein, I have left a message with Collectibles Insurance Agency requesting information about insurance for the show. As an adjunct to having a guard, insurance if reasonably priced,would also seem like a good idea. There is also the possibility that the insurance rate would be very good for the event, as tease to get the attendees to sign up for the rest of the year for their collections.

I will let the readers know if anything develops about insurance for the FEST.

David

Dear Gram,

I have had my second list server go out of business. May I ask which service you are using for the MPC Gram? Any help is appreciated.

Thanks and Regards,

David C.

Wow David,

Your question makes it sound like we are doing something right! Amazing! Well, as you might guess, there is good news and bad news. Basically, the list is maintained in a simple Yahoo email account. There have been problems, but mostly it has been satisfactory. We have tried some alternatives and are still experimenting at papermoneyworld.net, but the results are uncertain. Probably the list server that you want is more automated than we are using, but good luck and please let us know if you learn anything that we might be able to use!

March 2002 8-10 - MPCFest III - reservations in order received: Guido Crapanzano, Harold kroll, Larry Smulczenski, Gary "Got any fours" Hicks, Tom Warburton*, David Seelye, Jack Lippincot, Phil Goldstein, Warner Talso, Nick Schrier, Richard Freyser, Tom Koch, Mark Watson, Bill Yanchick, Doug Bell, Sam Feeback, Bruce Potter, Elmer Smith, Marv Mericle, Wes and Rod Hardy, Marcus Turner, Gene Ryanwood, Al Glaser, Ian Marshall, Carlson Chambliss, Ray Bows, Kevin Maloy, Fred Schwan {running total 29}] [missing "old" Festers: Dan Swartz, Leo May, (did I forget someone?), come on guys, give us your reservation, * honorary]

Three airports are reasonably available for the Fest. In order of proximity they are:

Toledo

Cleveland

Detroit (Metro)

All three are reasonable. If you can arrive early enough AND coordinate it well ahead, every attempt will be made to pick you up at the airport to save on rental cars. Festers are encouraged to coordinate among themselves for rides. We will also run notices in the Gram and, finally, we will try to coordinate for Festers to run pickups from Fest central.

The 8th Annual CPMX Auction by Lyn Knight Currency Auctions

by Howard A. Daniel III

I subscribed to the first year of Lyn Knight's catalogs of world paper money because Joel Shafer was the manager of this new department, and because the first auction was going to contain Leo May's MPC collection. I received the catalog a couple of hours ago and had to sit down and write about it here for you because it is such a fantastic piece of work.

Besides Leo's collection, it has many, many other military pieces and plenty of excellent pieces from my Southeast Asia area. There is even a rare money order for my friends in The Postal Order Society, many United States and Confederate notes, a short snorter, and exonomia too from just about every era of United States history. If you are not attending the auction at the Chicago Paper Money Expo from February 28 to March 2, you can see the lots and bid online too at www.LynKnight.com. But I very highly recommend that you order the catalog, or even subscribe to their first year of them, via their web site and using a credit card. The catalog will find a permanent place in my library, and I am sure it will find one in your library too. Good hunting and good luck at winning some of the lots in this auction!!

More on Ceylon Fakes

By Trevor Wilkin

As I read Ski's column the WWII Ceylon fractional specimen, it was with a sense of deja vu - and guilt!

I was a victim in January / February 2001 - my defense for not advising fellow gramsters is that I only joined up about that time and was not aware of the many services the Gram offered such as alerting fellow Gramsters to pitfalls. Through e-bay, I obtained specimens of both the 25 cents & the 50 cents (P40 & 41).

The seller was an Australian e-bay dealer. I do not think he has ever taken a table at a show as a dealer (certainly not a major show), done a physical mailing list nor is a member of associations or societies. I was aware of him and he had bought off me in shows over the years, I thought as a collector. I can't recall the name right now but he hails from the Melbourne (Victoria) area.

The particular e-bay listing was of about 6-9 notes that contained several Cambodia Khymer Rouge notes, some cheap Laos or the like, plus the Ceylon 25 and 50 cents specimens from memory. As it was all one lot, individual estimates were not listed. The collective catalogue value was listed as being several hundred dollars worth although the starting price and the final price was not unreasonable, particularly given the Ceylon specimens. (Although as it later came to pass, his weighting of the value of the lot was the Khymer Rouge material.) It was a Dutch auction with maybe 10 lots the same. I was successful in obtaining 2 lots and like Larry eagerly awaited arrival.

The delivery arrived. My first warning sign was that I received a bonus of an extra Ceylon specimen per lot. No one likes being conned; so after reassuring my self that the items were not genuine - and to cover myself, obtaining an independent opinion from a colleague, I went to the seller. He came around very quickly and volunteered a refund after a little banter and after I convinced him that my interest in the lot was the Ceylon, not the Khymer Rouge notes - whose market had collapsed, were suspect themselves (but did have a pedigree with their Pick listing which is quite strong), and were readily available, for not much in Asia.

He claimed to have many pieces of the Ceylon specimens. Where he got them from, I do not know. In our conversation, he tended to regard them as a "joke" which is probably why I received the bonus and probably why they were not listed as a separate lot. They were certainly not described as suspect in the lot description. There was a reference to them, but it could have been oblique - I do not believe that they were touted as "great items."

As I said, the emphasis seems to have been on the Khymer Rouge items that really came out in our discussions. At the end of the day, I received a full refund and returned the lots. Certainly, after my discussion with him, he was in no doubt that they were fakes, at least in my mind.

It would be interesting to know when Larry's seller acquired them. It appears they came from the same source. If it was after say March 2001, there can little doubt that that the person, I dealt with must doubt their genuineness. If he continued to list them and to hold them out to be genuine, and this is how Larry's seller acquired them, then there is an issue here for all concerned including Larry's buyer who may also have a claim.

I trust this is of some assistance to Larry in obtaining a refund. It also goes to show the value of the Gram in alerting others. Maybe a mention also in the next edition of World War II Remembered that fake specimens are around. [Good idea Trevor, Larry, please mark that in your master copy!—Ed]

Editorial

It was very exciting to receive the Knight-May catalog yesterday. I was fortunate to get to see a proof of it in Orlando at the FUN show; the finished catalog looks much better! It is a wonderful catalog with great material. It starts off with one of Leo's replacements on the cover! The 471 $10 of course. Obviously, we have discussed the May collection many times and in depth. It is great, or better, but there is plenty of other material for military money collectors. Hopefully, someone will do a detailed review of this aspect for us.

I look forward to studying the catalog and attending the sale. You can be sure that we will have many more reports on this sale—before and after.

Mail Call

Dear Gram,

Just received the Lyn Knight catalog for the CPMX sale. Wow, it is possibly (likely) the best auction catalog of world paper money ever published in the US. I am very excited.

Steve Feller

Dear Readers,

I have just received John Pettit's new Bank Note Listing #1 2002. The 34 page catalog is a tour de force of great notes, with color photos of selected items on the inside cover. The USA MPC has only a few notes listed, but and I mean a BIG BUT, he has some FANTASTIC military issues. Austria 25 Schilling UNC at A$650; Fanning Island 1 pd gF A$725; German New Guinea WWI 5,10,250 Marks P.1b, 2b,4b; Many Germany WW2 POW notes, many Great Britain & India POW note; the SB plate note of Gilbert & Ellice Islands at A$7500. He will be attending CPMX in a few weeks. Go to his web site www.johnpettit.com and you can order the catalog.

More on Kroner AMC!!

By Theo VanElmpt

I just came across another note in my files re AM Kroner which may - or may not - be of interest to someone. The notes were not actually printed by the BoE printing works themselves but were contracted out to Bradbury, who also made the designs for the unit notes which were later adapted into kroner.

The actual printing was ready on 16 May 1944. The notes were then shipped to BoE for safe keeping. On 5 October 1944 the WO was offered a number of good-over notes as follows:

25 oere 31,998 notes

1 kroner 34,300 notes

5 kroner 58,146 notes

10 kroner 29,374 notes

50 kroner 10,769 notes

100 kroner 45,473 notes

They were offered rounded down in '000s. The 10, 50 and 100 notes would be numberd:

10 D/21 000,001 to 029,000

50 D/11 000,001 to 010,000

100 D/2 335,001 to 380,000

The WO did not accept the offer because they had serious doubts that the notes would be used after all!! In the end some would be used but at the express wish of the US Army the use of Yellow-seal dollars and BMA notes was preferred.

Twelve sets of specimen notes were produced for the AM Kroner 3 sets were sent to the War Office in London 3 sets were sent to H.M. Treasury 6 sets were sent to SHAEF and the Danish Currency Section.

Show Report

By Robert Drake

Have just returned from the Cupertino, CA Coin Club Show. This was a local, small, club coin show. Friendly folks, snacks available, good parking, $2 entrance fee.

30 dealers with about 15 of those displaying paper money too. Mostly a coin show with few, if any supply dealers. I found 3 dealers displaying MPC. One dealer had 3 notes, I purchased a 692 20 in XF from him. Another had about a dozen tired notes, I was able to liberate a 521 $1 from that gentleman. My hero of the day was Ken Barr. Ken and I sealed another deal for the purchase of 9 notes. If you are interested in 472 $10s in better shape, 481 $10, 641 $5s, a 651 $10 in CU or 692 $10/$20s, give Ken a call or an email. Just read Fred's list for contact info.

This is a request to purchase some 651 $5s/$10s in CU. If you have some for sale, please email me, at forwebfootbob@earthlink.net.

Editorial

Did you notice the shift in the stars? The change in the natural order of things?

If I do not finish a book or other major project on Saturday or Sunday, it is at least in the middle of the night when computer tech support of various kinds is not available and vendors of repair parts, supplies, and other necessities are not only closed, but probably not available for 24 or more hours. Schwan's law is that computer problems only happen at the worst possible times (paraphrased from Murphy who was an incurable optimist).

I finished the MPC book at about the worst time for such problems. As part of the drill, I must provide a laser proof to the manufacturer for checking purposes. Among other things it takes a long time to print out a 400 page proof. You will not believe this.

Everything went well. After returning from the manufacturer, I moved to other things. When I tried to print something—the very first sheet after the book proof—the printer died, toner exhaustion! Ten sheets, heck, one sheet earlier would have caused a serious problem, because (you knew this), I did not have another spare. Frankly, I thought that the only reason that the toner did not run out was because I had a spare, but I was wrong on both counts.

=====

Mail Call

Editor,

I would like to thank Howard for the kind words about our catalog. As you all probably are aware that Fred Schwan wrote the MPC and Joel the world with me to do the other stuff.

My first love is National banknotes, personally, but I am in this business because I love being able to make collectors happy and make a good living doing it. Articles like this make us feel appreciated and hopefully many of you will be able to ad to your collections. The Memphis sale needs neat stuff to add to the group we already have which no doubt will include more from the Ruth Hill collection.

Thanks again,

Lyn

Dear Esteemed Editor,
I was surfing through the WorldWideWeb today and looking for some information about the hometown of a collector/researcher in Australia. He lives in the suburb of Woolloowin in the city of Brisbane. I found something about WWII at one site and the following; The Headquarters for the US Army's 40th Coastal Artillery (CA) Brigade North-Eastern Anti-aircraft Artillery Command was possibly located in a concret
The commanding officer of the 40th CA Brigade was Brigadier General Van Volkenburgh. Some Australian Anti-aircraft units were also put under the command of the 40th Coastal Artillery Brigade.

The 1945 Military phone book for Brisbane shows the Headquarters for the 14th Anit-Aircraft Command under the command of Major General W.F. Marquat being located on the 8th Floor of AMP Building in Queen Street, Brisbane.
There is no entry for the 40th CA Brigade.
I am sending this letter to you in case anyone is researching any of the above units and can use the information.

Howard A. Daniel III

Dear Gram,

I saw your plea for items to put in the auction. I eluded before that I would donate a flipper I picked up the last time over to England. Its enameled on the back of a Lincoln penny and shows a skeleton with a top hat riding a dropping bomb with 85th Bomber squadron on it underneath. Here is a chance to own the real thing! I could guess that a lot of them went down with their owners (since they had to be close by the person for a challenge) over Germany and there are not too many around. Do you want me to send it or just hang on to it till I get to the Fest?

Gary (Who has 4's) Hicks

Dear Editor,

Regarding the lost book mentioned in your editorial. The book company moved from Maryland to New Jersey last fall, so had not answered my emails for months while in transition. When they finally replied, they did not know what had happened--just that they had shipped the book per their original advice to me. A few days later, I got a call that they had located the package back at their new location. They had shipped the book to Port Clinton in August but UPS returned it as being undeliverable. There was nothing wrong with the address. I had them alter it a little and send it out again; this time it got through. Joe

Dear Joe,

Thanks for the story (and ESPECIALLY for finding the book).

Asian Trip Report

By Mike Cummings

Here is my first report on my recent trip to Japan and Korea from January 23rd to February 6th. Departed Tampa International Airport for Tokyo via Chicago early on the 23rd, Wednesday morning, on United Airlines. Had my shoes ex-rayed at every stop along the way.

Arrived in Tokyo on Thursday afternoon around 4 PM and took the Keisei Liner train into Ueno. The Keisei is a non-stop (actually these days it makes one brief stop) train into Tokyo from Narita Airport and it takes 60 minutes. I always stay at the same place in Tokyo and it is just a short walk from the station to the hotel, although not what I would call a leisurely stroll when carrying one very heavy carry on bag and two suitcases! I also stay in this area as there are many coin dealers in the Ueno area, at least 5 in Ueno and another 10 in the immediate area, one of which is the Kanda district.

In Ueno the first dealer I always see is the owner of Arrow International Tokyo, Herb Cook. It is almost a tradition that we have sushi the first night. And beer! The next night Jerry Wojtas of Southern California and owner of Kosen Galleries arrived in Tokyo for the yearly Atami auction, the main reason for my trip this time. That night we DO NOT have sushi. Jerry looks upon sushi as something more akin to fish-bait than something humans should be eating. But he always has a good alternative choice: Korean BBQ. And beer!

Actually the day Jerry arrived it was very cold and Herb drove to the airport to pick him up. He invited me to go along for the ride, but I declined as I told him I had only been to and from Narita at least a 150 times and would not really enjoy it and would probably not see anything I had not seen before, and especially would not relish getting stuck in the terrible Tokyo traffic. So instead, I actually had a great time doing something very enjoyable which I have not done for so long but used to do quite frequently.

I attended the 14th day of the New Years Sumo Tournament at the the Kokugikan in Tokyo (located in Ryogoku) about a ten minute train ride for Ueno. So while Herb and Jerry were enjoying their drive (creeping along) on the expressway into Tokyo I was at the Sumo Stadium drinking beer and watching my favorite sport. And if you are into Sumo there is nothing like seeing it in person and close-up. TV just don't give you the sights, sounds and smell of live sumo. [Smells?!!--Ed]

On to the Atami Auction.....

The yearly auction in Atami is held by the Oi Kosen Kai who holds a weekly Monday-night auction in downtown Tokyo. This yearly event is always held on a Monday and is a much-expanded version of the Monday night auction. I checked with a few people and found out that this was the 34th "Annual" Atami Auction held on January 28th, 2002. Actually on further questioning I found that for a while it was held a couple times a year so this was not actually the 34th year, no one was sure but that is how things often happen in Japan. Also I know for a fact that it has not always been held in Atami as I remember one being in Hokkaido to coincide with the annual Ice Festival there. But it is always in January. And now it is always held in Atami and at the same resort hotel, the Suiyotei.

Atami is a hot springs resort and a very popular tourist spot for that reason. It is located southeast of Tokyo on the Izu Peninsula. Me Jerry and Herb drove down early Monday morning, about a two-hour drive. At that time of the morning (we left Herb's office about 6 AM in his car) it is especially beautiful as you go along the coast and Mount Fuji pops in and out of view as you wind thru the mountainous roads. We arrived about 8 AM and headed directly to the hotel lobby area where they have a lounge area with sofas and coffee tables. There, dealers meet and begin buying and selling their numismatic wares. This morning it was slow and an indication of things to come. Dealers from all over Japan (as far away as Hokkaido and Okinawa) normally attend and they did this year as well but a few faces were notably missing and probably because of the very weak market in Japan at present. Also many of the old timers are disappearing as they age. Not all are yet passed away, just to o frail to attend.

The auction begins at 10 AM and is an all day event, ending around 7 PM. It is a non-stop auction except for a brief lunch period when they hand out an obento (Japanese box-lunch) and juices and you can enjoy your lunch right there on the top floor of this luxury hotel with a great view of the Sea of Japan right below out the window of the 15th floor.

Everyone in attendance is allowed to put up 15 items for auction and they ask that each lot be valued at 10,000 yen (about $75.00) or more. It is not free as it costs 20,000 yen ($150.00) to attend. Actually it is a bargain as this fee covers the auction, your lunch which is usually quite good, your room for the night, and a very nice evening dinner-party, Japanese style in a very large hall on tatami mats. This I enjoy immensely, because remember what I told you about Jerry and his dislike for raw and wiggly things (like eel). Well I get his portion of that stuff.

Actually it is a lot like in the Army days when you traded different c-rations for other c-rations. I usually give Jerry my tempura or something similar for that delicious thinly sliced raw sashimi. After dinner and the obligatory speeches the karaoke begins and if you want you can get up on the stage and belt out your favorite song. Me Jerry and Herb just sit and listen and drink beer! And occasionally a sake or two. I have attended many of these Atami auctions over the years but do not think I was ever present when Joe Boling was in attendance, but Herb told me Joe was quite good and loved to get up on stage and belt out a song or two. Wow, and all these years I had believed Joe was a somewhat quiet shy person!

This year's auction went quite fast as usual. In order to auction that many lots off in a day's time they have to keep it moving. I would guess there are 1500-2000 lots total, maybe more. With no catalog prepared the auctioneer announces the item and starts the bidding. He will add some description as warranted such as, "a very high grade" or some similarly appropriate description. You are free to get up from your seat as many do and go to the front of the room and view the item more closely. Also the lots are lined up on a long, long table at the front and you can also look at the upcoming lots at your freedom.

Usually the consignor has the right to reject any bid below his minimum and they normally ask before pulling it down to see if you'll accept a bid for less than what you listed it as. There is also a commission of course and it ranges from about 3 1/2 percent up to about 6. There are hundreds of different and widely variable items auctioned with a great emphasis on but surely not limited to, Japanese numismatics.

For the MPC collectors there was NOTHING offered, some military related notes and coinage but not one MPC note auctioned. I was lucky enough to buy a couple pieces of Japanese occupation coins, the Java 10 sen prepared but never delivered to their colony in the Netherlands East Indies. This piece has NEVER been common (as catalog prices reflect), but in recent years has become RARE as one is seldom offered. And these were not auctioned, I just bought them from a dealer whom I had asked about them.

There is as much dealing, probably much more, in Atami before, during and after the auction than at the auction itself. (Much the same as at coin shows here in the U.S.) There are signs in the auction room asking you to refrain from conducting private transactions during the auction but it is mostly ignored and as long as you are not creating a disturbance or talking too loudly no one will ever say anything to stop you.

One interesting Japanese auction customs allows the consignor to put up a cash prize with his lot. It works like this and usually the consignor will give 1000 or 2000 yen, or even a 10,000 yen note to go with his lot depending on the value of the item. What happens is when the item comes up for auction and is actually sold, the under-bidder receives the cash prize, a sort of incentive to keep the bidding going. I kind of like this system. It is not done for most lots, but usually for something of real interest.

All in all this year's Atami Annual Auction was a success but as noted earlier, a lot less attended and much lessor prices being realized for items due to the lackluster market prevalent in Japan in 2002 than in previous years.

Next I'll report on my buying and selling trip to Korea where it was a little better, much better in fact. There I located some Korean coupons and other goodies. One find I have not even revealed to Fred yet. I thought I was dreaming.....the first shop I located and purchased a CU original bundle of 541 $5.00 notes, oh yeh oh yeh, and they were all replacements.....and then.....I woke up.

Irradiated mail

By Joe Boling

There have been several articles recently in the philatelic press about the hazards of irradiated mail in regard to paper products. Considerable quantities of mail have been subjected to extremely high doses of ionizing radiation. This isn't taking an x-ray; it's trying to kill anthrax spores. It takes a much higher dose to kill a dr The government and its contractors are still experimenting with the correct dose. In the meantime, the following kinds of damage have been reported that are being attributed to irradiation: browning of envelopes and their contents; embrittlement of paper; melting of plas This, of course, has great significance to those of us who ship banknotes by mail. The primary regions where mail is being irradiated are DC/Northern Virginia and the New York area. I have not seen any reports about irradiation elsewhere, but there are plans to extend I recommend the following actions for protection of paper money in the mails. For those who are in known areas of irradiation, do not send valuable notes by mail. Use the more expensive carriers. If you are sending notes through the mail, even in areas not known to be using irradiation, and you cannot afford to lose the value of the shipment If any gramster has already had an adverse experience with irradiation of the mails, let's hear about it.

Editorial

More technical help needed. With every Gram, we receive notices of undeliverable mail. Mostly we have ignored these and just considered them to be a nuisance. A few days ago in a spurt of unaccountable energy we decided to try to resolve a few of these each day and ultimately eliminate the annoyance. That went well for a few days. Today, I started to work on this project. The first name I encountered was a loyal Gramster who is well known to me. I checked his email address in several sources and found it to be correct. What to do? I certainly do not want to delete the address of an active Gramster. I would rather not receive the pesky notices, but do not see an easy alternative. Does anyone have a solution?

Mail Call

Dear editor,

After what seemed like forever, I received my Lyn Knight CPMX auction catalog yesterday. I have heard from several others how nice it was. But having it in your OWN hand to peruse is a sublime pleasure. Right up front is Leo's collection of MPC, followed closely by his replacement collection. The format is good and the color photos only enhance the verbal description.

The general world notes are Great! With many represented from WW2 remembered. There is a excellent selection of POW notes from WW2, as well as a selection from Ruth Hills' collection of USA POW chits.

The Korea and Thailand MPC's are listed separately from the rest of the MPC. They're located in the alphabetical section of World notes, not with the rest of the MPC in the front of the catalog.

All in all it is a GREAT catalog and any MPC collector should have this in their library, to show off the note they can pedigree to Leo's Collection.

David

Dear Editor,

There was excellent response to my ad in the MPC Gram. Four notes are sold and there are only 2 left. I want to add the position numbers per an email from Joe boling. These are the 2 remaining notes: 471 5 Cents position 60 521 5 Cents position 12 Could you adjust the ad for the sold notes and add the positions for the 2 remaining notes? Will have a check for you at CPMX!

Thanks

Tim

Dear Tim,

Thanks for the ad—and for the feedback. For the record, the check that you mention should go to Marcus Turner, but if you do not see him at CPMX, I will be happy to accept it for the scholarship fund. Tim offered a commission to the scholarship fund based upon sales in the Gram. For sale items are FREE in your Gram. Dump your dupes, move your inventory. Make way for more treasures by selling some stuff. Send us your ads of notes for sale.

Hot Contact List

Below is the BNR Press Hot Contact List. This list serves several functions. Obviously it is an outreach by the dealers listed for your business. Most of them buy and sell MPC. Others organize shows or publish periodicals. They have supported the new Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates with their advertising. They deserve your support and patronage.

Secondly, this is a draft from the book that participating dealers should check for correctness. Finally, dealers who are not on it and want to can still get their ads in if they act promptly. Respond to this email or call (419) 732-6683.

We are sorry if the format is a little messed up here in the Gram, we are not sure of how to fix it!

Munich Out, Fest in—for Cummings

Well-known MPC fan, dealer, and (former?) collector Mike Cummings has canceled his planned business trip to Munich in order to attend MPCFest III! Cummings who has a shop in Lakeland, Florida says that he is looking forward to the event and will bring some goodies.

Cummings reservation pushes the Fest list to the 30 threshold. Fest I had 12 in attendance, Fest II had 24, with additional reservations expected, it might still be possible to top 40 for Fest III. Watch the Gram in the next few days for more Fest details.

Military Numismatics—there is no End

By Bill Murray

One never knows when or where one will find something of interest numismatically. An acquaintance of mine who lives in the retirement community in which I live, gave me a call the other day. He told me his next door neighbor, a retired Army doctor, Dr. Cesar A. Lopez, had an coin article in a magazine he thought might be of interest to me.

When I saw the cover of the magazine, MILITARY MEDICINE, I wondered, but the lead article in the January issue of this journal, dedicated to publishing scholarly, medical papers carried the title, "Militares Medici in Nummis Repraesentati: The Heritage of Military Medicine in Coins and Medals." MG John Pearn, former Surgeon General of the Australian Defence Force, prepared an interesting and well illustrated article. He states in his introductory paragraph, "Coins and commemorative medals form one prestigious repository of the history of military medicine."

While the material presented may be a far cry from, MPC, it seems to fit publication in the MPCGram, which claims, "Covering the entire World of Military Numismatics."

Pearn introduces his article with a general introduction to numismatics in general and especially as it contributes to historical record. Relating it to medicine, he documents references to Hygeia, the Greek goddess of health and her "Roman successor, Salus" as well as other ancient coin types. He tells us, "One classification of medical numismatics has grouped such medals and coins into several classes. In the context of medical numismatics, these can be characterized as four groups: (1) medals portraying military doctors; (2) medals highlighting the discipline of military health; (3) military medical coins; and (4) miscellaneous themes in military medicine."

The rest of MG Pearn's article discusses each of those groups and provides examples in prose with selected photographs.

As to be expected in an academic journal, Pearn cites meticulous references and many of those references most of which, though not all come from Australian and

Editorial

Last night about 11pm I was driving home when I received a phone call from a contributor to the new MPC book. He pointed out that the values listed in the book for a given item was something like: 400 700 950 100 2000 3000. On the one hand, I could not believe it. This is the type of error that I hate the most, one that is internally inconsistent and obvious (can something be obvious and subtle too? If so this is an example). After months of checking by the caller and others, he believed that this error had not been found. I told him that I hoped that it had, but I was far from certain. Of course the minute that I got home, I fired up the computer to check. It had not been found, nor corrected. Drat.

On the other hand, I should not have been surprised. The instant that it is too late to fix things is the most likely instant to find new corrections. In fact, it might not be too late, it might just be expensive to correct it. This is just the way that thing go in book publishing.

Mail Call

Dear Gramsters,

Well, no sooner do I write a column on irradiated mail, then I receive the 12 Feb Coin World with a front page article about two silver certificates (worth $1500) that took three months to arrive and were obviously damaged in the mail. The notes were in grading service holders and further enclosed in the vendor's holders. The holders were badly damaged by the radiation (toned brown, partially melted, wrinkled), and there is slight damage to the notes (the shipper conjectures that the double holders saved the notes). Since we do not know what chemicals are released from these holders when they are heated/irradiated, we cannot conclude that multiple holders are going to protect notes, nor that there are not going to be further effects on the notes that become evident years down the road. Now, in reference to Mike Cummings' article about the Atami auction, I attended that sale only once (and bought some nice material), and I do not recall taking part in any karaoke. In fact, I can only remember doing karaoke once in my life, and it was not in a numismatic setting, but in a military setting. I don't know what Herb Cook is remembering.

Joe

Dear Esteemed Editor,

There are two subjects in this letter to you. The first is about the item written by Joe Boling about the irradiated mail. Sometime last week I contact John Wilson, president of the ANA and requested that he take some action to have the ANA, dealers, suppliers and collectors get together and design "protection" for our "stuff" in the postal system. He immediately jumped on it and there is something in the works. If any of you have already had some irradiated "stuff", please contact John and tell him about the condition of it. This is a VERY serious problem for our "stuff" and we must create "protection" before it affects the rest of us outside the Washington DC and New York City areas. John's email address is "JohnANcyW@aol.com." Please contact him today!

The second subject is about the "undeliverable mail" for the MPCGram. After checking the email address and confirming in one or more ways that it is valid, I have found that the problem is our ISPs' computer code. There is apparently a "ton" of code that is ALWAYS being modified by the software writers and not all of the ISPs are updating their copies as fast as other ISPs. As a result, the "difference" in the code rejects emails coming from ISPs that do not match. When you have a "undeliverable mail" problem, contact your ISP and send them the email that is undeliverable and request that they research the problem. Sometimes when it is not their problem, they do not contact the receiving ISP, so you will have to "cc" the receiving ISP too. This is a pain in the you know what, but with the constant updating of the software code that ISPs need to be in business, we are going to see "undeliverable mail" for good email addresses.

Good luck,

Howard A. Daniel III

Dear Joe,

Thanks for the update. If you did not karaok at your daughter's wedding, you should have.

Editor

Dear Editor:

You seem to be getting some respond to the FOR SALE listing. Would it be possible to move this item to under the EDITORIALS ?? This way, we do not have to keep scrolling thru the Calendar, MPC Events, Donors list, and HOT CONTACTS LISTS each gram.

Thanks,

ED

Dear Ed,

I must admit that at least one other person has made this suggestion. The bottom line is that the very reason that the "for sale" items are near the end it so that readers WILL scroll through the other items. However, we are always open to enhancements. On idea that comes to mind is to move the for sale items to various places so that readers really must look!

Now, how bout sending us some listings for sale (again)!

MPC Book Details Released

After more than a little study, calculation, and worry, ordering instructions and other details about the new edition of the Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates have been released by the publisher BNR Press.

Valentines Day

By Larry "Ski" Smulczenski

I try to pick something topical or of current interest to write about in these weekly columns and since this is Valentines Day, I wanted to associate military money with candy or flowers or sweethearts or love or something like that. Last November when I said it was hard to find some note or subject to associate with Thanksgiving, believe me that was easy compared to looking for something to associate with Valentines. As usual, I went to World War II Remembered, and after leafing through it page by page, I found nothing. I slept on it last night, but nothing came to mind easily. This morning as I was getting dressed I glanced over on the desk where a couple of eBay lots that I had sold were waiting to be packaged and mailed. There it was. Three chits from Avenger Field at Sweetwater AFS, Texas. Yes, I know that's a stretch to associate Sweetwater with Sweetheart, but look guys, I'm at least half way there. If I had that kind of batting average in the majors, I'd be a star. After all, on the kind of wages our editor pays, you have to allow me a few liberties.

I have four sets of chits in my collection from Sweetwater AFS,Texas. Two are from the Officers Lounge and two are from the Avenger Field Officers Assn. When I was in Flight School at Webb Air Force Base in Big Spring, Texas, we used a runway just to the west of Sweetwater to practice touch and go landings. I don't know if this was Avenger Field or not, but Avenger Field was five miles to the west of Sweetwater. We were training in T-33's, the old T-Bird and in 1959 when I was there, the field was unoccupied. The first aircraft that got to the field in the morning would make a high speed, very low pass down the runway to chase the rattlesnakes off of it. The rattlesnakes, which are cold-blooded would slither up on the concrete which would stay warmer at night than the surrounding ground and sleep there. The aircraft moving at a high speed and low altitude would create enough of a shock wave to wake them up and get them moving for cover. We were not environmentalists tryin g to save the lives of the snakes, we were trying to save our own lives, because when the gear of the aircraft hit a large snake, the aircraft turned abruptly into the direction of the gear that was struck. This could cause the aircraft to leave the runway, the pilot to lose control and maybe crash the aircraft. Since we were all low time students at that time, the brass didn't want to take too many chances.

Avenger Field had an interesting history during World War II. It was the local airport before the war, and received a contract from the Army in 1939-40 to train cadets for the Air Corps. After that program ended, British air cadets were trained there until 1942. In late 1942, the Army acquired the field for use as a training field. In 1943, the field was selected as the training center for women ferry pilots known as WASP's (Women's Air Force Service Pilots). Thru 1944, 1074 women earned their wings and flew everything from fighters to bombers. Their primary mission was to deliver new aircraft from the factory to the fighting front and thus reliever male pilots for combat duties. WASP's also flew tow-targets, cargo and weather planes. They were commanded by the well known female pilot, Jacqueline Cochran and Avenger Field was locally known as "Cochran's Convent". The WASP program continued until the end of 1944, when it was disbanded. Thirty-eight WASP's died while in gov ernment service. Avenger Field was deactivated and returned to the city after the war.

So there had to be a few sweethearts among those female pilots that trained at Avenger Field.

Just a short follow up on the fake Ceylon note that I wrote about last week. I got four responses from other folks that had similar experiences, one of which was printed in the Gram. It appears that the notes probably originated in Australia and the seller that I and another Gramster bought from got four notes from that party and then went on to sell at least two of them on eBay. Unfortunately, eBay will not let you look more than 30 days into the past, so I can't see if any were sold before the middle of January. I did get a refund check this week and am holding my breath until it clears. I believe that my seller is an uninformed victim of a crook in Australia. Many of the sellers on eBay are not knowledgeable of what they are listing. So the old adage of "Buyer beware" is still good advice.

Editorial

We are pleased and excited to release the ordering instructions and other details about the new MPC book below. We are especially excited about the opportunity to offer a very limited edition of 46 to Gram readers. You get the first (and therefore only) opportunity at this extremely limited and interesting special edition. In addition to being a "limited and special" edition based upon the way it is manufactured, it will have special features sure to make it a hit. Even at this moment all of the specials have not been decided, but you will like the "package" I am sure.

=====

Mail Call

Dear Mr. Publisher 4th edition;

Rumor control (or possibly an official announcement) has it that there will be a "special edition" of the new book. How many "special" numbered 4th edition books will be printed? And what is the procedure for obtaining said book?

David

Dear David,

Well the rumor mill seems to have been working overtime. Did we mention a "special edition" of the MPC book. Possibly we did. Well, we have outdone ourselves on this one I think.

First the facts. There will be three major options on the new book. First, the basic book, 400 pages hardbound. Second, the "collectors' edition," is also hardbound. The cover of this edition says collectors' edition and has an additional 32 pages for a total of 432. Most of the extra pages are (lined) note pages for, well, taking notes, but there are some additional features in this section, 200 produced. Finally, there is what we are calling the researcher's edition. This is the same as the collectors' edition except that it has nice wire binding. This makes it very flexible and ideal for the serious collector. Production on this version was 46 (as in 1946, as in Series 461).

All of the researcher and up to 100 of the collectors' editions will be numbered and signed. They will also have other little features that have not been finalized.

Everyone wants to know the prices. Even that is not so easy. It is more of a marketing plan. Here it is.

We do not expect to advertise the researcher's edition anywhere other than the Gram. If any are left, we might take them to shows or just put them in the warehouse.

As stated above, up to 100 of the collectors' edition will be numbered, autographed and otherwise embellished.

The basic prices are:

Basic edition--$50

Collectors' edition--$95

Researchers' edition--$125

To make it even more complicated, for those who want a "set," we offer the following. Matched numbers of the collectors' AND researchers' edition PLUS the matching numbered/autographed basic edition (not sold separately) AND a "work" copy of the basic edition (NOT numbered, autographed, or embellished). Finally, we will prepare these books at the Fest. We will have the collectors' edition autographed by other major contributors who are in attendance and ship the day after the Fest. The "work" copy of the basic edition will be mailed on the first possible day.

Review of minimum (we are planning an additional surprise or two) contents of the monster library.

Basic edition, work copy

Basic edition, numbered

Collectors' edition, numbered, signed, etc

Researchers' edition, numbered, signed, etc

The cost of this monster library is $250 postpaid (two shipments). Orders will be accepted starting at 1 pm Eastern on Saturday with numbers assigned in the order received at MPCGram@yahoo.com except for sets 2, 4, and 8 which are tentatively reserved for the collectors who collect those position numbers on MPC/MFC. We will The number one set will be sold in the MPCFest auction. Reminders will be published on Friday and Saturday.

Orders for the basic edition and collector's edition will be accepted now ($4 shipping), but numbers for the collectors' edition will be allocated after the big modules have been assigned. Payment may be made by PayPal (preferred) at fredschwan@yahoo.com, or by sending any kind of paper to BNR Press, 132 E. Second St., Port Clinton, OH 43452. We no longer accept credit cards.

We are sorry that this is so intricate/complicated, but it will not be once Gramsters wipe out the special editions. Thank you very much for your interest and support.

Editor

Dear Editor,

[Regarding the explanation that the location of the for sale section is intended to force scrolling through the Gram.]

That's a crock. I scroll through the junk, all right, a page at a time, faster than anyone could read it. I only keep all that crap about once a month. Your dumb idea just makes people hate the pages and pages of junk that never change. They surely don't go through it in detail to see if it HAS changed.

Joe

Dear Joe,

Thank you for your comments. I guess the point is that we now have a need for an MPCGram clipping service.

Legal Observations about Trading in Fake Items

By James Downey

You asked for an attorney's opinion regarding Ski's purchase of the counterfeit note from Ceylon. Well, here goes.

The purchase and sale of goods is governed by Article 2 of the Uniform Commercial Code (UCC) and principles of contract and tort law. The amount of the transaction and the nature of the parties may also bring state consumer protection laws into play. Violation of consumer protection laws may result in fines or criminal penalties depending on the state. A knowing misrepresentation amounts to fraud which also is a criminal offense. Finally, the Federal Fair Standards in Hobbies Act requires all copies of numismatic material to be identified as such and failure to do so on items created after 1964 can be subject to fines and imprisonment.

Claiming an item is genuine when it is not amounts to a misrepresentation under the warranty provisions of Article 2 of the UCC and tort laws. It also is a breach of contract. There is a fine line between what is considered sales puffery and misrepresentation, however. Statements as to rarity or opinion as to value generally fall into the latter category and are not actionable. For example, listing common JIM notes on ebay as "rare" with ridiculously high opening bids falls into this category, but the representation of an item as genuine when it is not is a blatant misrepresentation.

Under the UCC and contract principles, the buyer would have the right to rescind the sales agreement. The object of rescission is to void the contract and return the parties to their relative position prior to the agreement. This would require the buyer to return the goods and the seller to refund the purchase price and any additional charges contemplated by the transaction such as shipping, postage and insurance.

Under tort law, the buyer would sue for damages for the misrepresentation. The measure of damages is generally the difference between the value of the goods as represented and their true value. A knowing and intentional misrepresentation amounts to fraud and may subject the seller to punitive damages.

The question of jurisdiction is a complicated one. Generally, a sale is considered to have taken place in the state of residence of the buyer regardless of the location of the seller, unless the choice of jurisdiction is identified in the sales contract or it is a face-to-face transaction. (This is why sales tax is not collected by sellers on interstate mail transactions. It is supposed to be paid by the buyer to the buyer's home state. In Wisconsin, where I live, the Department of Revenue tries to collect the sales tax on out-of-state purchases by Wisconsin residents on the annual income tax forms. It is usually ignored by the taxpayer.) Consequently, the laws of the buyer's state are applicable and the buyer's state would also be the proper venue for litigation. Getting an out-of-state or foreign seller into court and enforcing the judgment may be problematic, however.

I trust that this answers your questions on these matters. I have to issue my standard lawyerly caveat, however. This discussion is based on general principles of law only and may not be true for a given jurisdiction based on that state's laws.

MPC Book ordering information, repeated from Gram 555

There will be three major options on the new book. First, the basic book, 400 pages hardbound. Second, the "collectors' edition," is also hardbound. The cover of this edition says collectors' edition and has an additional 32 pages for a total of 432. Most of the extra pages are (lined) note pages for, well, taking notes, but there are some additional features in this section, 200 produced. Finally, there is what we are calling the researcher's edition. This is the same as the collectors' edition except that it has nice wire binding. This makes it very flexible and ideal for the serious collector. Production on this version was 46 (as in 1946, as in Series 461).

All of the researcher and up to 100 of the collectors' editions will be numbered and signed. They will also have other little features that have not been finalized.

Everyone wants to know the prices. Even that is not so easy. It is more of a marketing plan. Here it is.

We do not expect to advertise the researcher's edition anywhere other than the Gram. If any are left, we might take them to shows or just put them in the warehouse.

As stated above, up to 100 of the collectors' edition will be numbered, autographed and otherwise embellished.

The basic prices are:

Basic edition--$50

Collectors' edition--$95

Researchers' edition--$125

To make it even more complicated, for those who want a "set," we offer the following. Matched numbers of the collectors' AND researchers' edition PLUS the matching numbered/autographed basic edition (not sold separately) AND a "work" copy of the basic edition (NOT numbered, autographed, or embellished). Finally, we will prepare these books at the Fest. We will have the collectors' edition autographed by other major contributors who are in attendance and ship the day after the Fest. The "work" copy of the basic edition will be mailed on the first possible day.

Review of minimum (we are planning an additional surprise or two) contents of the monster library.

Basic edition, work copy

Basic edition, numbered

Collectors' edition, numbered, signed, etc

Researchers' edition, numbered, signed, etc

The cost of this monster library is $250 postpaid (two shipments). Orders will be accepted starting at 1 pm Eastern on Saturday with numbers assigned in the order received at MPCGram@yahoo.com except for sets 2, 4, and 8 which are tentatively reserved for the collectors who collect those position numbers on MPC/MFC. We will The number one set will be sold in the MPCFest auction. Reminders will be published on Friday and Saturday.

Orders for the basic edition and collector's edition will be accepted now ($4 shipping), but numbers for the collectors' edition will be allocated after the big modules have been assigned. Payment may be made by PayPal (preferred) at fredschwan@yahoo.com, or by sending any kind of paper to BNR Press, 132 E. Second St., Port Clinton, OH 43452. We no longer accept credit cards.

We are sorry that this is so intricate/complicated, but it will not be once Gramsters wipe out the special editions. Thank you very much for your interest and support.

Editorial

I am certainly pleased at the response to the announcement regarding the sales plan for the new MPC book. We received quite a few inquiries. Orders for the big module will be accepted starting tomorrow (Saturday) at 1pm eastern. However, if you want just the "regular" edition and/or the collectors' edition. You need not wait. You may submit that order immediately (as some did). We will mention all of this again prominently tomorrow, then move on to Fest preparations, CPMX, Knight-May auction, etc.

Mail Call

Dear Editor

For some reason Joe Boling's irradiated mail article in MPCGram 553/4 appeared on my PC with 11 lines, the widest being 9 feet wide. Is this a record?

Gramme A.

Dear Gram,

Yes, sounds like that might be a world record. It also is sort of a variation of being looooong winded.

Editor

Dear Editor,

re: the protection for notes being sent in the mail- why not just use the lead foil bags that one can buy in most good photography stores, which are used to protect film from airport x-ray units?

m ades

Dear Gram,

Regarding insurance for the Fest, I can tell you that the Collectibles Insurance Agency's rates are half the rates of the ANA's Insurance carrier. They do offer coverage for "shows and exhibits" as part of their standard policy, but am not sure if they will sell just a two or three day policy if you do not also have a regular policy. I have bought three day coverage from them in the past during a move.

More on the Mails

By Joe Boling

There was a front page article on irradiated mail in Linn's this week, as more collectors' stamps have been found that have been destroyed by radiation. That article specifically addressed the use of metallic pouches. These do not shield the articles contained therein from the extremely high levels of radiation used in this program. Notice what I said in my original column--this is not taking an xray; it is cooking the contents to kill spores. The metallic pouches trap heat and cause more damage than would occur if they were absent. Do not wrap your notes in foil, no matter what kind of metal it is made from (aluminum or lead). That article also said that at present only mail passing through Northern Virginia is being irradiated; New York was not mentioned.

MPC Book ordering information, repeated from Gram 555

Today is the day to order your monster set of MPC books. The information below is repeated from Gram 555.

There will be three major options on the new book. First, the basic book, 400 pages hardbound. Second, the "collectors' edition," is also hardbound. The cover of this edition says collectors' edition and has an additional 32 pages for a total of 432. Most of the extra pages are (lined) note pages for, well, taking notes, but there are some additional features in this section, 200 produced. Editorial

Based upon the mail received in the past few days, there is a lot of interest in the various editions of the MPC book and in the Monster Set. Of course we are pleased by this. Tomorrow we will report how many monster sets were sold.

Also tomorrow we will start featuring the Fest in the Gram. We are working on a draft training schedule. Do not worry, we have not forgotten about the morning 10k runs and swims. If the weather holds, ice will not be a problem for the swims.

Mail Call

Dear Editor,

Not sure If I totally agree with "method" of the way the new book sales are to be implemented. Books number 2-4-8 reserved because of the position number they collect? I know of someone who collects position #1 notes and that book(s) will be auctioned @ Fest III. If everyone Emails @ precisely 1PM eastern time, how the heck are you going to determine who gets what? How about the COLLECTORS who have been in this hobby for many, many years? You, Elmer Smith, Leo May, Marvin Mericle.....Not all the Newbys that have jumped on the MPC bandwagon past couple years. Guess I'm getting sour in my old age...47 next Thursday.

MPC-WEST

Dear Old Sour Guy,

Thank you very much for writing. First to the easy part. The numbers will be assigned in the order in which the mails are in my box. Probably that is unfair too. Oh well. It just seemed fitting to encourage the folks who are collecting by position. By the way, notice that I added 39 to the list today because I had forgotten that one!

Of course, as you indicate, number one is a problem. First, at least two people collect position number one. Beyond that, many people will be interested in that one even though they do not collect that position.

I for one am pleased to see the newbees even though, as you indicate, they also compete with the old stale air guys.

I had thought about the possibility of making as many number one copies as there was demand, but that sort of defeats the purpose it seems to me.

Editor

Dear editor and target,

Thank you for holding out monster set number 8 of the MPC book for me. It will go into the set of BNR Press products that I am accumulating (but I know there are many BNR Press products that I don't have here).

Joe

Dear Joe,

I am happy that you are pleased. It is always nice to get pleasant comments, but from you it is special! At least in your case, the special treatment is going to an "old guy."

Ohio into First Place (Tie) for Fest

David Seelye has recruited the 31 Fester, Ed Frey of Glenmont, Ohio. Frey is an important recruit because he moves Ohio into a first place tie with Indiana and Oklahoma for the most Festers! Of course as the host state for the Fest, it is appropriate that Ohio should be a leader in attendance if for no other reason than its citizens have the shortest distance to travel. For that reason, Ohio is in third place because of the distance tiebreaker. However, Fest organizer Fred Schwan reports that he has several Ohio candidates who might attend the Fest so fair warning to Indiana, Oklahoma, and any other state with thoughts of coming to the lead from back in the back.

Welcome Ed Frey, and thank you David Seelye!

Welcome to the World

by Mark Watson, newbie world guy

"Wow, U.S. money in color" - my first impression when I set my eyes on a MPC note. The only color I ever saw occurred on the various U.S. Treasury seals. So MPC came as a nice surprise, and I started collecting it.

Of course I knew world paper money had color but I was a U.S.-only collector. To me, I didn't have any reason to collect anything other than U.S. Sure, I had a couple of odd coins and notes from foreign countries, I mean, who doesn't. But I definitely didn't collect them. Really, what's the point of collecting someone else's money? That's what I believed ten years ago when I started collecting MPC.

I kept most of that belief up to this summer when Joe Boling and Fred Schwan introduced me to the world. Even though I had looked through that big black book of theirs, I never really saw what I was missing. Then, at the Summer Seminar, they and the rest of the class showed me.

In addition to seeing the other types of money used during the war like AMC, I thoroughly enjoyed the various designs used on war bonds, or fixed income securities if you want to sound impressive. I even started my war bond collection that week by buying two Japanese bonds at the Young Numismatist (YN or Hawaiian for Sam Feedback) Auction. The next day in class I added a third to my collection from Joe's stock, and continue to buy others.

Now that I'd started looking at the world, I realized I sorely lacked education in the various areas. Being a member of the ANA and SPMC helped in my U.S. endeavors, but didn't give me the breadth to help me in my world collecting. So, I joined the International Bank Note Society. I've already gotten my first journal, and the amount of world information contained in that one volume was amazing, at least for me.

I've also started upgrading my library collection. First, I bought Volume 2 and 3 of the Standard Catalog of Paper Money. I've also recently bought a copy of Money and Conquest off of ebay. Now I'm looking for T.F.A. van Elmp't's BAFSV book, Ting's book on Chinese military notes and bonds, and Rutlader's AMC book. These along with books I can borrow from the ANA / IBNS library will help in the transition. Additionally, I now check the international show listings, something I'd never considered before.

Budgetary reasons (still haven't won the lottery) prevent me from going to one for the next couple of years (I mean, hey, I still have to pay for the Fest), but at least I can start planning for one in the future. Most likely I'll try to attend one tied in with an IBNS meeting. I've also started collecting names of dealers who specialize in the field. For now, I'm trying to learn as much as I can, and continue checking at shows for war bonds. I've also put together my want list of AMC issues, a natural progression to my existing MPC collection. I'm going to try to keep it contained to those areas (that budget thing again), but I'm sure at some point that big black book will consume me, and I'll start buying everything. Until next month.

Editorial

We are very pleased to welcome Mark Watson as a monthly columnist! The plan is that Mark will write one Sunday per month. We very much would like to find three or four additional, courageous souls to share the Sunday slot. This would give the gram much greater breadth and also reduce the strain on the editorial headquarters.

We did not get to the comments on the sales of the new MPC book nor on MPC Fest. We worked on both of those projects today and will share some of the info tomorrow. Sorry about the extra delay.

Mail Call

Dear Editor,

Last night California had the BIGGEST state Lottery jackpot ever for a state lottery! 193 MILLION dollars!!!! However I am more concerned as to what number set of the new MPC books I am allowed to purchase than checking to see if I won any loot!Oh great and mighty editor can you please tell us where the numbers have fallen upon our designated Saturday morning Email requests.

Thank You!

MPC-WEST!

Dear Ed,

It is obvious that you have an albino 0, thus showing the figure 100 instead of 1000. I congratulate you on publishing the book and any errors should be seen as an opportunity for the collector to update their book immediately with any new material seen/omissions/prefixes/prices. We are publishing English Paper Money by Duggleby this year and I too, dread the inevitable error. But, then we are human and to err is human. See you in Chicago/Memphis?

Regards,

Pam

Hello Pam,

Thank you for your good wishes and good luck with Duggleby. There is not such thing as an easy book project!

Yes, of course I will be in Chicago and Memphis. I look forward to seeing you there.

Ed

HOT Fest News

Series 471 MPC was issued on March 10, 1947. MPCFest III ends on March 10, 2002—the 55th birthday for the series. Therefore, the theme for Fest III will be happy birthday Series 471. A featured event of the Fest will be a birthday party for Series 471.

MPCFest is the only event that pays collectors to attend! Yes, every person who attends the Fest is actually paid as part of the event! Even if Festers were not paid, it is a great event, the highlight of the MPC year! Registration for the Fest is only $149. This one payment includes lodging and meals throughout the Fest as well as participation in all of the activities of the Fest.

Dealer participants are also patrons of the event and pay an additional $150 fee for which all Festers thank them. They also receive special recognition and space during the Fest bourse.

All fees should be paid before the Fest. Payment can be sent to MPCFest Attn Fred Schwan, 132 E. Second St. Port Clinton, OH 43452 or via PayPal using email fredschwan@yahoo.com. Thank you for your cooperation in this matter. When payment is received, it will be indicated on the company roster.

Lodging is based upon double occupancy. Roommates are assigned by the first sergeant. While this sounds a bit strange, it has a very definite purpose. First time Festers are billeted with veteran Festers and roommates are not repeated. Obviously, this system saves money that can then be spent on MPC, but it also does other things. This system increases the fellowship of the event. It also improves security. However, there were some comments (complaints?) last year about collectors who strongly prefer single occupancy. That option will be available this year for only an additional $50.

AAFES BONUS BUCK$

by Howard A. Daniel III

I recently purchased two large fireproof safes. One of the promises I made to my wife was that I would assemble all of my collections in the safes and discover what was duplicate, triplicate or more, and then sell or trade them to reduce the large amount of "stuff" in the house. For several weeks, I have been finding hundreds of pieces in boxes, in envelopes I filled at shows, in stacks of mail from my mail-order purchases and bids, in packages from publishers for illustrations in my columns and articles, and falling out from between the pages of publications and my journals. It is almost like Christmas day after day. Some of them were completely forgotten about and a real nice surprise to add to my collection.

This article is about something I long ago wanted to write about to see if it is of interest to anyone. I found what is about the size of a United States dollar note and has "1"s in each corner like a $1 note. The piece is uniface and has everything in light to dark green ink except for a bar code with 0-27664-52019-4 in black ink. The center has "BONUS BUCK$" in two lines in the center and the dollar signs are there instead of "S"s. The left center has "Validated By:" and a line below it for a signature or overstamp. Below the line is "Bonus Bucks valid on next purchase. Purchase must exceed value of Bonus Bucks." in four lines. The right center has "Excludes Gasoline Alcohol, Uniform & Accessory Issue Items and Catalog purchases. Redeemable in AAFES main store only through 31 Dec 98." Yes, there is no comma between "Gasoline" and "Alcohol" so there must have been a new fuel at the gas station like is used in dragsters.

The date on it tells me I probably acquired it sometime during 1998 at the Fort Belvoir PX and kept it because its value to a collector of military financial pieces. Does anyone know of other "coupons" like this for other military exchanges worldwide? Does anyone collect this type of "coupon"? Should it be included in any current or future catalogs? I would be interested in reading your letters to the esteemed editor of the MPCGram about this piece.

Editorial

Kevin Maloy's criticism of the means of distributing the monster library numbers to me thinking (unusual as that may be). Frankly, before the fact the time system was the only one that I thought of. Now I have thought of other options.

First, an easy change. Buyers of the monster library will be listed in the fifth edition as patrons. Indeed, we will start calling this the Patron's Set (but Monster Library/Set is still good). Once I thought of this, I got mad at myself again because with some coordination, we could have taken the orders in advance and had the patrons listed in THIS edition. Oh well, a good idea better late than never.

Because of Kevin's letter, it occurred to me that we could have taken the orders then drawn for the numbers at the Fest. I think that I was interested in helping the position number collectors (2, 4, 8, and 39) get these respective numbers and that goal drove the plan. After all, it seems that we should do something to reinforce the appropriate behavior!

In retrospect, I think that the system was wrong. I think that we should have done it by drawing as described above (number one still to be in the auction to give everyone an equal, free-market chance). This could be done with or without the protection for the reserved numbers. There is even something in it for the 2, 4, 8, 39 collectors. They will get the opportunity to trade for the numbers that they want. Even though they will deny it, that would be fun.

It seems to me that since the distribution of numbers has not been announced, we can still modify the system to the above lottery or some variation. I expect that this will generate lots of mail (I hope so, we love mail at the Gram). The change could even allow withdrawal of orders for anyone so upset and so inclined, but it seems to me that the only ones who might get real upset are the 2, 4, 8, and 39 guys. While they might get upset, their advantage was not fair to start with so their argument is weak.

We look forward to your comments.

Dear Editor,

Good for Mark (Wilson). Getting hold of the BAFSV book may be a little difficult as they are basically sold out. As far as I know only Claire Lobel still has a few copies.

Theo

Dear Theo,

As always, thanks for writing. BAFSV is a GREAT book. [Clair, if you have some copies available, please give us a notice so that we can help you sell them. Gramsters should have this book.]

Editor

Dear Editor,

Please accept my order for a copy of the Collector's Edition. Signed and if you can find time an inscription of some sort would be appreciated. I suspect I'm too late to request copy number 13, but that is my lucky number, so it would be appreciated.

The check is in the mail..... Well, it will be tomorrow.

Looking forward to the book. Congratulations on getting it done. It has been a long job, but it will be appreciated by many.

Bill

Dear Editor,

I would like to order the researchers edition of the MPC book. Upon confirmation of my order I will send a check for $125.

WILLIAM M. LOVELL

JOHNSTON ISLAND APO AP 96558

Dear William,

Thank you very much for the order (of course). I must admit that Johnston Island is one of the most exotic locations to which I have ever sent a book (or anything). What is the population of the island?

A few years ago at the Honolulu airport I noticed a once-a-week flight to the island.

Is there are military banking facility on the island? If so, I would sure love to have a check from it. Heck, I suspect that many Gramsters would like one.

Thanks again for the order and for writing. I don't suppose that you can make it to the Fest?!

Editor

Dear Editor,

I synchronized my computer this the OFFICIAL internet time as is allowable in windows XP to insure that my order would be received precisely at 1:00 EST. Please accept my order for a Researchers Edition of the new MPC Book. I am very much looking forward to this. Thanks.

Marcus Turner

Dear Marcus,

I appreciate your efforts and thanks for the order! In addition, you made me laugh! The deadline only related to the monster library. Other orders could be accepted before or after that time! See you soon (at the Fest).

Special "MPC" events

March 2002 8-10 - MPCFest III - reservations in order received: Harold kroll, Larry Smulczenski, Gary "Got any fours" Hicks, David Seelye, Jack Lippincot, Phil Goldstein, Warner Talso, Nick Schrier, Richard Freyser, Tom Koch, Mark Watson, Bill Yanchick, Doug Bell, Sam Feedback, Bruce Potter, Elmer Smith, Marv Mericle, Wes and Rod Hardy, Marcus Turner, Gene Ryanwood, Al Glaser, Ian Marshall, Carlson Chambliss, Ray Bows, Kevin Maloy, Mike Cummings, Ed Frey Fred Schwan: sick call Guido Crapanzano, Tom Warburton, {running total 31}] [missing "old" Festers: Dan Swartz, Leo May, (did I forget someone?), come on guys, give us your reservation]

[Fest reservations for Fest IV: Guido Crapanzano, Tom Warburton, Fred Schwan]

Fest registration is $149 including lodging, meals, activities, and assorted goodies. Single occupancy is available for an additional $50. Payments may be sent via snail mail to MPCFest/Fred Schwan, 132 E. Second St., Port Clinton, OH 43452 or (preferred except for credit card payment) via paypal using email address fredschwan@yahoo.com. Thank you very much.

Three airports are reasonably available for the Fest. In order of proximity they are:

Toledo

Cleveland

Detroit (Metro)

All three are reasonable. If you can arrive early enough AND coordinate it well ahead, every attempt will be made to pick you up at the airport to save on rental cars. Festers are encouraged to coordinate among themselves for rides. We will also run notices in the Gram and, finally, we will try to coordinate for Festers to run pickups from Fest central.

Hot Contact List

Below is the BNR Press Hot Contact List. This list serves several functions. Obviously it is an outreach by the dealers listed for your business. Most of them buy and sell MPC. Others organize shows or publish periodicals. They have supported the new Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates with their advertising. They deserve your support and patronage.

Secondly, this is a draft from the book that participating dealers should check for correctness. Finally, dealers who are not on it and want to can still get their ads in if they act promptly. Respond to this email or call (419) 732-6683.

We are sorry if the format is a little messed up here in the Gram, we are not sure of how to fix it!

Early Experiences with MPC

By Joe Boling

I thought I had written about my childhood uses of MPC for the gram, but I cannot find it anywhere in my submissions, so I'll say something about that today. If you've heard it before, I don't know where it would have been. I went to Morocco in late 1953 as a sixth-grader. We were using series 481 when I arrived. The exchange rate for Moroccan francs was 360 to the dollar--exactly the same rate as for yen in Japan at the time. I have always wondered if there could have been any connection between the setting of the two rates on opposite sides of the world.

A better rate was available in Tangier, so just after every payday (once a month) the finance officer on base gathered up dollars from the servicemen who had to make large payments in francs (those living off post with rent to pay), and took it to Tangier to exchange for francs (I don't know what the rate was there, but it was sufficiently favorable to warrant making the trip). I have always believed that the trip was made by Air Force plane, but I don't know for sure--it could have been by train.

The trip was called "the floose run," based on a Moroccan word for money. I expect it is related to "falus," the pre-French "monetaire" for Moroccan coinage. Now, what did the finance officer take to Tangier? If it was MPC, there had to be some slender legitimacy to the transaction (else I can't see it being done the way it was). If it was greenbacks, then there was some sort of exemption that allowed for use of green outside the country where the troops were. Anyone out there know an AF finance officer from mid-50s Morocco who might know something about monthly activity? Aside to Bill Murray, how about in your retirement community?

I remember Dad showing me a 5c 481 note raised to 50c with a ball point pen. Since he was an OSI agent (Office of Special Investigations), he probably had it as part of an investigation. I remember being struck by how easy it would be to change a note that way, because of the uniformity of the colors in series 481. During our tour in Morocco the MPC was exchanged for series 521. I remember the event, but not the details--just that Dad had to come home (27 miles each way), gather up the MPC that was there, and return to the base to exchange it. I never had the feeling that there was any particularly rigorous control of the movement of the members with families. I don't know about the unmarried airmen on base who might have been tempted to bring in MPC from the economy.

We returned to the States in September 1955 and were in LA until August 1957. At that time, we went to Itazuke Air Base, Japan. Surprise--series 521 was still in use. While there we converted to series 541; again, Dad was able to come home (several miles off base) and get the notes that we had there. As mentioned above, the exchange rate for yen was 360/dollar. The only thing I can recall specifically about the MPC is the miscut piece that I collected there--a 541-10c note with a diagonally cut bottom. Part of the note below shows. I received that note in change in the Green Wave Cafe just off the main parade ground. I immediately recognized it as special, and put it into my shirt pocket unfolded instead of into my wallet. Recall that Fred has written previously about the quality control problems with series 541; my piece supports that. We were still using series 541 when we left in August 1960. I used series 641 and 661 in Vietnam, but I have already written about that. My apologies to those of you who asked me to get the Mafeking book for you in December. I apparently forgot to place the order, and now cannot find the catalog.

Editorial

Sorry about no Gram yesterday. Before we knew it, the day was over. Funny how that happens! This is the dreaded double issue! Do not worry, we are not cheating you, your subscription is being extended by not one, but two issues!

Russ Walsh gave us a surprise and set some sort of Fest record. When we opened email today, we found notice from PayPal that Russ Walsh had paid for the Fest. He is certainly the first person who has ever paid for the Fest before reserving a spot. At least we did not have him on the list! Welcome Russ.

This edition includes a lot of information on the Fest. Most of it is in draft form. We need and want your feedback on these matters.

Festers, we must have a hometown that you want listed on documents (tee shirts and things like that). Please send us the hometown that you prefer.

Dear Gram,

I have a comment on Howard Daniel's Bonus Bucks. I know that Ft Meade, Andrews AFB and Bolling AFB Army Air Force Exchange Service (AAFES) Exchange issued the Bonus Bucks at least in 1997 and 1998. I saw denominations of $1, $5, and $10 although there may have been a $20. They were issued in the 30days prior to Christmas based on the amount you spent--issued obviously as an enticement to spend more $$$. As I remember, if you spent $10, you received a Bonus Buck for $1, ie, a 10% payback. You could then use the Bonus Bucks for purchases, I believe, up to the end of January the following year. Not all were redeemed, so I am sure so Army Air Force Exchange Service made out on the transactions.

Thanks, Ray Czahor

Dear Esteemed Editor,

I must have missed something because I am reading about Researcher and Collector Editions of the next MPC book edition and do not know what they are writing about. Please write again about them so I might order one too. That is if it is within my budget.

Howard A. Daniel III

Dear Editor,

I was wondering when we needed to send our deposit for Fest III. I don't remember reading anything about it in the Grams and I'm sure that we had to have sent our deposit in for Fest II by this time last year. Did I miss it in one of the Grams?

W. E. Yanchick

Dear Fester,

The pay window is now open. Thanks at least in part to your prodding we are now accepting Fest payments. You should have found more info than you could possibly use in the past few grams. Just in case: send $149 via paypal to fredschwan@yahoo.com.

Editor

Dear Editor,

I loved Ski's Valentines Day article. Until I read that I thought that the only people who could make stretches like that were our steamed editor, me, and the US Olympic hockey team goalie.

C. Tolek

Dear Editor,

Today at 20:02 "military" time, the time and date will be 2002.2002.2002, the most unique date in the history - if you write the date before the month as most of the world does. For us Military Payment Certificates nuts, it's some thing to celebrate. It is a four-repeated and all radar, and every set of the repeated number is a radar itself. The last time this occurred was 10:01 on January 10th, 1001, making it 1001.1001.1001. There will not be another of this date ever, ever. Does any one out there have a note of any kind that coordinates with this type of event?

Best regards,

Trung T. Nguyen, P.E.

Dear Nguyen,

Wow, this is bad. Everyone is getting as sick as I am! A few days ago I was thinking about swims notes. You will recall that these are notes where the serial number reads the same in the correct position and if held upside down.

The first MPC flipper known was the famous one from the Elmer Smith collection H00069000 (yes a replacement). As a kid collecting coins in 1969, I was intrigued that the date was a flipper. I recall discussing this with my brother and another kid in the neighborhood. We concluded that the swims (did not know what to call it) date was 1881.

Well another swims was found (reported in the Gram at the time). It is serial number 00196100 which of course is how I thought of all of this. The interesting question is, when is the next swims year? I think that it is not until 6009! If I am missing something, I am sure that someone will let me know!

Editor

Dear Editor:

I just noticed that you have a 5 pfhennig Oranienburg concentration camp note on page 496 of WW2 Remembered #1061 listed as "blue." It is actually green. I will put mine on Ebay tonight.

Best regards,

Dennis (Do you ever respond to E-mails?) What address should I send your documents to?

Dennis O'Neill

Notes from "the Other Side"

By Joel Shafer

Well, we are rapidly approaching the Chicago auction. It probably has not seemed that long in coming to most people simply because the catalogs have not been out for very long. However, for me it has been a lengthier period because the catalog process entails quite a few steps-getting material, organizing it, writing it up, submitting it, proofreading, etc.-some which took place quite a while ago. (And, sometimes, each of these steps has several sub-steps; you get the idea...).

Just like anybody else, I am curious to see how it will go. We already have healthy bids on some higher dollar lots. By no means is that meant to discourage anybody. There should be enough quality material to go around at reasonable levels for everyone from the beginner to the most advanced collector. As I have stated many times, this truly was a labor of love. And it was both (labor intensive/a lovely privilege to work with this caliber of material). I am grateful to all who have enjoyed the catalog. I am just as grateful, if not more so, to those who have provided outstanding constructive comments on improvements for next time.

We want to continually provide a better product. We have had suggestions and comments from people around the globe-thank you. I found out that the adage about scholarship is absolutely true-the more you study/work with a given area, the more you find out what you do and do not know. There were so many lessons learned/relearned about this material. A couple examples will be specifically addressed: 1) Being open-minded is a good thing: With the exception of filling blue book pages as a young lad, I never considered myself anything of a coin collector. After writing this catalog, I came to grips with the fact that some collectibles made out of metal are not merely acceptable, but quite intriguing. For example, we have four aluminum tokens from Greenland's Kantinen Narssarssuaq (lot #624) and a four-piece set from the Curragh Internment Camp in Ireland (lot #723). Not much is known about either lot. I used the available information, but there is much more to be discovered about both. And there are other lots for which information was sparse. 2) Somewhere, somehow, knowledge acquired long ago can come back at the right time.

This project reminded me of the extent of the Bons de Solidarite varieties by denomination. As I worked, I recalled the presentations by Lance Campbell about this series. I suppose that knowledge lay dormant until it was triggered. At any rate, there are some truly amazing varieties within this series, not to mention some of the vivid images depicted on the higher denominations. Taken together, these images relate something of a black/white movie of World War II. Many of the items can speak volumes for themselves far better than any words can. In all, it was a joy to work on this catalog. Now let the fun begin... By the way, if anyone has any questions, they can either call (262) 387-0866 or e-mail me (grbaypa@aol.com). I look forward to seeing you in Chicago!

More POW Items and Another Ski Stretch

By Larry "Ski" Smulczenski

A little over a week ago, I put three chits from Laredo AFB, Texas on eBay. I have vivid memories of that base during my career in the Air Force. I have mentioned recently, that I went through Basic Flight Training at Webb AFB in Texas. Laredo was a sister base that was down on the Mexican border with a twin city across the Rio Grande by the name of Nuevo Laredo. The instructors loved to take their students down to the valley on a day-night cross country so that they could slip across the border and buy a couple of jugs of rum to take home. The popular size was a 40 ounce bottle because it fit nice and tight between the ejection seat and the side of the airplane. The cost was about a buck and a half to two bucks a bottle. I wasn't much of a drinker, so my instructor bought my share to take home. Anyway, we had six or eight jugs in the back cockpit which I was going to occupy going home. I was to be what was known as "under the bag," i.e. flying night instruments during the trip home.

The bag was a hood that covered the back canopy so that you couldn't look outside for visual references as you flew. The flight was uneventful until we got back to Webb. Approach, landing, taxi back and shutdown were also uneventful. I thought I would earn some brownie points by unloading the instructors booze and putting it in the vehicle that met us at the plane. As I remember, I was balancing four-forty ouncers in my arms as I came down the ladder. As my boot hit the ramp, I stepped right beside a large tarantula. Now these hairy things really get big in west Texas, and they can jump in air like three feet. I can remember shooting at them with a 22 cal. rifle and watching the legs literally explode from the body. This sucker jumped as I left the ladder and brushed against my hands. I saw him out of the corner of my eye and it scared the bejeazus out of me. I dropped those four puppies I was carrying in a perfect line. One, two, three, four. Believe me, I really had to work to not get a pink slip for that flight.

I got carried away with my story and lost the train of thought about what I had started to write about. The three chits sold to a buyer from Greenville, Pennsylvania. My mind mistook this for the Greensburg, Pa near where I was born and grew up. I was informed of my mistake and told that Greenville is on the western Pennsylvania border near Youngstown, Ohio. Then it struck me. That's where the Camp Reynolds POW Camp was located. Camp Reynolds' chits were unknown until a couple of years ago when R.A. Medina came up with a partially full booklet of chits. It quickly changed hands to a very advanced collection in the north central part of the United States. Both buyers paid a high price for these previously unknown treasures. Your columnist was fortunate to obtain a complete set of the chits from one of the owners although the price caused a lot of bleeding for the next couple of months. But now, those little pieces of paper occupy a cherished spot in my POW collection. Ther e are five chits in the series. A light blue-gray 1c, a pink 2c, a light green 5c, an off white 10c and a yellow 25c. I haven't seen the booklet cover, but my guess is that it was printed by Allison Coupon Company based on the similarity of the design of the chits that Allison printed for POW camps in Illinois. I hope to see that cover one of these days.

I told my buyer about the discovery of the book and was amazed when an email came back saying that he had grown up in Camp Reynolds and currently lives a couple of miles from it. He and his brother are interested in any artifacts from Camp Reynolds and are trying to uncover the history of this camp. He told me that a few buildings from the Camp are still standing and a housing project occupies the area where the barracks used to stand. The Camp was named for a civil war general and operated as a World War II training base. Camp Reynolds was only open for about three years. He tells me that there are some photos of the camp in a VFW Hall in a nearby town. This was all exciting information as there is very little currently written that I have found about this location. I did know the origin of the name and also can add that the POW camp had an even shorter life than the main encampment. It was only open for ten months from April of 1945 to January of 1946 and housed 775 pri soners. Those reported dates are not firm and are still under investigation as there are conflicting reports that I have found. But isn't it amazing how you accidentally run into people with common interests when you simply ask a question about their homes or hobbies..

By next Thurski we will be in Chicago for CPMX and the Lyn Knight Auction which includes the Leo May collection of MPC. As I write this on Wednesday evening another coincidence appears on my desk calendar. My wife gave me this little calendar as a Christmas present, because it has facts about World War II for each day of the year. It is one of those rip off a page each day as the year passes. Each day's page has a piece of WWII trivia. Today's is very appropriate as we look forward to the trip to Chicago and a stay at the Holiday Inn on the fringe of O'Hare Airport. I quote.-- On this day in 1942, the carrier Lexington comes under attack from nine Japanese planes, with only one fighter plane available for defense. Pilot Edward O'Hare downs five Japanese planes in as many minutes to save the ship. O'Hare would later be killed in action and honored by having Chicago's O'Hare Airport named for him. I feel like Paul Harvey because there you have the rest of the story. Good da y!

Editorial

We are very pleased to present the first weekly column from Joel Shafer. Ok, so Joel has not agreed to it (yet), but we sure hope that he will do it. Even if he will not agree to that, I hope that he will contribute more often. He put his email in the article so you might write to him encouraging him to write such a column!

I hate to think about how long I have known Joel. I am sure that some of Neil Shafer’s (Joel’s father) friends in the hobby tell Joel that they remember when he was born. I do not go back THAT far, but I remember him well before he got interested in girls!

Joel mentions the Bons de Solidarite issues. Some of the first adventures that Lance Campbell and I shared had to do with Bons de Solidarite. Lance was keenly interested in these so we worked on them quite a bit. This work translated into the listings in his book then later into WWII Remembered. That introduction makes me uncertain if I want to go on and talk about Lance or about Bons de Solidarite! Both are interesting. Of course the best would be if Lance would break his silence here in the Gram and write about the Bondies himself.

I believe that he and I were the first to locate some of the large certificates and introduce them to the market in the US. Certainly, I had never seen any before that and those first pieces that we found were the basis of the listings in the books. The pieces that we found were sold into collections. That was probably about 1988. I have not seen many (if any) of these certificates since then. They are neat.

We never found any complete booklets, certainly not of high denominations like the booklet in the sale. I was certainly interested to see that piece. Obviously, it was found in France. We knew that the "notes" were issued in booklets because of the tabs. We found some small groups still together, but no booklets. If anyone has seen other booklets, we certainly would be pleased to hear about it and publish it here in the Gram.

Festers, immediately check the company roster for spelling of your name and home town. Also check the number of Fests, I was embarrassed to discover that I had a mistake on an original Fester in that area!

Mail Call

Dear Esteemed Editor,

I must have missed something because I am reading about Researcher and Collector Editions of the next MPC book edition and do not know what they are writing about. Please write again about them so I might order one too. That is if it is within my budget.

Howard A. Daniel III

Dear Editor...

Somebody Has Hacked Your System....."They Have Gained Access To The GRAM."

Of All The Things.....Not To Be Believed.....!!

They Placed An Item In The Wanted Section.....!!

We Can Not Allow This To Continue....This Is An Outrage....!!

I Have Stared The Search For This Scoundrel....

How Could Anyone Think They Could Get Away With That...?!?!

;o) Ed B

Dear Readers,

Wow, what an amazing pair of letters. One demonstrating very careful reading of the Gram, the other indicating blatant disregard of major stories. Go figure.

Howard, we will resend you a Gram with the particulars.

Ed, you are so correct, the Wanted section has hardly been used. We will be very excited to receive more wanted items.

By the way, you both should come to the Fest.

Steamed Editor

Dear Editor:

As for Johnston Island, I work for a government contractor. The population is approximately around 900 now. Soon to be smaller as we are preparing for closure in the next couple or three years. Right now another contractor is finishing up on their job of destroying chemical weapons. As it looks now the timing will be perfect to coincide with my retirement. That may or may not make a lot of people happy.

Sorry there is no military banking facility here. Right now there are 5 flights that come to or through the island but the prices have increased dramatically making it tough for some of the lower salaried personnel to get off the island in between their regular vacation. I won't be able to make it to the Fest this year but I will try and make plans for it next year. Will it be the same time frame and have you decided where it will be??

(Barnacle) Bill Lovell

Dear Barnacle Bill,

Wonderful, we look forward to having you for Fest IV! It will be at about the same time next year. Basically, it will be the weekend after CPMX. We will enter you on the advance reservations for next year.

MPC Legal and Organizational Responsibilities
Second Report

By Warner Talso

Recall that Fred, The Delegator, assigned me the task of researching the legal and organizational history of MPC. The first report was published in the MPC Gram, Series 002, Number 404, Wednesday, July 25, 2001. This was summary of the current legal status and some unanswered questions. For example, current DoD Directives state that there will be two issues of MPC in reserve for use if necessary. Is this still true? I asked the curator of the Army Finance Museum for help and he queried his contacts in DFAS (Defense Finance and Accounting Service - the DoD successor to the Army Finance Center). As an update, there has been no word back from DFAS. For this second report I will go back to the genesis of MPC. The Secretary of the Treasury, Fred M. Vinson, proposed using MPC in a letter dated February 8, 1946. His primary concern seemed to be protecting the dollar reserves. He cites other correspondence dating back to October 17, 1945, indicating that there had been consid erable discussion about financing American Armed Forces overseas after the war. He also seemed to be preoccupied with the suspicion that some GIs were making "small fortunes" on the black market. As I understand it, this letter will be reproduced in the next issue of the "Comprehensive Catalog of MPC." This is as far back as I can find record of MPC. Logically, the War Department and the Treasury announced the plans for MPC to all financial institutions. As part of this, the President of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago wrote a letter to all Banks in the Seventh Federal Reserve District on December 20, 1946, advising of a War Department announcement adopting MPC on September 17, 1946. (This is a one day difference from that reported in Fred's book.) The purpose of the letter seems to be to advise all banks of this new instrument and that MPC was not to be accepted or exchanged under any circumstances. The letter advises that MPC will be the sole medium of exchange in A rmy establishments overseas and lists the countries. Of interest i

Cold War Recognition Certificate

by Howard A. Daniel III

Since April 5, 1999, there has been a certificate available to all military and government employees to recognize their service during the Cold War. The Cold War dates are September 2, 1945 to December 26, 1991. That first date looks like the surrender date of the Japanese at the end of World War II. The certificate is signed by the Secretary of Defense and is reported to be high quality printing on high quality paper. I have not yet applied for copies for my wife (she was a U.S. government employee) and myself, but will do it soon.

You can mail a copy of any official government or military document with the recipient's name, Social Security Number/Military Service Number/Foreign Service Number and date of service to: Cold War Recognition, 4035 Ridge Top Road, Suite 400, Fairfax, VA 22030. Their fax telephone number is 703-275-6279 and their web site is at <http://sdcw.army.mil/coldwar>. I notice that the site is an Army site and do not know if the other services also have their individual web sites. For some of you old guys and gals out there who served during the Cold War, this might be the first pat on the back for your service, so I would recommend applying for this certificate so you will have something to show the grandkids, nieces, nephews, etc.

Editorial

Sending Gram 562 was a journey! For some of you, it was the Friday Gram, for others it was Saturday. Some of the mail just would not go out on Friday. I spent a huge amount of time trying to make the system work, but it refused. On Saturday I went to a (sortta) nearby university and used a secret access to a computer lab to send out the rest of the Grams. It worked fine from there! What will today bring? That is certainly a question. I hope that you received your Gram on Sunday.

This is a very exciting time. CPMX, Knight-May auction, MPC Fest! Some important news coming up in the next few days!

Mail Call

Dear editor-
Yes, you were one of the first numismatic people I met-I was probably around 6-7 year old, so it was well before I got interested in girls. That was a long time ago...
As stated, the Bons de Solidarite are examples of items that self-narrate their story. Say what you will about Marshal Petain, but these pieces are quite vivid. I am not at all convinced that we really know which are the rarer varieties...
By the way, that was an interesting account from Ski on Pilot Edward O'Hare-quite heroic indeed...

Joel

PS: I have to admit that it is a change seeing someone refer to my father as "Joel's father" rather than me as "Neil's son."

Joel Shafer

Dear Joe,

I just read your article in the above gram about your experience in Morocco. You are writing about the word floosee. Well, this word is not Moroccan, but from the Arabic. It seems that the word "flus" or correct pronunciation in English "floose" (as you write it

Best regards,
Chris

Dear Chris,
I suggested that floose/flus is related to the word falus, which is the basic denomination of the pre-modern Moroccan coinage (falus when transliterated into English - it might actually be flus in the hands a different translator). The falus coins were cast Joe

Dear Editor

We still have copies of Theo van Elmpt's wonderful book on BAFVs. They are $16 plus postage - (probably about $4 to the USA but I will be happy to quote if anyone is interested.)

Claire Lobel

Dear Claire,

Thanks for writing. Not only is van Elmpt's BAFSV book wonderful, it is a great bargain. Gramsters who do not have this book should jump on it. If you are coming to Chicago, I suggest that you bring a few copies (if luggage allows). I will buy them and make them available here for Gramsters with cheaper post (but not too much cheaper), and faster delivery.

Editor

Dear Editor,
In response to your roster for MPCFest III home town update request. My home town, where my heart is, is Chicago but I've been living here in Fort Washington, Maryland, just outside Washington, DC, since my retirement. Please when you update the roster change my name back to 'Dick' from Richard. When I first registered for the Fest I was listed as 'Dick' Freyser, after a day or two my name disappeared from those registered only to appear again a week or so later -- even moving up a few positions -- but now listed as 'Richard' Freyser. I never considered this worth mentioning but now since you are planning on updating the roster with home towns perhaps you won't mind this little change as well.

Dick

Dear Richard,

I cannot imagine the source of the confusion.

[Fest reservations for Fest IV: Guido Crapanzano, Tom Warburton, (Barnacle) Bill Lovell, Harold Kroll, Fred Schwan]

Fest registration is $149 including lodging, meals, activities, and assorted goodies. Single occupancy is available for an additional $50. Payments may be sent via snail mail to MPCFest/Fred Schwan, 132 E. Second St., Port Clinton, OH 43452 or (preferred except for credit card payment) via paypal using email address fredschwan@yahoo.com. Thank you very much.

Three airports are reasonably available for the Fest. In order of proximity they are:

- Toledo
- Cleveland
- Detroit (Metro)

All three are reasonable. If you can arrive early enough AND coordinate it well ahead, every attempt will be made to pick you up at the airport to save on rental cars. Festers are encouraged to coordinate among themselves for rides. We will also run notices in the Gram and, finally, we will try to coordinate for Festers to run pickups from Fest central.

Hot Contact List

Below is the BNR Press Hot Contact List. This list serves several functions. Obviously it is an outreach by the dealers listed for your business. Most of them buy and sell MPC. Others organize shows or publish periodicals. They have supported the new Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates with their advertising. They deserve your support and patronage.

Secondly, this is a draft from the book that participating dealers should check for correctness. Finally, dealers who are not on it and want to can still get their ads in if they act promptly. Respond to this email or call (419) 732-6683.

We are sorry if the format is a little messed up here in the Gram, we are not sure of how to fix it!

Fest III Successful

Thirty keen, if a bit eccentric, collectors and dealers gathered in Port Clinton for third time to celebrate collecting of military payment certificates and other military money. By all accounts it was an entertaining—and profitable—weekend.

More reports will be published in the next few days. All participants are asked to send their thoughts, observations, and ideas.

Editorial

While the Fest was a wild success, the Gram was in shambles. As usual, this was the result of a combination of factors. The time schedule over the past two weeks was very demanding between MPCx (uh, CPMx), release of the new MPC book, preparations for then participating in MPCFest. As if these were not enough, computer and Internet factors continued to interfere with our best intentions for daily Gram publication.

We continue to have problems sending the Gram to the entire mailing list. We received lots of suggestions at the Fest, but few serious offers of help. We do have some ideas on this and expect to get it fixed in the next few days (or weeks).

The email disaster that attacked some readers was partially the result of an experiment aimed at fixing our distribution problems. It was exacerbated by some good intended disregard for instructions, and finally by a small lapse in judgment. Hopefully, that problem has been fixed. We also hope to get the Gram back on schedule and on the task of promoting MPC (and similar items) collecting and research.

Because of the unreliable delivery over the past few weeks, we will republish some of the past issues. We will either send them out again or post them at papermoneyworld.net. We will certainly announce that decision at the time.

Mail Call

Dear Gram,

We seem to have some kind of weird chain letter going rather than a newsletter? Hope someone is able to sort things out soon!

Good luck,

Ort

Dear Gram,

While all you party animals are enjoying FEST, the rest of us are witnessing a Gram implosion of some sort. Interesting e-mails are the only evidence that something's functional.

WW

Dear Gram,

PARTY ON,

GARTH

Dear Gram:

Hope all is going well at the FestIII. I have not had a gram since around 25 FEB. Know you have been busy, but this is a big oversight or Brad has screwed up?? Let attendees know that there will be a number of dealer lots of MPC in the next CAA auction, scheduled for May 17-18, Chicago show.

Many thanks,

ED

Dear Gram,

When is the MPCGram starting back up. have not received gram in over 3 weeks..

Thank you,

Steve Payne

Assuming my subscription hasn't expired, would you please look into getting me back on the delivery list?

Gramless in Ohio,

Ort

Hi!

Haven't received a Gram in over a week! Hope there isn't an insoluble problem, 'cause I really miss it!

Clyde

Gram Leader,

Somehow I was scratched from the mailing list a week ago, the same day I sent in a want list, what happened? I assumes the fest will be in full swing so wikll wait for your response,

Thanks,

Jack Glass

I Know You Have Been Busy.....But I Have Not Received A Gram Since....2-24-02....

#563.....Have A Great Fest.

Respect,

Ed

Hot Contact List

Below is the BNR Press Hot Contact List. This list serves several functions. Obviously it is an outreach by the dealers listed for your business. Most of them buy and sell MPC. Others organize shows or publish periodicals. They have supported the new Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates with their advertising. They deserve your support and patronage.

Secondly, this is a draft from the book that participating dealers should check for correctness. Finally, dealers who are not on it and want to can still get their ads in if they act promptly. Respond to this email or call (419) 732-6683.

We are sorry if the format is a little messed up here in the Gram, we are not sure of how to fix it!

Any Bonds Today?, by Beth Py-Lieberman

Reviewed by Howard A. Daniel III

The February 2002 issue of the Smithsonian magazine has an illustrated article about World War II War Bonds. The article is well written, but one of the best parts are the sources of the posters. Maybe they have some not illustrated that actually show some war bonds or they have the war bonds too. For those collectors of War Bonds, a visit to the Northwestern University Library, American Art Museum, National Museum of American History, and the Smithsonian's Government and Map Department might result in some worthwhile discoveries. I believe the Numismatic Department of the National Museum of American History, Bureau of Engraving and Printing, and the Treasury Department could also have some bonds. Good hunting.

Editorial

Gram 568 was sent from Ottawa, Canada where Ski and I were doing some research. You will hear more about that in the future. One of the really good things about the trip was that there was a public library close to the cheap motel where we stayed so I was able to work on that Gram and on some of the technical problems with a fast computer/internet connection.

It turns out that one of the big problems that held us up was the Yahoo Yo Yos who saw fit to reduce the maximum number of addresses in one file for broadcasting from 100 to 40. That reduction came at the same time that we were working on the book, the Fest, and travel arrangements for Chicago etc. Add to those complexities the problems with my slow modem connection and all too unreliable Window's box, and we had a real Gram disaster.

Obviously, many of the "problems" stated above have now passed so among the new projects and problems, we can work on streamlining the Gram and getting it back on schedule.

We certainly have plenty to write about and report and know that others do too. Please, do not be dissuaded from submitting material by the poor performance over the past few weeks! Send in your material. We need and want it!

Dear Gram,

I wanted to take a few minutes and tell you how much I enjoyed the Fest. I really had a good time.

Dear editor,

While at the MPC FEST III, I was given a hand written listing of a Fester's holdings of MFC series 011. I would like to contact the person, but I neglected to write his name on his list. Please contact me at coinman@rochester.rr.com about a note in the list.

David

Dear Editor,

I received a copy of Gram 568/01 & 568/02, both of them are identical. Now if I'll just receive a copy of Gram 568/03, I'll have individual copies for me, myself & I.

Ken Berger

Dear Editor,

Many thanks for a great MPC Fest III. As expected, I had a great time, spent a bit more than I had planned but seems as though I most often do. Thanks to all the dealers and everyone who participated to make this such an enjoyable event.

To those that did not make it to Fest III you missed out on a great time. Please sign me up for MPC Fest IV.

Fest After Action Report

By Warner Talso

What did I like most about the FEST?

I ask myself "what is the single most important reason for going to the FEST?" The answer is - to learn. Thus, what I liked most were all the events, interchanges, and conversations that gave me an opportunity to learn. Particularly satisfying was meeting the people who, previously, I had only heard about or corresponded with. The auction was noteworthy. A great deal of effort went into it.

What did I like least about the FEST?

Keeping mind that it was a great success, I wish the training schedule had come out earlier. I understand the conflicts, but this proves the value of getting the schedule out early. It should be early enough so that Gramsters can provide input and FESTers can make travel arrangements around it.

Comments and Suggestions. 1. The quiz game was great. I think it would be even better if everyone was involved. Why not have brackets, a la the NCAA tournament. Have a random drawing for positions. Have 5 questions per "match". Winners move up. Questions get harder. Have a "trophy" for the winner. 2. The show and tell events were very interesting and I suggest could be expanded. Maybe a little more formality. Advertising in the training schedule. There is an amazing amount of interesting and fascinating people, history and knowledge there. Take advantage. 3. It seems like most people left about noon on Sunday. Is this acceptable? One way to minimize that is to have desirable events later in the day. 4. I thought my visit to Camp Perry was most interesting. Apparently most of the others did not think so. Too bad. Do you plan to attend FEST IV? Yes, the good Lord willing and the creeks don't rise. Thanks, Fred, for all your Herculean efforts, hard work, and enthusiasm. Also, thanks to Phil and Larry for putting the auction together. Also, Harold, for being the "finisher" - seeing that things came to closure.

Editorial

Wow, in Gram 569 I was excited and explained how we had solved the mailing problems at Yahoo. It required breaking the Gram list into lists of no more than 40 names. That was a pain to do and was going to be a continuous pain to use, but it looked workable and I was ready to get the Gram back on schedule.

Well, within a few hours of solving that problem, Yahoo introduced another enhancement. Yahoo now allows no more than 100 emails to be sent in an hour! That is completely unworkable.

That put us back to the drawing board. All along we have wanted papermoneyworld to be the home of MPCGam. It was fitting and appropriate, but another circle of technical problems kept that from happening. However, with the Yahoo problems, Doug "Wiz" Bell (namesake of the Bell charts) went to work and seems to have fixed the problems at pmw. This Gram is being sent via this new system.

Sure there will be problems, and please tell us of any that you see, but our testing looks good. I am sorry to spend so much editorial space on technical problems, but it has been necessary. Hopefully, we can get back to true numismatics and a regular Gram schedule immediately!

Thanks for your patience and other virtues that you have demonstrated during this difficult time.

Editor,
I wanted to take a few minutes and tell you how much I enjoyed the Fest. I really had a good time. I sold 3 books on the way home.

Once again , I enjoyed the fest and hope you guys are recovering and doing well.

Fest III Trip Report Mark "Sparky" Watson, Adjutant

For this month's article, I originally was going to write on books related to military paper money. However, as I know Fred just loves reenactments, I decided to write a Trip Report on Fest III based loosely upon the standard published in The Tongue & Quill.

For those of you not associated with the United States Air Force, The Tongue & Quill is the book on how to put together various forms of correspondence such as official letters, point papers, and trip reports.

Background:

What: Fest III

Where: Holiday Inn Express, Port Clinton, Ohio

When: 8 - 10 March 2002

Who: 30 crazy collectors from 15 different states and 2 countries

Discussion:

a. I arrived at the Cleveland Airport around 1420 on Thursday, 7 March 2002.

After claiming my luggage, I phoned the North Chili Taxi Service, a small company personally owned and operated by David Seelye. I believe this service only does one run a year, a round trip from Cleveland Airport to Port Clinton in March. As an aside, I had done business with David for about a year or so, but only via email / phone, so it was nice to put a face to the name. After about an hour drive, we made it to the barracks. After reporting into headquarters - I called Fred - we checked into our room for the weekend. As Fred was still a little behind in assigning roommates for the Fest, we made an on-the-spot decision to room together. After taking a short trip to the Arby's for some lunch, the rest of the day consisted of hanging around the hotel lobby and meeting other Festers. This included Harold Kroll (who had actually never left after the CPMX show from the weekend before [editor's note, there is a rumor that Harold was left over from Fest II]), Warner Talso, a fellow seminarian from last summer, Sam Feedback, and Larry "I Got One" Smulczewski, better known as the Thruski reporter. Later that evening, the group moved up to Phil "I Want My MPC" Goldstein's room with dinner provided by various fast food restaurants located in Port Clinton. Here, we got a glimpse of the superb setup Phil and Larry used to put together Sunday's auction listing.

b. Friday started late as I somehow missed morning revelry. After getting a quick bite at the Express buffet, most of the Festers went to the meeting room and hung around. As the day progressed, various tasks came up requiring heavy lifting of cases of books, boxes of soda, and bags of refreshments. It was after I brought in my last load that Fred handed me this year's Fest "coin" for doing a good deed. Later in the afternoon, a mini pre-bourse and informal trading session began where I purchased a Series 100, B-underprint 100 yen note. Also, Doug Bell found a couple of notes taking him over 3000 in his super-duper-deluxe position set. I also got assigned my official Fest duty of "adjutant" and began handing out in-processing packages to those in attendance. As this was my first Fest, this job allowed me a chance to meet everyone. After a fine Chinese dinner, the first official Fest activity began - Payday! Actually, there had been exhibits and a Collector's Anonymous meeting earlier, but Payday was the first event that everyone took part in. As this was my second MPC event - the summer seminar my first - I received $160 in pay. However, I only netted $140 after the mandatory voluntary contributions to this year's summer seminar scholarship fund and a war bond allotment. Festers also laid out $2 for dog tags graciously provided by Doug Bell. Of course, a barter session immediately started with various Festers trading for special serial numbers and replacement notes. Unfortunately some of us couldn't participate to the fullest as the Paymaster ran out of the current series and instead gave out coupons.

c. Saturday morning rolled around and I again missed revelry. The first order of business on Saturday was distribution of the fourth edition of Fred's MPC book. Around fifteen of us had signed up for the monster set, a special edition limited to 46 sets. Fred put everyone's name into an envelope and randomly pulled them out. Amazingly, Joe Boling got set 8. Fred drew my name last, so I took set 11, the lowest number available. Alas, I had wanted set 9 as that set matched the number to the draft copy I got at the summer seminar. Fortunately for me, my roommate had taken that set and graciously traded it to me (at least I think David was gracious). Next on the agenda came show and tell. Larry started off the session briefing his research and upcoming book on POW chits. Other show and tellers included Doug Bell on the latest developments at papermoneyworld.net and serial number aberrations in the Series 541 25 cent notes; Al Glaser on BAFSVs; and Marv Mericle on collecting MPC vignettes. Also, Larry and Harold gave a short trip report on going up to the printer's factory to pick up the new book, along with a test sheet from the book they saved from the trash. I gave a quick talk about a letter I had won off of ebay regarding Ray Toy's and Jimmie Swails's effort to start up a club for military currency collectors. I then gave the letter to Fred with a promise that he would provide me a copy so I can write an article on it for the Gram. I'm still waiting for my copy. After show and tell, lunch arrived in the form of MREs - Meals Ready to Eat - supplied by Doug Bell. However, for those of us that did not want to try that culinary delight, two 6-foot Subway sandwiches were brought in as well. For dessert, the group ate a birthday cake for Series 471 as the series had come out 55 years before. The actual birthday was on Sunday, but Saturday fit better into the schedule. Also during lunch, Fred presented the Boss - Judy Schwan - her 25-year pin from the ANA. Then, the group converted the room into a bourse with David Seelye, Ian Marshall, Mike Cummings, and Harold Kroll setting up their wares along with other Festers with their trading material. I picked up a couple of more notes, completing my 10 cent multi-printing sets in Series 481 and 641. As the bourse continued into the afternoon, the Finance Officers closed and locked the doors as concerns about black market activities and counterfeiting arose - C-hour! I know in the past it was called C-day, but it didn't take nearly that long at the Fest. One by one we exited the room to convert our Fest money. If we wanted to go back into the room, we had to leave the new stuff outside. Most of the group wandered to the lobby and again began trading and bartering for replacements and special serial numbers. I gave Harold a serial number #2 note and kept a serial number #8 note for Joe Boling. After everyone had completed the conversion, the group went back into the room for pizza. That evening, entertainment came in two different events. First was the collector's challenge trivia game between three teams of three with Phil Goldstein, Marcus Turner, and Harold Kroll the team leaders. Larry provided the questions and acted as emcee. Other than a quibble here and there (really lots of quibbles but trying to keep this report family oriented), everyone had a good time. Then came the annual poker game. I personally went back to my room to sleep, but did notice someone must have had a good time playing poker as I was awoken at 3:30 AM by my roommate rolling into the room.

d. Finally, Sunday rolled around with the last highly attended event of the Fest being the auction. As I had mentioned before, Phil and Larry had done a great job cataloging the lots and getting everything ready. Larry auctioned off the lots superbly, and from what I heard, at a pace much slower than the auction at CPMX. At the conclusion of the auction, people began the migration back to the airports and homes. I checked through the in-processing forms to ensure everyone had a ride. I also volunteered to be the Adjutant for next year's Fest as well with Fred expressing much relief for not having that duty next year. Then packing up, I got a ride back to the Cleveland Airport via my personal chauffer, and I began recuperating from the experience.

3. Lessons Learned / Action Items:

- a. If you are going to have something listed in Sunday's auction, please either send an early message into Phil or Larry prior to the Fest, or turn it in no later than 10:00 hours on Saturday. That way, the final listing can be put together, catalogs printed, and the listing uploaded to the website. Also, Phil will sleep a lot better.
- b. Get a new bugler for revelry, as I never heard him the entire weekend.
- c. What's this Adjutant thing? Being a civilian with the Air Force, the term is foreign to me. Personally, I would like to be called the Executive Officer - Exec for short - as that is more in line with the Air Force way of doing business.
- d. Get your reservations in early for next year. Also, I need to revamp the in-processing package to include all the information needed to smoothly plan the rides.

Editorial

Sparky, you want to be the exec? You can be the exec. If you can repeat your great job at Fest IV, you can be MPCKing. Thank you, Exec, for the good job at the Fest and the great report.

We continue to have some technical problems, but I think that we at least have a way to get the Gram out now, but keep your fingers crossed or participate in any good luck ritual that you might know.

Mail Call

Dear Gram,

Received this mpcgram like normal. Thanks. I have been enjoyed receiving the gram every day. I have finished putting together the MPC that I used in Vietnam and am now looking at putting together the MPC that my family used when we were stationed on Okinawa in the 50's.

David Serikaku

My only regret is that I did not attend Fest I and II! The depth of knowledge of the attendees and their willingness to share was the most valuable aspect of the fest. (other than meeting the individuals I had > been dealing with for a number of years).

"Altered Peace dollar must have story to tell", by Russell Rulau
Reviewed by Howard A. Daniel III

The February 12 issue of Numismatic News has an article by Russ about a 1925-dated Peace dollar that was etched by a Sgt Charley Root, who is guessed to have been a U.S. Marine in the Pacific during WWII. The bottom of the reverse has his name and rank and the top has "Oahu Okinawa Ellice/Ulithi Gilberts/Carolines/Entiwetok." Russ is looking for the man and checked the Social Security Death Index and found three Charles Roots. The first man was from Michigan and died on Mercer Island, Washington in 1997. The second man was also from Michigan (Genesee) and was apparently born and died there in 2001. The third man was born in Oregon and died in Douglas, Washington in 1993. If any of you know of these three men or other men with that name, please contact Russ at Krause Publications, 700 East State Street, Iola, WI 54990. One of the really new pieces of information I learned from his article was about the Social Security Death Index. I wonder if it would also be useful for those of us who own "Short Snorters" to use that index to look up the names on them.

Editorial

The above review by Howard and the basic article by Russ Rulau bring up the point of engraved coins from WWII. Very little has been written about these items. They are correctly classified as love tokens, but this hardly seems fitting for these particular engraved coins.

I bought a few of these at the FUN convention from Linda Amey who is a specialist in love tokens. We certainly welcome submissions on this topic.

Dear Gram,

I was hoping to see an auction catalog for the Fest in advance, but no luck this year. I know it would be more fun to be @ the Fest in person, but most of my traveling has been local. Such is the life of a Gramster.....Looking forward to enjoying your new book.

Bob D.

Dear Bob,

We tried to get the auction list out to everyone, but I guess the computer gods were against us. Perhaps it will make you feel worse that some Gramsters did receive the catalog. I cannot determine who did and who didn't. It was just bad luck. We will certainly try harder for next year. However, we still hold out hope that you will be there (here).

We look forward to any comments you might have about the book.

Fred

Dear Gram,

Sparky sure did a great job with his after action report. He saved your administrative bacon at the Fest too! I expect that you will need him to do it again next year!

MPC Kid

Dear Gram,

I would like to reprint Warner Talso's after action report and the comments from Gary Hicks and others in my recruiting efforts for Fest IV.

David Seelye

Dear David,

You have the permission of the Gram and unless the others speak up, (silence is consent) feel free to use their comments to. We must aim at no fewer than 50 festers for 03.

Very interesting replacement. Series 692 $10 (!), serial number E00032007 pos 5. This SN demonstrates the system very well. Four positions completed = 32,000 notes. This then is from sheet number 7. Note is overall very fine, but looks extremely fine from the face. The centerfold that is strong on the back is not even noticable on the face. Two staple holes that saved the note from destruction 30 years ago at left. Yours for $3300, terms possible. Confirm at fred@papermoneyworld.net.

Research Avenues

By Howard Daniel

I learned from MPCGram Number 563 that The Delegator assigned Warner Talso the task of researching the legal and organizational history of MPC. During December, I visited the Army War College (AWC) and talked to the librarian about donations to them, a document they have requested from me about setting up the IDHS in Viet Nam for the J2, and references in their library/files. They need some donations for anyone willing to send things to them, but the to-be-established National Museum of the U.S. Army (NMUSA) will also need them. The librarian scolded me about the IDHS document I promised to write many years ago, so I had to promise her I would get on it, especially after she took me to one of the classified rooms in the basement and showed me drawers of reports I created during the war. It was really eerie to see those enemy ground order of battle and other reports! Then she took me to the large reference room and introduced me to the man who just took over the area of finance, banking, economics for them. He went to his computer and easily retrieved many documents that have "Finance Corps" and/or "MPC" in them. I emailed a list to someone named Schwan (maybe he is The Delegator?) to start requesting them through me, but it turns out that he is too busy with something called the MPCGram and a project called MPCFest. So I think this gentleman, Warner, would be a great person for me to be in contact with to start requesting documents out of the AWC. As I receive them, I will have them copied, return the originals to the AWC, and send the copies to Warner for research and further distribution to this Schwan fellow and others interested in them. Does that sound good to you Mr. Talso? If so, please contact me at Howard@SEAsianTreasury.com and we can get started. If not, is there anyone else out there willing to go through the AWC references and documents?

Editorial

This gram should have been sent trough papermoneyworld here from Gram HQ. The past few Grams sent via pmw, were retransmitted by Doug Bell. If all goes well, we will really be on the road to Gram recovery. You can use the reply function to send mail to MPCGram at pmw. For the time being we will maintain the MPCGram addresses at papermoneyworld and Yahoo, but hope to discontinue the Yahoo version soon.

Dear Editor,

That was a very interesting article on the silver dollar. I have several JIM notes with names on them that I've been trying to find a way to track down. I haven't been successful using the records center in St.Louis, evidently they're swamped with all sorts of requests. How do I get into these social security death records? I also have several Australian Florins that have been engraved (Love token style) and a Philippine peso with the name etc. of a light colonel on it. Any information/direction you can give me will be much appreciated and results shared with the group!

Thanks, Jack Glass

Dear Editor,

I just saw a British Armed Forces Special vouchers, 4th series. One had the K/1 but the other had K/2. Both were the 1 pound notes. Is the K/2 more value?

George Fitzgerald

Dear Esteemed Editor,

The sad fact that comes with growing older is that older people you know are passing on ahead of you. One person I know and supported with intelligence reports was LTG Vernon A. Walters, U.S. Army Retired. General Walters died February 10 near his home in West Palm Beach, Florida. He was drafted into the Army in 1941. He was shortly a 2LT and served in North Africa and Europe during WWII. He was an aide to GEN Mark Clark after WWII, transferred to GEN George Marshall's personal staff, then worked in the White House for Presidents Truman and Eisenhower. Some of his early work was in classified and diplomatic missions worldwide, and he was used more and more in that area during his working life. One of his missions was in Viet Nam during our war there where I was tasked to support his research into several areas. He was a deputy director of the CIA during the Nixon Administration, and later worked for President Reagan on many, many senisitive tasks worldwide, to include a couple of ambassadorships. GEN Walters wrote "The Mighty and the Meek" and "Silent Missions". During some heavy duty work, he always used a lot of humor to keep the troops going and he got to know everyone around him in more detail than anyone I have ever met. These two books will show you how much he also knew about the high-powered people around him. I know some of you are asking yourselves why I am writing about an Army general who has recently passed on. He was not only a good man everyone should know about, but I believe many of the post-WWII military financial instruments our military and allies used overseas were created because of his advice and work to our government.

Very interesting replacement. Series 692 $10 (!!), serial number E00032007 pos 5. This SN demonstrates the system very well. Four positions completed = 32,000 notes. This then is from sheet number 7. Note is overall very fine, but looks extremely fine from the face. The centerfold that is strong on the back is not even noticable on the face. Two staple holes that saved the note from destruction 30 years ago at left. Yours for $3300, terms possible. Confirm at fred@papermoneyworld.net.

Schwan (and Boling) for MPC Talk in Tacoma

Fred Schwan will be the featured speaker at the Tacoma Lakewood Coin Club meeting in Tacoma, Washington on April 2. Schwan who will be visiting Boling that week for research (and fun) will talk about new developments in MPC and the production/release of his new book The Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates. The public is invited and Gramsters are encouraged to attend the meeting if at all possible. The meeting will begin at 7:15 at the normal meeting place (not available at Gram HQ at press time, it will be published later this week). Schwan (and Boling) will be available for book signings after the presentation and books will be available for sale at the event.

After missing MPC Fest II, Leo May, Paymaster, has not only reserved a spot at Fest IV, but also paid a year in advance! This took place at CPMX during a discussion about the Fest.

Any Bonds Today?, by Beth Py-Lieberman
Reviewed by Howard A. Daniel III

The February 2002 issue of the Smithsonian magazine has an illustrated article about World War II War Bonds. The article is well written, but one of the best parts are the sources of the posters. Maybe they have some not illustrated that actually show some war bonds or they have the war bonds too. For those collectors of War Bonds, a visit to the Northwestern University Library, American Art Museum, National Museum of American History, and the Smithsonian's Government and Map Department might result in some worthwhile discoveries. I believe the Numismatic Department of the National Museum of American History, Bureau of Engraving and Printing, and the Treasury Department could also have some bonds. Good hunting.

Editorial

There are still a few little bugs to fix in the new Gram mailing system, but overall it is working and a great improvement. To make things a little more complex, I have now installed a cable modem. In the final analysis it was easier than I expected. The hard part was the documentation, it was terrible. Installation required no new software despite the fact that two CDs of same were included in the package. The service is not as much faster as I expected. Nonetheless, it is much better than what I had. I think that it will have many additional advantages too.

Mail Call

Dear Editor:
Received the new MPC book.
You folks did a great job.

ED

Dear Gram,
I just purchased a $1,000 Konversionskasse bond issued July 1, 1936 (# 224 on page 485 of WW II Remembered) in EF condition on eBay.
The bond came with three $15 coupons attached at the top. It looks like there were originally 16 coupons. The coupons all have different dates and the serial number (008971) on them matches the serial number on the bond. The paper has a watermark and the seal is embossed so I believe the bond is genuine.
I won the auction at $25 and noticed the book lists its value at $400. Also, the book does not mention or show the coupons. The person who sold this to me is offering several more similar bonds on eBay and they seem to sell for about the same price. Is the bond really worth $400 and what is the story on the coupons - do they make it more valuable?

Lou Padgug

Dear Gram,
Haven't received an MPCGram since 26 Feb. It did come to the correct email address (new) of cjcpi@comcast.net.

Please advise.

Thanks,
Ray Czahor

Dear Ray,
Are you sure that you paid for your subscription? Seriously, we seem to be back n track now. I expect to post some of the back issues at papermoneyworld so that those of you who were cheated can catch up. We will also extend your subscription.

Dear Editor

Our new 2002 Israel/Palestine/Judaic Stock list will go in the mail tomorrow February 27th, two days earlier then planned. However it is already up on our web site. You can look at the HTML version, with images at <http://www.rosenblumcoins.com/Israel/pg1.shtml>.

If you would rather view it in PDF format, without images, go to <http://www.rosenblumcoins.com/pricelists.html> for instructions.

You then can go to <http://www.qadas.com/SECURE/rosenblumcoins/secureform.html> for our secure credit card order form.

This is a stock list and replaces all previous lists. Most orders are shipped out within 24 to 48 hours of receipt. However we are a two person office and when we are both away orders will be shipped upon receipt. In that regard, please note that we will be closed from March 6th through March 11th. However you can still order by phone and email.

Please note that all email orders are confirmed by a return email.

Best Regards,

Bill Rosenblum

Dear Gram,

Hot Contact List

Below is the BNR Press Hot Contact List. This list serves several functions. Obviously it is an outreach by the dealers listed for your business. Most of them buy and sell MPC. Others organize shows or publish periodicals. They have supported the new Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates with their advertising. They deserve your support and patronage.

Secondly, this is a draft from the book that participating dealers should check for correctness. Finally, dealers who are not on it and want to can still get their ads in if they act promptly. Respond to this email or call (419) 732-6683.

We are sorry if the format is a little messed up here in the Gram, we are not sure of how to fix it!

CPMX Report

by Joe Boling

Rather than continue the thread started several weeks ago dealing with personal recollections of monetary matters from my youth, I will say a few words about the Chicago Paper Money Expo.

Â Â There was definitely an MPC buzz about the show, what with the simultaneous release of Fred's 4th edition and the Leo May collection in the auction. The MPC and foreign lots went off in the first auction session, Thursday night. I had planned to arrive that evening, before I knew that the sale was going to start that night or that I would be interested in looking at the lots and bidding. I changed my flight so that I could get in about noon.

I went straight to the lot viewing and spent a couple hours there looking at the few lots of interest, plus all the MPC (to see what position 8 notes were there that had not been illustrated in the catalog). It turned out there were four 8s, two of which I did not need and two of which were replacements, and way too dear for me to be interested in (the 481 $10, for example, which sold for $4900+15%). I want to get one replacement from position 8 to represent that aspect of the series, but of these two, one is rarer than normal and the other is a high grade. A suitably doggy example will appear eventually.

Â Â I bid on three lots and bought two of them, the new French AMC leaflet (apparently not new to everyone, but new to me and Fred), and a dual lot of counterfeit and genuine notes from Yugoslavia. Â Â I spent hours every day on the bourse floor (did not eat each day until the auction spread was available), and I still barely managed to see every dealer by the close of the day Saturday (I flew out early Sunday). The show was deceptively large--there were a lot of dealers. I spent an hour in the IBNS board meeting Friday, but spaced on the general membership meeting Saturday and missed it (not to worry--the speaker was only that chubby target from Port Clinton). I did manage to get to the Chicago Coin Club meeting for the last five minutes of the same speaker's pitch to sell books. Â Â I added two position 8 notes to my collection; a 641 50c and a 692 $5. The latter was almost the last thing I did Saturday, at the second to last table I visited. It is one of the pieces with the EVIDENCE rubber stamp, apparently applied by someone who had seized it during a criminal case. Â It is annotated 1800 27-7-72 on the back. Esteemed editor says he almost approves of my spending a bit more than normal for it (more than an unstamped note would cost) so that I can add yet another twist to my fun collection of MPC. Â Â I went to the auction Saturday night as well, and bought a note for my biographical collection--a beautiful second charter date back $5 on El Paso, Texas, my father's birth burg. After the auction, Larry Smulczenski and I studied a new group of Chinese thrift and reconstruction savings system bonds that he has acquired on eBay, finding even more anomalies in the series than we already knew existed. I don't know how we are going to treat those in the next WWII Remembered. It may be reduced to simply listing all that have been observed and not trying to make a coherent series of them. It's obvious that the Chinese were issuing earlier pieces for years after new designs and types were available, and in this lot is a locally-printed piece from Chekiang province (not identified as such except in the imprint, but of a new design).

Â Â One of the highlights of the show was the appearance of a spectacular 471 $10 counterfeit. The person who owned it did not realize it was bad until he offered to sell it to a particularly observant collector. The note itself has superior presswork and plates, but the paper is without planchettes (they are printed on the paper), and the serial numbers are slightly ragged and with numerals that are not accurate copies of the originals (specifically the 3 and 6; other numerals are very good copies).

Â I photographed it so that I can check my fake at home to see if it is from the same production. There were several people willing to buy it, and Marvin Mericle carried it around the floor soliciting bids for the hapless owner. The offered price rose to astronomical heights (nearing four figures), and the note now resides in the stock of David Seelye (who also spent a mountain of money in the auction). Â Â Speaking of the auction again, it appeared to us on the floor Thursday night that many lots were being bought back in at the reserves (announced as 60% of low estimate). However, upon analyzing the data that had been printed off of the Lyn Knight web site the day before the sale, it appears that someone went through making saving bids in most lots, so that the sales at the reserve were actual sales, not passed lots. That means that the estimates were placed too high, but it also means that there is enough market for one or more buyers to be confident in buying a lot of expensive MPC (especially replacements). Overall, the auctioneers expressed satisfaction with the result of their first-ever venture into auctioning non-US notes. Â Â Yours truly had one note consigned, a US Navy club chit from Vladivostok during the Japanese- American intervention in Siberia in the 1920s. The chit is denominated 20 sen (which is why I, as a Japan collector, had acquired it years ago). It went to $700, much better than I expected. I have consigned 49 pieces to the Memphis sale, many of which are listed in SB. If you are a collector of those notes, watch for that sale (it's just around the corner). =====

Editorial

As Joe indicated above, this column was submitted shortly after CPMX, but not published until now because of the many and varied problems that we have had with the Gram. This should mark the return to regularity for the Gram especially with respect to our columnists. We (all Gramsters) owe a big debt to the columnists who contribute a great deal to keeping the Gram going.

Mail Call

Dear Gram,
Welcome back....568/8 is the first Gram I have received since 562/2. Let me know when I can obtain the missing ones.

Thanks,
Barnacle Bill

Thanks Bill,
The "missing back issues" will be posted at papermoneyworld soon. We will announce it in the Gram.

Editor

Dear Steamless Editor:
Â For reference purposes, my last Gram prior to this one was number 563.
Â Had a great time at FEST III.Â Biggest rush was meeting the faces to go with the names I have seen in the Gram, in books, and talked to on the phone.

Warner

Dear Warner,
I hope that one of these days you will share with the group what you told me at the Fest about your expectations of the seminar and Fest and how the events compared to the expectations. Please, do not be shy (not that many have accused you of that!).

Editor

Dear Editor,
Â The address that Howard listed in the Gram for the Cold War Certificate is incorrect.Â For those interested, search on "Cold War Recognition" in Yahoo and you will get the site with an application and instructions.Â Hope this helps.
Ron Waddell

Dear Ron,
We followed your advice and found the link below. We considered running the entire DOD article, but decided that there was just not enough numismatic connection. Also, Bill McNease reported completing the process and being pleased with the certificate. We seem to have lost his mail saying so, but at least we are acknowledging it!

Very interesting replacement. Series 692 $10 (!!), serial number E00032007 pos 5. This SN demonstrates the system very well. Four positions completed = 32,000 notes. This then is from sheet number 7. Note is overall very fine, but looks extremely fine from the face. The centerfold that is strong on the back is not even noticable on the face. Two staple holes that saved the note from destruction 30 years ago at left. Yours for $3300, terms possible. Confirm at fred@papermoneyworld.net.

Make Plans for Summer Seminar

by Joe Boling

To those going to ANA for the summer seminar: there are choices to be made on housing. Most students will be in double rooms in Loomis Hall. In order to live the dictum that the commander does all he expects his troops to do, Fred and I will double up in Loomis with the rest of the ragamuffins (even though instructors are entitled to single rooms). However, there are two new dorms behind Loomis that are organized in pods--four single rooms around a common kitchen/sitting room (I don't know how many pods are in each building). Because they are single rooms, they cost $150/session/student more than the double accommodations in Loomis ($50/session more than single accommodations in Loomis). If there are at least two military numismatics course students who want to pay that premium and get single rooms in one of the new dorms, Fred and I will exercise our option to take single rooms there, and we can set up one pod as fest-west.

Â Â Communicate your desires to me; I will coordinate the selection of rooms with ANA if there are enough who want to occupy a whole pod (you will have to show the more-expensive choice on your summer seminar registration form that goes to ANA).

Â [Furthermore, get ready to submit your scholarship application or to encourage others to do the same--Ed.]

Editorial

Today we had a long discussion with a Gramster about our editorial policies, standards, and practices. Specifically the conversation centered on criteria for publication and editing of those selected. This editing goes beyond simple grammar checking.

First and foremost, we consider it not only our prerogative, but responsibility to exercise judgment in the publication of letters (as well as features, news, and other items). We intend to publish most of what comes in. We may not publish all complaints about Gram delivery feeling that one or a few capture the mood and message. We (I) can only remember one time when a letter was not published because it was considered inappropriate.

Often parts of a letter are deleted because that part is not relevant to the major or most interesting point. Often these deleted sections include a personal note to the editor.

We have never had a complaint about such editing. Numismatic publications receive many complaints from collectors about transactions and dealers resulting from advertising in the publication. Even though those complains originated with advertising in the publications, the complaints never make it to the letters section. If some point is generated from the complaint and resolution, an article or commentary might make it into the publication, but not the original complaint.

We have certainly made some mistakes in publishing some letters. Thus far I do not believe that we made any mistakes about letters that we choose not to publish. Of course we have also made mistakes by completely losing letters and misplacing them, but those are different sorts of mistakes. Basically these policies are the same as most publications around the country and numismatic publications in particular. This is how we feel about it. We welcome your thoughts.

Mail Call

Dear Editor,

Â With your new 'Fourth Edition, Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates' in hand I recently was going through my MPC collection to determine which printing my notes came from. I came across a series 481 Unc. $5.00 (I believe it's been in my collection for the better part of 20 years) that has a serial number outside the number scheme. My note is numbered D09064019D. If I interpret your 'Fourth Edition, Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates' listings correctly there were three printing of the series 481 $5.00 note with the highest number being D08800000D. My note is above that number.

Â In light of the recent discovery of a counterfeit $10.00 being found (was it at CPMX?) and discussed and shown at MPCFest III, I find myself being a bit concerned. This note looks authentic to me. Under the small black light that I use it appears the same as the other notes I have in the 481 series, with one exception. The one exception is another $5.00 note that appears to have more of a phosphorus shine in places than this note in question.

Â Is it conceivable that there may have been a fourth printing of these $5.00 notes? Or is more likely that I may have a counterfeit? What would you suggest I look for to help in determining it's authenticity? My scanner is on the bum (new one ordered just this weekend) so I cannot send you a picture. Perhaps in a few weeks I'll be able to send one.

Â Let me be sure to say up front, this note is not for sale!! I'm open for any suggestions. Thanks.

Dick Freyser

Hello Dick,

Well the most likely possibility in my mind is that we (I) have misinterpreted the data. However, the data are the same as the previous several editions and no number higher than 8.8 mil has been found so I am not at all sure. I look forward to the opportunity to examine your note.

As to counterfeit, I suggest that you use the Joe Boling standard and study the planchettes. First find any on the note. Then hold it to the light. If they are printed on, they will more or less disappear just like the other printed material. If they (and therefore quite likely the note) are genuine, they will stand out.

Thanks a bunch for writing. Everyone will be interested in following this development.

Fred

(PS Will run your letter and my response in the Wed Gram).

Dear Editor,

In the morning, I am mailing to you three copies of "The Vintage Years, A generation's heroes recall the World War II Years" supplement to the Southside Sentinel & Rappahannock Record, dated February 21, 2002.

My local weekly paper is the Southside Sentinel and I was pleasantly shocked to find an excellent supplement to it about our local WWII vets.

Most of them were interviewed and are alive today, but some have passed away, and one of those is an uncle of mine.Â But if you or anyone else at the MPCFest is interested in corresponding with any of these guys, I can acquire their addresses for you/others so you can learn more about the financial instruments and/or conditions they experienced.

I have four more copies, but I am taking one to Florida for Joe Boling

and will keep the others for future requests for them.
Please show these to your MPCFest attendees and have anyone interested in these guys (and gals) to contact me as soon as possible, and if they want an original copy for their files, I can send out the remaining copies on a first come, first serve basis.
Howard

Dear Howard,
Thanks for thinking of me and of the Festers. The papers arrived in good time and order, but I forgot to put them out at the Fest, but the message is still good.

Editor

Dear Editor:
I'm still receiving two grams: 569/1 & 569/2. Me & myself are very happy to each have our own copy but I is getting jealous. So, to keep I happy, please send just one gram to me & it will be shared with myself &
I.

Ken Berger

Dear Editor,
I need some help from our members. My latest Pick is the 1961-1997 Modern Issue edition. There is a new propaganda note on the back of Bosnia 50 Convertible Maraka of 1998. I need some data about this note. Can someone help out and fill me in? Many thanks.

Herb Friedman

Dear Editor,
Sign me up for the MPC FEST IV

Thanks,
Gary "Who has Fours?" Hicks

Dear Editor,
I personally think it is great that someone is spreading the gospel about MPC. It sure helps the collectors.

Cheers!

Very interesting replacement. Series 692 $10 (!!), serial number E00032007 pos 5. This SN demonstrates the system very well. Four positions completed = 32,000 notes. This then is from sheet number 7. Note is overall very fine, but looks extremely fine from the face. The centerfold that is strong on the back is not even noticable on the face. Two staple holes that saved the note from destruction 30 years ago at left.
Yours for $3300, terms possible. Confirm at fred@papermoneyworld.net.

Covering the entire World of Military Numismatics

Series 003-Number 577, Thurski, March 29, 2002

On to CPMX

by Larry "Ski" Smulczenski

[editor's note, the following skigram was created by the skister himself several weeks ago. Between CPMX, the Fest, and other adventures, computer difficulties, other things that I am sure he will tell you about, it has been delayed.]

By the time you read this, we will either be on the way to CPMX or already there. I really cannot wait to get to the Lyn Knight Auction lot viewing to see some of the magnificent notes that are for sale.

Â Unfortunately, I didn't hit the lotto jackpot recently so I am like the proverbial kid in the candy store with eyes wanting a lot more than these not-to-deep pockets can afford. Hopefully, three will be at least a couple of lots that journey south with me in a couple of weeks.

Â I also have it right from the horse's mouth that Tony Pisciotta will also have some very seldomly seen notes from Martinique, Guadeloupe, and French Guinea in high grades at CPMX. Many of these notes were printed by the E. A. Wright Bank Note Company. They had magnificent vignettes like the 500 franc first printing from Guadeloupe with the Mayflower on the face.

Â Similarly the 1000 franc, same printing and country, with the Indian Karukera on the face. These are really high powered notes and many are the plate notes from Pick. If notes from any of these countries interest you, give Tony a call.

Â Well, I left Florida on Tuesday morning February 26 at about nine o'clock with the overnight low in the mid-fifties. The high for the day was predicted to be 72 degrees. When I got to Toledo where our editor was going to pick me up, somebody had transposed that 72 and the temperature was 27. To top that, it never got any warmer throughout Wednesday and the low for Wednesday night is predicted to be eight degrees.

Â I keep asking myself "What are you doing up here?" and Fred keeps answering--"Going to the Fest!"

Â As the aircraft was making its approach to Toledo, the pilot said that winds were 25 gusting to 35. Fortunately that was straight down the runway, because I've flown many an aircraft that a crosswind of the magnitude would have exceeded the design capabilities for landing. I looked out the window as we taxied to the terminal, and thought we had somehow been transported thru space and landed in Scotland. The wind was blowing the snow so hard that it looked like mist rising from the moor's. I expected any moment to see the phantom of the opera rowing his boat across that ramp! I was happy to see Fred in the terminal and since he hadn't been there long, the car was still warm and we made it to Port Clinton without any problems.

World War II POWs & Civilian Internees in East Asia
A book review by Howard A. Daniel III

Richard B. Graham's "Postal History" column in the March 25, 2002 issue of Linn's Stamp News is titled; "Rossiter Trust: British POW book, annual journal". The major part of the column is about a book; "A Postal History of the Prisoners of War and Civilian Internees in East Asia During the Second World War, Volume I, Singapore and Malaysia" by David Tett.

Â This book was published by the Stuart Rossiter Trust Fund of Great Britain that often published books on out of the mainstream topics.
Â The book is over 400 pages are hardbound in green cloth measuring 8.5 by 11 inches in size.Â Inside there are 15 chapters, 7 appendices, a bibliography and an index among hundreds of illustrations.Â I am not sure how many Americans will be described in this reference but I do not know there were many of them in that part of the world when the war started.Â For those of you collecting camp financial instruments, I am sure this reference will be an important addition to your library.
Â It is available from Leonard H. Hartmann, P.O. Box 36006, Louisville, KY 40233 at $47.50 postpaid.Â After searching the Internet I found his website and it is www.pbbooks.net and his email is leonard@pbbooks.net, but he does not have any online payment system with PayPal or credit cards, so you will have to send him a check or money order.Â But he does have a HUGE book list with many other books from the publisher of the above book and many others with military subjects. There is some good stuff there!!!

Editorial

The more that I think about the editorial stance that I described yesterday, the more certain that I am that I was correct.
Â None of the numismatic periodicals publish complaints against dealers (or collectors for that matter). They do (sometimes) follow up on complaints made if the dealer is an advertiser in the publication. I think that the feeling is that there are avenues for "business complaints," so they should be used. An example of an avenue is a complaint about a dealer to the ANA, IBNS, or SPMC.
Â Furthermore, even when a publication arbitrates a complaint to successful resolution, seldom if ever is there anything to be gained by publishing the results.

Mail Call

Dear Gram,
I have checked the serial number--position number combination on my mystery 481 $5 note. The combination is correct. This seems to make it more likely that it is a genuine note and is from an extended third printing or an undocumented fourth printing.

Dick Fresyer
(paraphrased from lost email)

Dear Dick,
Yes, Doug had checked your SN/pos number. It does increase the chances that it is a genuine note, but as you say is far from conclusive.
Did you examine the planchettes as I suggested? First find one that you can see with reflected light, then hold the piece to a light. If the planchette stands out, there is a serious chance that it is a genuine note. If it does not (stand out), it almost certainly is not. Try it with some other notes first.

Editor

Dear Fred;
I have only one word for you - - - THANKS.
I received your Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payments Certificates Fourth Edition, signed by you on March 14, 2002.
Â I am now on page 125, reading it page by page, sometimes re-reading a page or two.
Â It's like reading about old friends, the information is outstanding, the photographs are spectacular, your unique research is beyond words.
Â Your stories come from the heart.
Â I have learned so much so far and I'm only on page 125. I'm taking my time and enjoying every minute with deep satisfaction.

Â Thank you again Fred. This hobby of MPC's is the highlight of my collecting passion.
Thanks also to the many who helped you put this book together.

Gary Hansen

Dear Gary,
Â Gosh, actually reading the darn thing?! Wow. Thanks, however, be careful what you say, some people might hear you praising your steamed disorganized editor!

Editor

Dear Editor
Â Now I understand better Henny Youngman's famous statement about respect.
Â Here is a copy of the email I sent to you on March 13, 2002, which you kindly published in the March 17, 2002, gram #569. I may not be as distinguished as those you have listed, but I clearly did send in my reservation. I guarantee I have as much fun as anyone, surely that alone deserves my being included.

Dick Freyser

Dear Dick
Yes, I must agree, you are not as disorganized as I am! You are on the list and I can hardly wait to see you next year!

Hot Contact List

Below is the BNR Press Hot Contact List. This list serves several functions. Obviously it is an outreach by the dealers listed for your business. Most of them buy and sell MPC. Others organize shows or publish periodicals. They have supported the new Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates with their advertising. They deserve your support and patronage.

Secondly, this is a draft from the book that participating dealers should check for correctness. Finally, dealers who are not on it and want to can still get their ads in if they act promptly. Respond to this email or call (419) 732-6683.

We are sorry if the format is a little messed up here in the Gram, we are not sure of how to fix it!

New Gram Cloumnist Debuts

Each Friday starting today will feature a column by collector Phil Goldstein. As with the other Gram columnists, Phil will write about things of interest to him and about which he can share his insights. A Phil is a keen collector of MPC and most other military money. He has been a contributor to the Gram in the past and was a general copy editor for the new Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates for which he also wrote a special section on military pay ephemeral. He is known to many of you already as IWANTMYMPC on ebay.
A Welcome, Phil.

Re: Fest III & IV Auction Greeting Fellow Grammers!
I want to begin by saying, it was really great to see everyone at Fest III this year... Although I was a bit disappointed Harold did not wear the dress he bought on eBay. When I think about it, it did not seem like a year since the last time I saw all of you, so I hope by tomorrow, Fest IV will be here.
I also want to personally take a moment to thank Mark "Sparky" Watson for his excellent execution of his duties as "runner" for the auction. I look forward to your help next year!
Speaking of auction, there are a few points Larry and I would like to state, before the Fest IV auction is finalized:

1) Either it's a donation or it isn't: No split scholarship donation lots. Meaning 100% of the lot's proceeds are for scholarship or none. Not 50%, not 25%. It's your merchandise, but we have to do the math, and this is a friendly auction, not a business venture. I know Larry, Fred and I discussed it after the Fest III auction, but I don't remember the outcome then, so we're bringing it up here.
2) Deadline: All lots, or at least a sufficient description, have to be in either Larry's possession or mine no later than two weeks before the auction. This will allow us to both print up the auction catalog and publish it to the websites. We plan to publish the list on both PaperMoneyWorld Website as well it's own, which I intend to create during the next few months. This should avoid any communication failures, like we had this year. You may mail the lot's to Larry, deliver the lots into Larry's hands at CPMX, which is usually the week before Fest or you can mail items to me at my home address. Either way, this year we would like to come to Fest with the catalog already printed and lots already listed on Websites. It may not have been apparent this past Fest, but Larry and I did not spend much time mingling. Larry and I started logging in lots on Thursday, and I'm sure everyone remembers me running out in the rain and wind Saturday afternoon to print shop. Believe me I would have liked to stayed and listened to the dissertations everyone was giving. Between me logging the lots, creating spreadsheet, and Larry setting up bourse, then all the last minute additions, which couldn't be added to either the website or the catalog.... I think you get the point.
3) Payout Checks: Larry and I spoke to Fred, and for the next Fest auction, we anticipate having checks to pay the sellers their proceeds. We all know how frustrated I became, when immediately after the auction closed a seller (no names mention) requested payment, even though nobody had a chance to come up to pay for their purchases! With the checks, we will be able to cut a check to pay the sellers.

4) Payment by Check: I don't know what the final outcome will be on this subject, but it does not look favorable. To much possible hassle with bounced checks, and this is a friendly auction.

5) Payment at end of auction except for e-mail bids. The Fest III auction was a smashing success (except for the Gram failure, which led to lack of publicity, and blame Yahoo, not Fred. I know he sent it out, 'cause he sent the Gram from my computer in front of me!) Â But naturally, someone had to be the proverbial fly in the ointment. Apparently, this person bid on several lots, and then wished to pay over time to the seller, without the prior approval of the seller, much to the disconcertion and chagrin of the seller. - I'll take the change for those two words in unmarked five's and ten's... :o) Â Therefore, it has been decided that anyone bidding on lots in any future auctions, must pay for those lots at close of auction. The sellers would like to get paid, and lots in which the proceeds are scholarship donations could go home immediately with Marcus Turner, who's in charge of the scholarship fund.

6) Payment for winning email bidders: The only exception to the above rule, concerns the email bidders. They will have the obligation to have a check or money order in the proper hands no later than 21 days from close of auction. This year was not a problem, and a special thanks goes to the winning email bidders.

Other than that, this years auction was really smooth. We had 110 lots total, which were auctioned off in 120 minutes. This as we know was (thankfully!) not a "bullet" auction. This means an average of just over a minute per lot... Between the detailed descriptions, and the camaraderie, we feel the auction progressed very well. Also of the 110 lots, ONLY 10 of which were no sales. Not bad considering there were only 29 attendees and e-mail bids on 5 lots.

If anyone has anything to add or discuss about the Fest auctions, sing out. We want to make next years auction better than this years!

Meeting a Bookmaker

by Larry "Ski" Smulczeski

Wednesday February 27 was an exciting day. Fred and I drove to Ann Arbor, Michigan to pick up the new MPC book. I have to rave a little and tellÂ you that I had the honor of opening the very first book out of the packing cases. Let me tell you guy's and gal's, it's magnificent. If I an an Olympic judge I'd give it a 5.9 and tat's simply because you have to leave room for the next edition to be a little better. Lots more information, including the multiple printings, pictures of recently uncovered proofs and essays of unused MPC designs. Personal experiences with MPC, newly discovered MACV cards/pay records and a wealth of other data. There is no way that you'll do anything but love it.

Â I also was fortunate to get a guided tour of the printing plant where the book was printed and assembled. This is some operation. Barry took time to explain the operation of each printing press and assembly machine. There were web presses that printed on both sides of a continuous roll of paper and sheet presses that can print up to four colors on a run on one side of a stack of sheets, the have to set aside to dry before the other side can be printed upon. I now know why Fred says that he has to work in multiples of 32 sheets. That sheet press prints 16 pages on both the front and back of a large sheet of paper. The equipment then takes that large sheet of printed paper and folds, cuts, and trims it into 32 consecutive pages in the book.

Â The printing industry calls this a signature. When the various signatures are printed a machine collates them into the printed part of the book. each has a small mark o the spine. When the entire books is collated these small marks together form a diagonal line down the spine of the book. This tells the checker that the book is complete and no part is missing, but you the reader never see that. All you know is that your pages follow in sequential order.

Â The book then goes to the sewing machine where the various segments are permanently bound together. Cheaper books like paper backs are glued, not sewn. At the same time, other machines are gluing the printed cover to the card board make the hard cover of the book. The two meet and are glued together. The finished product is stacked in piles, from where they are packed into cases for shipment.
Â I really feel that seeing this will be one of the highlights of the trip. More next week!

Editorial

We are somewhere between pleased and excited to welcome Phil "IWANTMYMPC" Goldstein as our newest weekly Gram columnist! The commitment of our columnists in large part guarantees the continuation and success of the Gram.
I am certain that Phil as well as the rest of the columnists would be pleased to receive suggestions for discussion topics either directly or via letters to the Gram. I know from long experience that thinking of the topic is very often the most difficult part of writing an article and a regular column in particular. About the only thing together than a weekly column is a daily one!
Welcome, Phil, and, thanks guys!

Mail Call

Hello
Â Â I have not been getting the Gram for about a month now, (which may be due to having a new email address, but I previously sent it in), my brother Rod has been sharing his copy with me (it gets a little dog eared by the time I get it). Can you look into why my Gram is not being delivered and update my subscription.
Thanks . Â
Wes

Wes,
Thanks for writing. Hopefully, your problem will be corrected today. We think that we have most of the distribution matters for the Gram resolved, but one of the little things that will continue for some time is fixing the mailing list. I had planned on making a stab at humor by telling everyone who was not receiving the Gram to speak up. You proved that possible!
Â Thanks for writing. What are you finding for your collection these days?

Hot Contact List

Below is the BNR Press Hot Contact List. This list serves several functions. Obviously it is an outreach by the dealers listed for your business. Most of them buy and sell MPC. Others organize shows or publish periodicals. They have supported the new Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates with their advertising. They deserve your support and patronage.

Secondly, this is a draft from the book that participating dealers should check for correctness. Finally, dealers who are not on it and want to can still get their ads in if they act promptly. Respond to this email or call (419) 732-6683.

We are sorry if the format is a little messed up here in the Gram, we are not sure of how to fix it!

Replacements--give me a break

by Doug Bell

Dealers are now replacement wise and are pointing out when they have a replacement available. Sleepers do crop up from time to time. But what is New to these Dealers are the data listed in the new Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates.Â MPC is unique in that there are many aspects that are just now coming out about MPC due to the research done by Fred Schwan and Larry Smulczewski.

Â Â Time and time again I see items listed on Ebay and other auctions where there is given NO respect as to the Sn number.Â This relatively new way of searching for notes of great rarity seems to be greatly ignored. Although many of the truly great and dedicated MPC collectors know about THE NUMBERS, there are many dealers and collectors that seem to ignore the potential for displaying or listing THE NUMBERS, aside from the few that collect position numbers. This aspect of MPC is still a gold mine for the right note. So the dealers / collectors who don't provide THE NUMBERS are hurting themselves when selling MPC.

Â Discoveries are still being made. With the MPC database on line now it's just a matter of time until two or more SN numbers that match are located, although this has been done already with out the database. The database is programmed so that when an Sn# is input, it searches numbers for a match excluding the prefix and suffix. With the inclusion of the database on the web, I have found an anomaly in the 541 25 cent notes. It has been known for a while about the inconsistency of 541 notes especially replacement numbers and position numbers that don't follow the math formula for the Sn number. Now there is a new anomaly:Â The 541 25-cent notes. I have been recording the Sn# of unit #17 and have found that all Sn# in this unit do not mathematically calculate out right to match the position numbers. The numbers fall between 10752001 and 11424000.Â Â More data is needed to solve the puzzle as to how the numbering scheme was laid out.Â So I am asking all numbers for these notes that fall into the listed SN# range please be reported to me for recording.Â Send them to doug@papermoneyworld.netÂ The list of notes already located can be seen at www.papermoneyworld.net/doug/54125CENT.htm

Thank to all for a great time at the fest, see you next year

READ the Book First, Show Report by Mike Cummings

by Mike Cummings

Set up at the Collectorama in Lakeland yesterday at 3PM. (BTW, much warmer than at the fest a couple weekends ago!!!) Dealer setup was yesterday, Thursday from 3 to 8 PM. Another great MPC dealer (not that I am) is setup there, none other than Leo May. I was pleased to see him and did not know he makes the show but he informed he that once and awhile he does.

Â Anyway, was on the bourse floor this morning bright and early. Have the MPC Collectoin (the famous Cambliss reprints) displayed behind our table which looks great. Last night sold Leo May a couple notes (AMC) for $450.00 so am ready for business this morning. ALSO BOWS is here who wrote a 1200 page book on Vietnam.

I decided the first order of business today was to push the new 4th edition. Especially since I have the back cover. I have already ripped all the competitors ads out of our copies! Especially Ian Marshall's and David Seeyles! So don't mind pushing them.

Â Anyway, while making my way around the bourse this morning I stopped at a gentleman's table and began to tell him that I was an MPC dealer and also a distributor for a great new book, the 4th Edition MPC Catalog and was offering dealers a great 40% discount!!!! Even for one copy!!

Â I had stopped because he had a stack of MPC in holders wrapped in a rubber band, perhaps 20-25 notes in his showcase. His immediate comment to me was, "Well, I don't really do all that much in MPC." Feeling rejected and sensing I had already lost a sale I just said, well OK, let me look at your MPC notes there.

Â He opened the case and handed me the stack.....ALL small cent notes, no $5Â or $10's, and a single $1.00 noteÂ and the rest all cent notes. BAAM! the second note I spotted was a very very nice XF/AU Series 461 25-Cents note, with NO "A" suffix letter. Welllllll, after reading Schwan's MPC catalog (Hey Ian I might not read it through and through but I do read theÂ Â IMPORTANT STUFF) I knew this was a REPLACEMENT NOTE!!!!

Â I could NOT believe my eyes, especially after then and only then, looking at his price.....$40.00. I just said OK, what kind of deal could I get on the entire lot since I was really an MPC enthusiast and wanted to buy them all. The grand total for all the notes came to $216.75 and he said he guessed he could do the deal at $175.00.

Â After much much careful thought I said OK, I'll buy this deal. Talking about the old saying, "BUY THE BOOK BEFORE THE COIN"!!!!!! WOW! Are dealers really this dumb. I spend a lot of money on books all the time, ONLY if I am even mildly interested. Â Thought I'd share this and thought it was very fitting for people who don't buy books. Also to give hope to collectors out there that they CAN find bargains. I have found replacements before but figured most dealers knew too.....

Editorial

I was (am) a little embarrassed that on Phil's very first column yesterday, I failed to include his byline! I think that it was clear enough that it was his article, but nonetheless, he deserved to have a real byline. Sorry Phil, and anyone else for whom my omission may have caused confusion.

Mail Call

Dear Editor,
I've E mailed the gram several times recently and they apparently went to never, never land. Just got a copy of the new book. Thanks for the listing as a resource. Hope the replacement info was helpful. Sounds like I had Harold very frustrated regarding my 481 4th printing $1. How many are now known? Wish you had tried to establish a value.Â Have a listing for the wanted column.
Wanted: any note from series 641 with a serial number of J02283151J or J22831510J. Please contact Larry Gibbs @ oth@prairieweb.com Great work on the new book. May finally get to meet you in the Springs in July, Missed you last year. (The serial number above was my USMC serial number when I was in Nam with the 1st MAW in 67/68. They switched to social security numbers just before I was discharged in Mid 68.

Take care. Larry Gibbs

Hot Contact List

Below is the BNR Press Hot Contact List. This list serves several functions. Obviously it is an outreach by the dealers listed for your business. Most of them buy and sell MPC. Others organize shows or publish periodicals. They have supported the new Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates with their advertising. They deserve your support and patronage.

Secondly, this is a draft from the book that participating dealers should check for correctness. Finally, dealers who are not on it and want to can still get their ads in if they act promptly. Respond to this email or call (419) 732-6683.

We are sorry if the format is a little messed up here in the Gram, we are not sure of how to fix it!

Looking Around The IBNS 2002
by Tony Whitehead

The IBNS was busy as usual this year.Â Serious bank note collectors descending on London and of course the AGM's of the Postal Order and Cheque Societies.Â Although this year I did not find any postal orders to shout about the day was very enjoyable and my find is illustrated below: (World War I Saving Schemes Scrip Voucher is illustrated with John Bradley signature as on bank notes)

Â By the Spring of 1915 it was found that the war was costing the country 1m pounds a day and saving was encouraged.Â The Post Office helped to raise money by issuing War Stock or Bonds to the value of 5 pounds at 4 1/2% in December 1915.

Â To help purchase the War Stock or Bonds, Scrip Vouchers were issued from June 1915 in 5 Shillings, 10 Shillings and 1 Pound denominations.Â The last month of issue was November 1915, then Scrip Vouchers to the value of 5 pounds were to be presented at a Money Order Office between the 1st and 15 December 1915.

The five shilling Scrip Voucher I was lucky enough to find was a last day of issue (30th November 1915). You are all possibly wondering why this voucher should be of interest to this Society.Â The paper used to print these 5 Shilling, 10 Shilling and 1 Pound Scrip Vouchers was in fact Postal Order paper!(The above was in Vol 17, Part 1, Number 63, January 2002 issue of Postal Order News, which is the Journal of The Postal Order Society.Â To contact the author and/or to obtain information about the society, write to him (he is the Chairman) at 41 Rainsbrook Drive, Monkspath, Solihull, West Midlands B90 4TG.Â He also has World War II and other U.S. and world military financial and postal items in his collection.Â The above was submitted by Howard A. Daniel III, who is also a member of the society.)

Editorial

I did not think that I would ever see the day. This is my last Gram. Yes, tomorrow our assistant editor, Phil "IWANTMYMPC" Goldstein will take the reins of the Gram.

Perhaps last Gram is a little melodramatic. I expect to be back in the saddle in about a week, but Phil will be in charge so to speak while I am out of town. Once before we tried this arrangement, but I was not very easy to let go and Phil was a little timid (believe it or not) in pushing me aside so it did not work real well. I may or may not submit any trip reports while away, but I doubt if I will miss any opportunities to read my daily Gram. Indeed, I look forward to what surprises will come my way. Well, I think that I look forward to the surprises. Phil has said that he want to "fix" some things. Hm, wonder what that means.

As always, the Gram depends on YOU for good material every day. Send your letters, articles, questions, comments, and even complaints (yes, this will be a great week for complaints) to us. Continue to use the MPCGam@yahooo.com address.

Mail Call

Dear Editor,

Â Rec'd the 4th edition in the mail (actually yesterday, but found it in the door this morning!)Â I regret I don't have time to do a complete read of it as I'm preparing to leave on our annual family vacation tomorrow morning (Florida!)Â But, a quick glance gives me the strong impression that it is head and shoulders above the third edition. I will do a complete cover-to-cover read of this edition (as I did with the 3rd) after I come back on April 7.Â But, it is safe to say that MPC4 tells you everything you ever wanted to know about MPC, whether or not you were afraid to ask!Â I'll confirm that when I get back!Â I regret I missed MPC Fest III due to work commitments (and, of course, I was unaware of Fests I and II:Â heck, I was probably unaware of MPC!)Â But, I will definitely make plans for MPC Fest IV.Â And, I may e-mail you asking for a visit this summer, as we have friends in Marblehead that we usually visit every year.Â I may bring my MPC3 for autograph as well. Or, I may just give it to a co-worker that I've almost converted.Â I gave him a 472 Series $1 note (fine condition) that I replaced with a better one and watched his eyes light up!Â No wonder we love this hobby so much!

Thanks again,
Rick

Hello Rick,
Thanks for the nice comments, but there are a few things that I do not understand. You let your livelihood interfere with the Fest? Please do not let that happen again (actually, I think that will take care of itself after you attend Fest IV). Then, you are going to leave your MPC book behind when you go on vacation. There is something wrong here. What could be better than lying on the beach with your MPC book?

Editor

Dear Editor
It is really a bad situation when bidding on items and after the bidding process is over, you find out that the postage and handling is over 50% more that the item you just won. I don't understand why people continue to place item on auction and charge such an outrageous price for postage and handling. I had one the other day that stated "We charge $1.00 for handling and the shipping cost" well come to find out what this meant was $1.00 is for handling and packaging only not for shipping. It was another 1$ for postage. I feel this is gouging and I refuse to take part in this. On the other hand if an item is of greater value I can understand wanting insurance, or charging extra for handling. Especially on an item that needs extra protection from the U.S. postal service. Which I think sets out to mangle any item it sees fit on consistent bases.

Doug

Dear Doug,
Well, it sounds to me like the seller charged exactly what she/he said and $1 does not sound unreasonable for shipping juice. In concept however we agree with your point. Recently we were charged about $50 for shipping on lots that we picked up at the show!!!!!! We are complaining about this and will letÂ you know what happens.

Editor

Dear Editor,
Next week, April 5, 6 and 7, 2002, I will be at the 41st Annual Warrensville Heights Coin Club Show.Â It will be held at Michaud's, 16808 PearlÂ Road, Strongsville, Ohio, near the intersection of I-71 and Route 82. I will be there 10-6pm on Friday and Saturday, and 10-2pm on Sunday.

It is a great coin show. I will be there buying, selling, trading and appraising coins and collections. Please stop by and if you do not have one, I will give you one of my Chain Cent Tokens...Free Also with a purchase of $20 or more, I will give you my lucky "Indians in a Bottle", one of life's little mysteries. Big Jake will most likely make an appearance on Sunday only, as he is still recovering from his knee surgery. He is doing fine, and has gotten back most of his weight, to a slim 235 lbs. We hope to see you there.

My best regards,
COL Steve & Big Jake

Dear Steve,
Thanks for writing. This is indeed a good show. I had planned on attending, but now am planning on visiting the Chicago International Coin Fair. Possibly I can go to Strongsville on Sunday. In any event, these two shows make next weekend a good numismatic weekend.

Greetings Grammers! Happy Holidays and APRIL FOOLS DAY!

Hopefully, you will be receiving this Gram in it's new format, with working web & email links, font colors, styles and sizes. Yes, it's finally happening... After many bugs, I do believe Fred, Doug and I have solved most of the problems... As a matter of fact, the above April Fools message should be multicolored. If you do not get a colored or readable copy, or you see an error, or even a comment, please reply to me directly at: IWANTMYMPC@aol.com

As our humble master is away, I will have the conn, so to speak. So, I will be looking forward to your assistance throughout the next couple of days to spice the Gram up. Those of you who were reluctant to send in an article for fear of not getting it in the gram in a timely manner, have no fear! You send it, I'll put it in.

Hi! After reading "Fred's" great book on MPC, I noticed one area on page 41 about the color coding 'bands' of the various denominations. I purchased a while back, a small group of series #611 $1.00 "with a YELLOW" band. So, you may add this to the data base. To confirm farther, "David Seelye, if I recall, Oct. 2000 BNR, had listed a "pack of #641 $1" for sale! So he should be able to confirm it also. One more thought, The other two missing denominations are the $10, and the $20. Mr. #691 should be able to recall which colors they are! Hope this helps! Guy Araby!

MFC patch "Under Development" Perhaps the most striking scenario for MFC soldiers is a development that could eliminate their need to be Addicted Festers. The MPC patch. It works much like the nicotine patch used by smokers trying to quit. "MPC patches applied to the body will release the necessary nutrients" "Not addictive", but enough to keep you going. "MPC Soldiers would be kept awake, and would be capable of surviving in even the most arduous conditions. But the patches would only be used on a temporary basis. Very interesting replacement. Series 692 $10 (!!), serial number E00032007 pos 5. This SN demonstrates the system very well. Four positions completed = 32,000 notes. This then is from sheet number 7. Note is overall very fine, but looks extremely fine from the face. The centerfold that is strong on the back is not even noticable on the face. Two staple holes that saved the note from destruction 30 years ago at left. Yours for $3300, terms possible. Confirm at: fredschwan@yahoo.com

FEATURED ARTICLE

By Joseph Boling

26 February 2002 submission

More personal experiences

Last week I wrote about my use of MPC as an Air Force brat. When I entered the Army in 1964, my first assignment was to Germany for three years. All locations in Europe had already converted to green, so there were no MPC in my wallet. I had been introduced to paper money as a collectible as early as 1956, when I acquired some Mexican revolutionary notes as souvenirs (and, as a stamp collector, I had paid close attention to the notes that we had used in Morocco and Japan, both MPC and indigenous notes).

In late 1964 I went to a coin and stamp show at Ramstein Air Base. One of the dealers had obsolete German notes in a loose stack--buyer's choice for 20 pfennigs each. That was a nickel a piece. Most were 1923 inflation notes, but there were also the earlier Reichsbank notes that were engraved with beautiful vignettes and scenes. I discovered immediately that notes were a lot prettier than stamps--you could put so much more on a note. I bought a dollar's worth and hardly looked at stamps again.

I started looking for types and varieties in the various antique shops (there were no coin stores per se). Many such places had one or more drawers full of obsolete notes in a chest somewhere in the store. I soon found that non-German notes were very hard to find. The next most available were Austrian, followed by other central European countries (very little France, some Italy, some Bulgaria [but not the now-common 1951 series], some Romania). I did not get to put much in my collection the first two years; Worms (where I was stationed) is a pretty small city.

My third year was in Munich. There I really started building a collection. Not only were there more junk and antique shops, there was a weekly flea market, and the major banks proved to be treasure chests. Munich is close to what was then the Eastern bloc. People coming out of Czechoslovakia or Hungary brought out obsolete US notes, which they exchanged for marks. Those dollars ended up in the foreign exchange windows of the major banks. Whenever we had a US holiday that was not a German holiday (such as Thanksgiving or Memorial Day), I would spend the day touring those foreign exchange windows. I would ask for the old, large-size notes or any small notes with seals in colors other than green or blue (remember that silver certificates were still circulating). Mostly I was able to trade dollar for dollar across the counter. Once in a while a teller insisted that I buy the notes with marks, which meant that I had to first buy the marks, so he got two commissions. Grump.

I picked up, in a year, several hundred dollars face in large-size and obsolete small-size notes. In one of my dumber moves, one day I passed a red seal large size FRN in favor of a gold certificate (that bank had about $120 in face that day, and I only had about $30 left when I got there). I ought to have known better--I had lots of gold certificates, and that was the only red seal FRN I ever saw. But that was still in the days of gold restrictions (I could not legally buy the gold coins that every bank had available), so there was a certain mystique about gold certificates that made them seem more desirable.

In early 1967 the great silver certificate rush started, with large dealers in the States buying them at a premium so that they could exchange them for silver bullion at the treasury. The US finance offices were also instructed to withdraw them; it was forbidden to pay them out once received, so I could not buy them at the finance office. I did pick up a few unusual pieces, $5 SC's in series I still needed for my type set, from a friendly finance officer. But I was able to buy them in town without restriction, and the German banks were making no effort to withdraw them or send them to the States for redemption. I added a few hundred dollars worth of them before I got back to the States in November 1967.

Central Germany was barren of those old notes. Frankfurt was absolutely picked clean. Munich remained pretty good the whole year I was there, and I made one trip to north Germany, visiting Hamburg, Hannover, Bremen, and Bremerhaven. I got quite a few nice pieces on that trip, including a bison $10 treasury note. That particular bank was the only one at which I ever had to pay a premium. I don't remember how much it was (a percentage of face), but it was not much and I was happy to pay it.

When I left Germany on the way to Vietnam, I immediately sold the duplicate type notes and silver certificates in New York (to Donald Brigandi), before heading to Texas to meet my wife for a few weeks of leave and then on to McChord for the flight west. We'll take it up there next week.

EDITORIAL

The above article from Joe Boling is a reprint from the week of the Fest, at which time we had the Yahoo email failures. It has been reprinted for all who did not receive the first time around. Our apologies to Joe and those who did not receive..

Ok, the gram may look good, but I apparently I don't know what day it is... Gram 581 was marked with correct date, but the day listed was Wednesday. It should have read Monday. My apologies to all readers for aging them prematurely. I also added a countdown timer to the top of gram... Counting down the days to the next Fest. It is NOT automatic as I have to change the days left manually, but I thought it would be a nice touch. Anyone know where I can get an automatic day by day countdown timer? Ass't Ed.

We are introducing a new section in the Gram today. This section will be used for corrections and enhancements to the 4th edition MPC Catalogs... When a typo or omission is found, send in a report to the Gram or to me directly at: IWANTMYMPC@aol.com I will need the page number, chapter, paragraph or location of error, and nature of problem with correction. It will then be posted in the Gram so everyone who purchased a book and who receives the Gram, can make the appropriate corrections/additions directly into their MPC Catalog. Because this section will appear for several Grams in a row, it will be listed under the Post Exchange section so as not to get in the way of regular changing articles and announcements. There are already corrections listed, so check them out below!

NOW HEAR THIS, NOW HEAR THIS: IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT!

All festers attending the Maastricht show are to report with paybooks in hand to Marcus Turner, upon arrival for special field pay operations.

Dear Gram,

I just purchased a $1,000 Konversionskasse bond issued July 1, 1936 (# 224 on page 485 of WW II Remembered) in EF condition on eBay. The bond came with three $15 coupons attached at the top. It looks like there were originally 16 coupons. The coupons all have different dates and the serial number (008971) on them matches the serial number on the bond. The paper has a watermark and the seal is embossed so I believe the bond is genuine.

I won the auction at $25 and noticed the book lists its value at $400. Also, the book does not mention or show the coupons. The person who sold this to me is offering several more similar bonds on eBay and they seem to sell for about the same price. Is the bond really worth $400 and what is the story on the coupons - do they make it more valuable?

Lou Padgug

The new Gram format looks terrific, I really like the full page use instead of the half page in the past. Saves time and paper when printing it out. The use of color adds a little pizzazz and brightens up the looks. I would suggest that the Hot Contact List be accessible with a link instead of being in the daily gram. Not to take anything away from the donors to the scholarship fund but I feel an updated list once a week or possibly once a month would suffice. This would allow more space for informational items, articles of interest, questions and answers, etc. The Gram is an addiction along with collecting, keep up the great work. Looking forward to the next issue.

Harold "the Critic" Kroll

Hi Phil,
You would usually expect to hear from me on jpettit@accsoft.com.au However could not resist complimenting you on the great gram & presentation. I love the colour, and its easier to check what is in the gram when I open it. As soon as we get back from Maastricht, I will try to put something together.
Best Regards,

Tony James

In response to Guy Araby's letter:

If I am correct, I believe one or both of the 691 & 701 printings, did not have wrappers. They had a piece of stiff cardboard top and bottom, tied with? I know this, because I received an envelope a while back from Mr. 691, and in it were these pieces of cardboard, and in between the cardboard were a couple of notes. I threw the cardboard s away, and kept the notes. That night, Marcus got a hold of me and told me the cardboard's were the ends of the packs, and that issue didn't have the conventional wrappers we all know. I did a little dumpster diving and found the cardboard ends, which now reside in my collection next to the rest of my wrappers. I suggest you send email to Marcus requesting more detailed info, as I cannot remember specifics, or hopefully, he can get an answer direct from Mr. 691. Best Wishes,

Philip M. Goldstein

Dear Gram,
What an outstanding gram yesterday's gram was. I was very impressed with the entire production. I am saving yesterday's gram as the first "color" gram - sure to be a collector's item. Yesterday's edition is to the gram, what book MPC4 is to MPC! BRAVO!!

Very interesting replacement. Series 692 $10 (!), serial number E00032007 pos 5. This SN demonstrates the system very well. Four positions completed = 32,000 notes. This then is from sheet number 7. Note is overall very fine, but looks extremely fine from the face. The centerfold that is strong on the back is not even noticable on the face. Two staple holes that saved the note from destruction 30 years ago at left. Yours for $3300, terms possible. Confirm at: fredschwan@yahoo.com

MPC BREAKTHROUGH !!!

Series 541 25-cent position numbers

By Russ Walsh

Doug Bell mentioned in a recent article (and at MPC Fest) that there was an anomaly in the series 541 25-cent notes. This only effected notes with high serial numbers (the last unit, 17). The position numbers of these notes do not calculate out correctly using the formulas that work on other fractionals. I, of course, saw this as a challenge, and set out to discover the cause of this and find a formula that will work.

After days of long and tedious work at crunching the numbers, (OK, maybe only a couple of hours) I hit upon a formula that both correctly identifies the position numbers, and provides some possible reasons. Unit 17 of this note seems to have been halved into 2 units (17 and 18), each with only 4000 sheets instead of the normal 8000.

Six notes are in the MPC database that are affected by this:

Serial Numbers:

10887830	10894775	10895621	11225349	11339022	11342778
----------	----------	----------	----------	----------	----------

Position Numbers:

34	36	36	35	63	64
----	----	----	----	----	----

Calculated position Number:

17	18	18	60	74	74
----	----	----	----	----	----

Subtract 10752000 from serial # (84 notes/sheet * 8000 sheets * 16 units)
(This brings the serial # down to the first unit of 8000)

135830	142775	143621	473349	587022	590778
--------	--------	--------	--------	--------	--------

84 notes/sheet * 4000 sheets = 336000
If the serial number is above 336000, then this is the 18th unit, subtract this number to bring it down to the first 4000 sheets.

137349	251022	254778
--------	--------	--------

Divide the final number by the 4000 sheets, and round UP to the nearest integer, this should match the actual position number.

33.9575	35.69375	35.90525	34.33725	62.7555	63.6945
34	36	36	35	63	64

The best way to calculate the position is to use the exact same formula used for other fractionals, and change the 8000 to 4000, but ONLY for notes with a serial # of 10752001 or higher.

It is possible that 4000 is not the exact number. For example, if the unit was split 3395/4005, this formula will give the same results for these specific serial numbers. Two serial numbers in sequence that bridge position numbers would allow us to be sure of this number.

I can think of two reasons for breaking up the unit of 8000 sheets into two 4000 sheet units.

1. They planned on only 4000 sheets worth of notes, but then later on decided that more were needed.
2. The unit was split in two to run in parallel on two presses.

My choice would be #2. If two presses were utilized, the first 16 units could be printed in parallel, then the last unit split to finish quickly. One way to determine whether this might have occurred is if two notes with the same position number, but in different units, were compared to determine if two different plates were used.

EDITORIAL

All I can say is WOW! That certainly is a breakthrough concerning the infamous Series 541! I personally agree with reason number 2, as it seems the most logical, and knowing the problems Tudor Press was going through at the time (remember, this is do or die time for them - BEP was getting ready to take over production), it would seem logical they would want to speed up production. Ass't Ed.

FEATURED ARTICLE

CPMX Report

By Larry "Ski" Smulczenski

I am back home after over three weeks up in the frozen north and have almost thawed out. Because of a busy schedule, lack of computer facilities, problems with getting the Gram out, and other lame excuses, I haven't written a Thurski article for the last month. But it is now time to file a trip report from the great adventure starting with the CPMX show. Joe wrote about the show but I would like to include my thoughts.

Your editor and I arrived at the show on Thursday around two o'clock. Since the auction was about to start at six, there was only one thing to do and that was to head to the auction viewing and start looking at the lots. Magnificent is an understatement. It has been a long time since world notes of this caliber have been seen at auction in this country. I was like that proverbial kid in the candy store, surrounded by all those goodies and having a total of two pennies in his pocket. But as the advertisement says, "...for everything else -- there is Mastercard."

As usual, Lyn Knight served up quite a meal before the auction. As we ate there was quite a buzz around the room as anxious bidders worked off nervous energy awaiting the auction start. When it did start many of us were amazed at the speed the lots were knocked down. The prediction that we would sell 300 lots an hour was easily reached. If you think about that, its five lots a minute or one every 12 seconds. That's really moving and was a little quick for some of us old timers that need a little more time to think. I missed one lot because it came at the top a page and I was still thinking about the lot that was on the page that we had just finished. I learned real fast that you had to be ready for anything you were interested in about 10 lots ahead of the auctioneer. There was no keeping track of sale prices if you were bidding. Once you raised your paddle, you didn't have a lot of time to make decisions. Hang in there and hope for the best. I was able to walk away with eight lots that will find cherished homes in my collection. A couple of them were POW chit lots that will help in our latest undertaking of producing a book on this area.

Overall I thought the auction was a great success. The notes that comprised the auction were rare, high grade items that are infrequently seen on the market. Compliments to Lyn Knight and Joel Shafer for going out and getting quality stuff for us to bid on. The Leo May MPC portion saw quite a bit of action and the tough notes brought good prices. Of course there are always going to be country's in a world note auction that don't do well. If there is little interest in the country, the notes go begging. But for the most part, there was interest in most of the notes, especially the Korean and Thai MPC coupons which did very well.

It was unfortunate, but understandable, that the auction was held on Thursday night. I heard several comments the next day that having the auction the day before the show opened to the public was a disappointment to a number of collectors. The common opinion was that they could not afford another day away from work as well as another night in a high priced hotel room to attend the auction but would have been there eagerly if it was held on Friday or Saturday. We collectors of world notes have to realize that in this country, U.S. notes are were the bread and butter is for the Auction Company so they are going to give the choice nights to the auctions featuring U.S. material. That's what happened here. Just compare the last U.S. note in the auction on Saturday, which was hammered down for $90,000 plus juice and compare that with the entire MPC section that only brought about 30 per cent more than that and then you make the business decision. I think most of us were happy to finally have a quality auction to attend. Let's hope that there will be others.

The auction ended before 10 o'clock, so there was a gathering in your editors room on the fifth floor. Discussion of auction results and the new Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates abounded. A little while later there was a commotion in the outside hall. Had someone complained about all this talk about MPC? No, it seems that these were no smoking rooms and equipped with smoke alarms monitored only in the managers office that detect violators. It seems that the next door occupant possible was ignoring this restriction and the night manager came up to check on the alarm. The occupant ignored the knocking on the door and the manager left to pursue another course of action. Shortly, Hotel Security arrived and the commotion in the hallway got louder, but no amount of pounding or shouting got a response from the occupant so they gave up. About twenty to thirty minutes later, Chicago Police arrived, with a room key and chain cutters. They open the door, cut the safety chain and barge into the room. The occupant who is free-basing cocaine, gets belligerent and pepper spray or Mace is dispensed. He breaks away from cops and takes a header through the fifth floor window. Don't ask me how he did it, but he did. Landed on the hood of a car, shattering that window. Leon Thornton's car was parked next to it and got covered with window and windshield glass plus some blood. The amazing part is that this kook was able to get up and tried to run away. Goes to show you how loose you are when your stoned. Anyway the cops picked him up and we heard the next day that he was in the hospital and recovering. See what kind of excitement you miss when you don't attend these major paper money shows.

As a sideline, I told Fred if we had the foresight to park his car which was full of the new Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates, under that guys window so that he landed on it and crushed a couple of boxes of books, Fred could have had a new condensed version of the book to sell.

More on the trip, next week.

EDITORIAL

Sounds like a blast, both at the CPMX auction, and the after hours "activities" I wasn't aware that the hotels now allow freestyle unattached bungee jumping. Keeping in mind that this joker survived, reminds me of a old medical adage... It's not the fall that kills you, it's the sudden stop at the end! I am all to aware of how quickly the "bullet" auction sped through lots. I was bidding through a live agent using a cell phone, and was preparing to bid on a lot, after winning the previous one. Next thing I knew I was two lots past the I wanted. Wasn't too pleased about that at all. Oh well, I'll be better prepared next tmie.

As for the Gram, So far so good. We're getting alot of positive feedback concerning the upgrades. To date, I've only received two emails about recipients not getting a readable copy. We have Doug and Russ working on this problem. Turns out that text only operationing systems (unix?) don't translate the fancy gram correctly...We will see what their efforts will bring.

MAIL CALL

Just got on line, and read your new GRAM. First, thanks for putting me back on the mailing list, and second -- What a great looking GRAM. You can be proud of the fine work. It is truly great to read and enjoy. Thanks again. Marv

Hi Phil! One more thing I wanted to mention, I had made "3D" glasses to view MPC! and "YOU" gave me the idea! I had "Lenscrafters" make me a pair to "view" my MPC! and they are SO COOL!!!! I spent $1000 to make some proto types (6 pairs). and sent a pair to "Fred", he has them now! Thought you might appreciate my efforts based on your "tip" to me on our "one time " phone call a year or two ago. The high quality ground lenses makes it a pleasure to "experience" the notes! like in series #521/#541! Also works on Magazines!! and Stamps, World currency, etc.! Also as "trippy Party glasses!" for de-ranged teenagers like I was once! Well, Note: I made them as reading glasses and clear "clip over " types! Well, Best Wishes,
Guy Araby

Hi Guy,
Glad to see someone listens to me ONCE in a while! But I don't know if I woulda spent a grand! I buy a dozen of the paper 3-D glasses they use at the movie theaters. They are almost always listed on eBay, and are dirt cheap. For those of you who do not understand the reason for this conversation, you need to view issues of MPC through 3-D glasses. I tried this about a year ago, and I noticed that alot of the issues Series 481 and up, appear to exhibit 3 Dimensional qualities when viewed through the glasses, in normal daylight, incandescent or fluorescent light. (When viewed though the glasses in ultra-violet "black light" The blue is cancelled. - nothing special there) But the results under regular lighting conditions will make you wonder, if those really campy 1950's 3-D horror flix had taken their toll on the MPC designers of that time!
Phil

Any Italian speakers out there? I need a little help from our Italian-speaking members. I have a propaganda Christmas card sent by the Germans to the Italians late in the war. It shows Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin giving gifts of misery and famine to baby Jesus. The text is:

Auguriamo a tutti Buon Natale, con la certezza che nel 1945...i doni deitre Re Magi...non siano quelli offerti dal nemico!

Which we have translated loosely as: "Merry Christmas to everybody, surely knowing that in 1945...the gift of the three Magi...are not the gift of the enemy." I can make no sense of the translation and do not see how that would motivate the Italians to stay with the Germans and fight the allies. Can anyone look at this and make more sense of it for me?
Herb

(Following was found in Gram mailbox - don't know if ever published)

Dear Editor: I just heard a book review on public radio that may interest some Gramsters. The book is called "Stalag Wisconsin: Inside WWII POW Camps" by Betty Crowley of Eau Claire, Wisconsin. The author is a retired school teacher whose students always expressed disbelief when she told them about Axis POWs being interned in the U.S. during WWII. So she wrote a book. There were 38 camps in Wisconsin holding 20,000 POWs. She interviewed 300 for the book. It sounds like a well researched book and I wonder if there is anything in about camp scrip or chits.

Very interesting Replacement. Series 692 $10 (!), serial number E00032007 pos 5. This SN demonstrates the system very well. Four positions completed = 32,000 notes. This then is from sheet number 7. Note is overall very fine, but looks extremely fine from the face. The centerfold that is strong on the back is not even noticable on the face. Two staple holes that saved the note from destruction 30 years ago at left. Yours for $3300, terms possible. Confirm at: fredschwan@yahoo.com

FEATURED ARTICLE

How Odd It Is.

By Philip M. Goldstein

If you are into MPC, as I'm sure most of us who read the gram are, you might have gotten bored after collecting and completing your basic 94 note set. In which case, (I'm sure if you haven't already) you found or will find yourself looking for unusual notes as I have been.

One such area, is even and odd numbered notes. We're not talking something simple as having the last digit as even or odd, I'm talking ALL 8 digits being even or odd. Sounds tough? Well yes and no. From a statistical point, all even notes are generally easier (not easy, just easier) than all odd notes. The reason?

The first all even note would be 00000002. Too recognizable to be considered "just" an all even note. But you can have 00046824 or 02804662, which are insignificant numbers other than being all even. But what I'm trying to say is, all even notes can be found from the very beginning of the serial number range.

However, you have to go through 11,111,110 notes before you get to the first all odd digit note. Which coincidentally happens to be the 11111111 solid. (Again way too recognizable to be just an all odd note!) So, you have 11111113, and so on up.

The bottom line is, you have to have a number that is in or above the 11,111,111 range. Sound simple? Remember this: quite a few MPC notes had printings less than 11 million. Therefore a lot of MPC notes can never have an all odd note, which puts all odd notes at a disadvantage to the all even notes.

I was discussing this with Fred the other day, who I have to honestly say, enlightened me as to why all odd notes are tougher to locate. If I remember correctly, he never came across one. We kicked the theories around for a while, and finally I had a brainstorm: why don't I check my list of serial numbers in numerical order? I know I don't have all that many notes in and above the 11 million range, but why not. After looking for a total of, oh about 60 seconds, I yell out "I've got one" over the phone!

I don't remember exactly what Fred responded with, but he was quite pleased and did appreciate the fact there was at least one now known as nobody had reported any until this time.

My all odd note is:

Series 521 .10 - 13395933

Harold Kroll now reports the following: 11319577 and 15357935

Anybody else have any?

Perceptive collectors and readers will also notice that my note is also an "almost" radar note: drop the 1, and you get 3395933. A 7 digit radar if you will. That's honestly, the section where I put the note in my album until now. Yes collectors, I have a section dedicated to 'almost' radars! Didn't I say how "odd" it was (or in this case, how odd I am?) :o)

Now, if you really want to get mean and nasty, and want to level the playing field somewhat, you can only go after all even notes that start in the 20 million range... AND have no zeros in the serial number. Since there were even fewer MPC notes that had printings in excess of 22 million, and you are now eliminating a numeral, it gets real tough. Reference page 51 of the Catalog of Military Payment Certificates - 4th edition. Fred has already listed a chart with notes with printings above 11,111,111 and 22,222,222. I've been looking for a few months, but with no success. Although I personally consider the numeral zero to be even, and I do pick up all even notes containing the numeral zero, you may choose not to. I have about 6 or 7 already. But I can't wait to get my hands on and all even, no zero note.

You may wish to do other wise. But I definitely would like to know if you've got one!

The lowest all even note I own would be:
Series 641 .05 Replacement 00000222 and my highest all even note would be a
Series 461 $10 40204008

Now to make this whole topic even more interesting, the use of the PaperMoneyWorld Serial Number Database will facilitate the searching for these types of notes. So, break out those notes and start logging them into the database! Here is the link to PaperMoneyWorld.net Serial Number Database:

EDITORIAL

How tough it is to run the Gram, write the feature AND write an editorial. Feels like I put out the gram for my benefit today, and no one elses! Just kidding, but I wish some of you would start sending in some articles... It doesn't have to be long, or well written, and i'll do the spell checking, I just think everyone should contribute something every so often. I know hounding you all for these things, makes me come across like a Fred Jr., but now I offer a couple of bonuses: I won't misplace your article and ask you for it again, and I will give it quick publishing.

Also, we are quickly approaching the Seminar. 12 weeks or 3 months to go, whichever you prefer. I strongly suggest those of you who are going to donate and haven't done so already, send Marcus your contribution. Before you know it, the Seminar will have come and gone, and Fest IV will be here! ass't ed.

MAIL CALL

I found these two letters while I was cleaning it out in the Gram mail box, and they are from some time ago. Don't know if they ever were published, so here they are:

In my American Express bill, I received a sheet of promotions, including the following (capitalization theirs, not mine):Use Your Card to Buy U.S. Savings Bonds Online. U.S. Savings Bonds may now be purchased on-line directly from the U.S. Treasury using your American Express Card. The new EE Patriot and I Bonds are available in denominations from $50 to $1,000. Here are some bits and pieces I have found along the way.

1. The following is taken from the text of correspondence between the Governments of the UK and Greece at the end of WWII. I thought it might be of interest to the readers of the Gram.

"The British Military Administration occupation currency in circulation in the Dodecanese will be redeemed within five days from the 7th, April, 1947, by the Greek Military Administration at the rate of 20.000 Drachmae to the B.M.A. Special provision will be made for conversion after the expiry of this time limit in cases where good cause can be shown why such currency, legally acquired, cannot be presented for convention by the 12th April. The currency so redeemed will be tranferred to a blocked account. Its disposal will be a matter for subsequent negotiation between the two Governments in association with the settlement of administration costs." (The entire text of the exchange can be found at:)

2. Ski's experience with computer generated notes should open our eyes to other possible computer related deceptions, especially overprints. Using a laser printer to place the replacement "X" on supplemental francs would not be complicated and would turn an otherwise common note into a sought after one.

3. Finally, a photo came up for sale recently on ebay. It was of GI's shooting dice prior to the Normandy invasion. In the picture are supplemental francs. The text accompanying the picture indicated it was taken May 30, 1944, but the picture itself does not identify when it was taken. I downloaded the picture, but lost track of the auction. I don't know whether it closed yet. I will forward the picture when I can find where I saved it on my computer. Regards,
Jim Downey

Very interesting Replacement. Series 692 $10 (!), serial number E00032007 pos 5. This SN demonstrates the system very well. Four positions completed = 32,000 notes. This then is from sheet number 7. Note is overall very fine, but looks extremely fine from the face. The centerfold that is strong on the back is not even noticable on the face. Two staple holes that saved the note from destruction 30 years ago at left. Yours for $3300, terms possible. Confirm at: fredschwan@yahoo.com

328 days to Fest IV

MPC FEST III / "TRI-FESTA 2002"

By Harold Kroll

The GREATEST weekend in the world is now in the history books. Where all the crazy and die hard MPC collectors coming from all across the country spend three days enjoying the world of MPC and the best fellowship you can find. Larry Smulczenski, Fred and myself returned to Port Clinton Sunday evening after the CPMX show in Chicago to get started on the projects for the Fest. Fred and I went to Ann Arbor where the book was being manufactured to pick up a load of books, almost 1300 books on 2 pallets. Of which my trusty Dodge Ram 3500 Diesel handled very well, by the way. While there was able to take a tour of the facility and was surprised to see how a book is actually manufactured. A lot of the equipment was shut down as we there during a shift change but what I did see was facinating and I learned a lot about the process, a lot more than I knew before. MFC notes were being printed, and yet the cutting, numbering, etc. still needed to be done, as one of the many projects going on. Ah yes, also MFC chits were being prepared. All the minor details and a few big ones were being finished up for this event.

MPC Fest III took place March 8, 9 & 10, 2002, and once again in Port Clinton, Ohio. Here 30+ attendees had the pleasure of seeing the release of the 4th Edition of the Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates, by Fred Schwan. The long awaited new release was an overwhelming success and I feel all the anticipation was worth the wait, congratulations Fred, a task well done. As with past Fests, the excitement starts to grow on Thursday, as more of the Festers arrive for the weekend and everyone gets together to hear what is going on in each others world of collecting, additions, new finds, trades, etc. It just hit me while typing the first sentence, past Fests, we are using plural when talking about this event, isn't this fantastic and we are going for the 4th, WOW.

By Friday afternoon everyone is wound up and anxioius to get started. Many trades of notes and information have already taken place with more to come. Fridy evening kicks off with a cordial atmosphere and things start to roll, pay call is announced for travel pay to the fest and is paid in Series 011 MFC notes. Each Festers pay is based on how many events the attendee has participated in. Only problem was that the paymaster ran out of MFC money and had to issue Emergency Pay Coupons to be redeemed when valid supplies of MFC arrived. The coupons were issued in $33.00 amounts and even with these we had to revalidate the coupons to fit the needs of each festers pay requirements. All in all, it seemed to get everyone paid. This year produced some new items of interest, a twelve and half cent chit, issued in sheets of 40 chits with a face value of $5.00. Each sheet is serial numbered as were the chits themselves. These were used to purchase refreshments, medals, etc., that were available. Yes, there was new challenge coins issued this year dated 2002, they are available to anyone that is interested in one. There were 2 new souvenir cards issued again this year, the "OFFICIAL" card had the 471 $10.00 replacement note from the Leo May collection, a great note. The second, "UNDERGROUND" card as it has been dubbed, showed the NEW discovery of the Joint Export-Import Agency Travellers' Coupons issued in Reichmarks, issued before the Currency Reform of June, 1948.

Saturdays events covered a lot of material, including the drawing for the "Monster Sets" of the new catalog. I was fortunate to get set number 2 as Doug Bell was one of the first names drawn from the hat and he took number 2 and traded it to me for another number set, thanks Doug, I really appreciated that! There was a lot of talk concerning the new book and everyone was talking about all the new additions and information that has been added. To find out what all the buzzing is about, you have to get yourself a new copy of the book. There were several show and tell sessions, vignettes by Marv Mericle, Marcus Turner brought us up to date on the scholarship fund, a "Special Thank You" to every one that has supported this project. A display of a Progressive Proof set of the Morocco 100 Franc note, S/B #1504, 9 notes each face and back showing the printing steps and how the different colors and plates come together in the making of a note, with a note each showing the finished note face and back. Al Glaser spoke on a new find in the BAFSV notes which was very interesting to all. Conversion of Series 011 MFC to Series 022 took place Saturday afternoon, notes issued were in the denominations of, 1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 5.00, (devalued 50.00), 10.00, 20.00 and 50.00. The new issue was well received and for those of us that collect special serial numbers, the hunt was on. Trading activity was at an all time high trying to find the notes to make a set of Fest money. A few training notes were found laying around and were disbursed to the festers, check it out. Also a few notes from 002 stamped FEST III TEMP. were found with and without a VOID stamp on them after conversion had taken place.

Sundays big attraction was the 2nd Annual Scholarship Auction, it was another great success. Hats off to Phil and Larry for the magnificent job they did. The auction made enough to award at least 2 scholarships this year, which is great! For anyone wishing to donate for next years auction, get your items in early, next year they are going to have auction items ready to be on the internet so many more can bid in the auction. This takes a lot of preplanning so help them out by early submissions. Well I've rambled on about this years fest, enjoyed every minute of it and look forward to next years event. I have already registered for Fest IV, have you??

EDITORIAL

Hats off to Harold for his well written Fest report. Maybe we should make him the "official" Fest, Seminar and Show correspondent? Feel up to the task Harold? ass't ed.

MAIL CALL

Good morning! Reference is made to: MPC Gram Series 003, Number 584, Thursday (sorry, THURSKI) 4 April 2002, Calandar of Events, 2003, MPC Fest IV. I am looking for the revised definition of "running total." At the location cited, I find the statement "running total= 17." BUT, unless I count the split-line-name (Doug Bell, I believe), I only count 16 people. (I realize mine isn't there but the fest is at the wrong time of the year for those of us living in Iowa). Just wondering.

Rusty

Hey Rusty! Sweet catch. I fixed it. Phil

Dear Editor,

It should be even harder, mathematically to find an all even note. While there are 5 odd digits, 1,3,5,7 and 9, there are only 4 even digits 2,4,6, and 8. Oooooops! Isn't zero, '0', an even digit? No it is not. Zero is neither even nor odd! It's been a long time, but that's how I remember it. Best, Mel S.

Mel, thanks for the letter!

See, that's what I'm saying! Some consider 0's to be even, others neutral. But I solved that dilemma, I look for & collect both!

Phil

Hey Phil,

Looking thru my MPC set this morning and found the following even number notes.

541 $5 F04220868F

611 .10 H00282680

692 $20 E00026282

Will keep looking and advise of other finds on these serial numbers. Have a GREAT DAY!

Kid

FEATURED ARTICLE

Rarity of Radars_

by Philip M. Goldstein

Ever wonder how many radars were printed for a particular series / denomination? I have... I'm sure you have as well. Fred was kind enough to teach me the formula, so I'm going to share it here for everyone. This also naturally applies to anything with Serial Numbers.

We will choose a Series 641 .10 cent note to start with, for this discussion.

- 1) Because I like it,
- 2) Because it was my first note,
- 3) Because there is one reported,
- 4) Because I'm writing this feature!

There actually two formulas to determine the amount of radars for a particular series and denomination:

Formula 1:

This first formula deals with notes in which the 4th place digit is higher than the 5th place digit. In this case:
2352 | 0000

The Series 641 .10 cent has a recorded printing total of 23,520,000 notes. If you divide the total production number equally in half between the 4th and 5th digits: 2352 | 0000, you will get the basis number to start with, 2352.

You then create a mirror image of that number for the last four places of the serial number, which in this case will be 2532, and then attach it to basis number above. This will form the radar: 23522532. But wait! If you look at the total production run, there weren't that many notes printed. It exceeds the production run by 2,532 notes.

So, for this note, you have to subtract 1 from the 4th place digit of the serial number, which will then give you: 2351, and the mirror image will be 1532, forming 2351 | 1532. This number will work because there were 23520000 notes printed.

Therefore, the first four numbers is your answer: 2,531. That is how many radars were printed for this series and denomination.

So, in conclusion: since the last four digits of the serial number are nothing more than a mirror image of the first four, as long as you have had the first four printed, you will have a radar note for that first four number, starting from:

0001 | 1000 right on through:

Formula 2:

This one is very simple. If the 4th place digit is lower than the 5th place digit, as for the Series 521 .25 cent note which had a total production run of 14448000. you only need to split the number between the 4th and 5th digits, which will give you 1444 | 8000. In this case the number needs no alteration as there were in excess of 1,444,000 notes printed. (1,444,8000). So for the Series 521 .25 cent note there were 1,444 radars printed.

In conclusion, although there may have once been 2,351 radars for the Series 641 .10 cent, or 1,444 for the 521 .25 cent notes printed, the bottom line is how many survived from each and every series and denomination. I do not hazard a guess, other than, I'm likely to conclude that more survived from the series and denominations with high production runs, as that would playing the favorite odds, and I'm sure even that would be disputed.

EDITORIAL

As you will read below, Doug is soliciting votes for the Fest 3 shirt... Although I am extremely partial to choice number 2 (gee...can you wonder why?) I would like to see a design submission concerning Series 471. After all, this Fest's theme (and cake!) was the Birthday of Series 471... I can't do it, I'm too busy caretaking the Gram.

Speaking of which: I NEED FEATURE ARTICLES! Ass't Ed

MAIL CALL

All people interested in a MPC Fest shirt, are to vote on the shirt by emailing me with there choice. I have only had 4 people respond with interest in the shirt.

Only 1 can be chosen. For this to work we need at least 20 people to want shirts, otherwise the cost of production goes up.

Shirts designs can be seen at www.papermoneyworld.net/usmpc/shirt.htm

Please put shirt in subject line and mail your choice to: doug@papermoneyworld.net

Fatwa On Paper Money

by Dave Klinger (from an Islamic website)

Part I:

PAPER MONEY IS NOT A LEGAL MEDIUM OF EXCHANGE

If paper money is a debt representing a merchandise (dayn):

The debt must have a definition of what is owed.

But even if it is defined as a proper debt, a debt cannot be used as a medium of exchange. Concerning paper-money as wealth entrusted to non-Muslims, this is not allowed.

If paper money is a tangible merchandise ('ayn):

Its value corresponds only to its weight as paper. Equally we take the value of the dinar by its weight not by its nominal value.

Either way, paper money cannot be accepted as a medium of exchange.

AN INSTRUMENT OF TYRANNY:

We have heard economists saying:

"We need a flexible currency"

"We need a currency that can be expanded or contracted according to the needs of the economy"

"An increase in currency will quicken industry"

These are all fallacies to justify the insolvency of the issuers of the notes in order to avoid their obligations to pay. There is, in truth, a great charm in the idea of being able to pay off all our needs, satisfy all the government expenses and to make the whole community prosperous, just by printing a few characters on bits of paper.

But when a man is capable of believing that, he will believe anything. Another fallacy to justify theft is to say: "It is an emergency" indeed a war can influence anybody to accept what appear to be solutions. After the emergency comes the semi-emergency of a crisis, or an almost-emergency time or an almost-normal time. In every case our individual rights are no longer in our hands. Any failure to repay in whole or in part what is due by the promissory note is but a form of theft

The above, Wednesday's and Friday's installments were sent to me by Dave Klinger from the website of World Islamic Trading Organization. Although we are paper money collectors, mostly of an obsolete issue (being as MPC is no longer used), we do however pay for it with current issues of currency, mostly US or Canadian Dollars, but also, Euros, British Pounds, Dutch Guilders, Japanese Yen, Italian Lire, or whatever other monetary form of currency your country of residence may be. We also trade for MPC, with other MPC, or other objects of desire. Although I do not normally pay attention to such dribble (remember- this is an editorial - my views do not necessarily reflect those of the readers) I did find the topic of slight interest and I thought these views might be of interest to the rest of us, as we both pay for and trade for our interests, and these are main concerns of this organization. The second part will be published Wednesday, as Tuesday is scheduled for Joe Boling, and the third part on Friday, as Thursday is scheduled for Larry Smulczenski. I don't mind giving up my Friday article to complete this series.

ERROR ALERT!

Also, Guy Araby has found two more mistakes in the Catalog of MPC. They are listed below in ther correction section. Many thanks to Guy - Keep up the excellent work! Ass't ed.

Dear (assistant) editor,

You have done a great job. You can hardly imagine the fun of opening and reading a Gram rather than creating one. Actually, it is fun creating them too as I can see you are experiencing. We (you) seem to be working around the compatablity problems so that everyone can receive the enhanced Gram. I sure hope that anyone who is having problems has reported them (the problems). Wiz has reported that he has cleaned up the subscription list quite a bit, but it is still possible that some Gramsters have been lost. If you did not receive this Gram, please report that fact (smile).

Fred

(I don't recall if Fred printed this letter or not, so I'm running it:)
Here is another pair for ongoing BAF ink color question:

2nd Series 2/6 Watermark - DD/7 866827 SN in red 2nd Series 2/6 Watermark - DD/7 890541 SN in brown "lilac" only 23,714 notes apart.

Now to start a new inquiry:

I have in my possession a AMC German 1 mark, Forbes printing, with 9 digit serial number, and to the left of the first digit (a zero in this case), is a dash that is .1 inches long and slightly above the horizontal center line of the numerals. This dash has the same color appearance of the numerals, and is embossed into the note. (You can feel it through back of note) It also appears to have the same "glitter" or iridescent effect as the rest of serial number.

Printers error? Previously unreported 9 digit Forbes replacement? Fluke/Freak? Who knows. I sure don't, but I sure would like to know!

Very interesting replacement. Series 692 $10 (!!), serial number E00032007 pos 5. This SN demonstrates the system very well. Four positions completed = 32,000 notes. This then is from sheet number 7. Note is overall very fine, but looks extremely fine from the face. The centerfold that is strong on the back is not even noticable on the face. Two staple holes that saved the note from destruction 30 years ago at left. Yours for $3300, terms possible. Confirm at: fredschwan@yahoo.com

Series 003 - Number 589 Tuesday - 09 APRIL 2002

325 days to Fest IV

More personal experiences
By Joseph Boling

Taking up where I left off last week, when I arrived in Vietnam (Christmas day 1967) I immediately had to convert my green to MPC (I don't believe that happened at McChord, though I don't specifically remember the exchange transaction). We were given series 641, which by that time was getting pretty long in the tooth--it had been circulating several years. For local currency, we had to buy dong (which we all called piastres, or p). Then circulating were Pick 16, 17, 19a and b, 20a and b, and 23. I was the first to report to Albert Pick that two watermarks existed for the 100 dong and 200 dong notes (the devil's head, the same in both, came first; the heads to match the portraits were introduced either just before or just after I arrived).

During my year there (I was upcountry in Pleiku) I found very little to collect. The cash coins in the local markets were obvious replicas, and there were no early or odd notes to be had. I failed to save even a single piece of the club scrip that I used in the Camp Holloway officers club, so I don't know if the PA&E (Pacific Architects and Engineers, a Corps of Engineers contractor) chits were the ones I used or if there is another, unreported, issue for one of the aviation units there. I was able to make one trip to Saigon during my tour, to visit a prisoner at LBJ (Long Binh jail). I discovered after arriving that he had been moved to Hawaii, without my being informed (I was his company commander). So I visited 1st Log Command HQ (my two-star HQ) in the morning and spent an afternoon shopping on Tu Do street. I bought several souvenir items there (some of which now reside in the collections of Howard Daniel and his wife), a camera bag (elephant hide, illegal to import now), and BANK NOTES. I scoured the stalls for anything numismatic; all I could find was fake 1804 dollars and fake trade dollars.]

Finally, on a dim side street, I found a shop with a glass covered table out front. The glass actually covered a bin, in which were bundles of obsolete currency. Oh, joy! Here were Indochinese notes, Institute of Emission notes, and older RVN notes. I sorted through the material and took one of each (I was appalled at the price he wanted for P-10--I don't remember the price, but I was appalled). But I paid it (or close to it--this guy did not bargain like the camera bag vendor had--I was too obviously in love with the notes, whereas I was walking out of the camera store empty handed when that dealer came down to my price). But, what did I not see in the paper money stacks? I saw no examples of P6A or P14. Indeed, I never knew those notes existed until I was in Seattle in 1972 or later, when Mati Tiitus had them in an auction (probably Walter Loeb notes). I understand P14 being hard to find--it was formally withdrawn (the 200 dong note with the submachine gunner). I don't know why P6A was so hard, but it must have been for others also, or it would not have that interpolated Pick number. Also during my tour there (late 1968), USARV and MACV started to introduce currency controls beyond MPC--the ration control plates. They did not actually have the plates (cards) yet when I left, but everyone had to fill out ration control slips when purchasing items like cameras or stereo gear; a copy of that multiple-part form was sent back to a central processing point where the data was entered against your serial number (we were not yet using SSANs for serial numbers).

Soldiers with excessive purchases would be subject to investigation (purchases exceeding their pay, a pretty good sign of black market activity or currency control violations). I still have several of those forms for items I bought in the PX. For R&R I went to Australia, and I delayed the trip until nearly the end of my tour (December) so that I would not be there during the down-under winter. My first financial interest (after getting some Aussie notes) was to visit the foreign exchange windows at the banks to look for obsolete US notes, just as I had done in Germany. I did not find much, but I did come up with one nice piece: a 1928F $2 US Note with a large inscription "Dr. Fred Loukes, Cincinnati, Ohio USA." You can find the story of this note in my column in gram 172. Late in my tour it finally happened--C DAY. Series 661 was introduced, and I immediately noticed the new denomination! I took a double set of the high denominations of the new notes, laid them out, and photographed them. It did not occur to me to bring them (or even a single set) home; $35 was a lot of money, even for a captain. I thought (and still think) that the $20 was an afterthought, not nearly as pretty as the other notes in the series. I believe Fred has told me I am nuts--that the $20 was planned for that series from the start. Maybe, but it still looks like it does not belong. My freedom bird was delayed leaving Cam Ranh Bay (long story you don't want to hear), and stopped in Tokyo to refuel. We were confined to a holding pen with no opportunity to acquire any yen. No matter--at that time the current notes had been circulating for most of the decade, and I did not need them. I did not realize that they had a different series of MPC than I had been using in VN. Next stop--Indianapolis, and more adventures with military notes.

Time is running out people! We need your votes on the Fest Shirt Design - if you haven't sent in your vote for design to Doug, you better do it quick. Once printed, they'll be no complainin' !!!_

Although I am not sure, I do believe the ration control plates Joe is referring to are the MACV Currency Control Cards (Plates). My apologies for getting this gram out so late, racing season is almost here, and prep work on the race car ran overtime. No expense spared in the pursuit of perfection!

Dear Esteemed Editor,

I was just reading through my latest "Numismatic News" and saw a "Free Numismatic News Show Directory Form". The same thing probably exists for all other Krause hobby publications and for the "Coin World" family too. I believe the MPC Fest should be listed in the Show Directory of "Numismatic News" and many other hobby publications to attract "new" people to attend it. The MPC Fest is also not listed in the IBNS web site or any other web site known to me. I think the huge and bloated MPCGram staff needs to start publizing the MPCFest and the ANA Summer Session classes conducted by Joe Boling and Fred Schwan in every way possible and not just in the MPCGram and by word-of-mouth.

Howard A. Daniel III

ANA has announced the names of over thirty recipients of YN scholarships for the 2002 summer seminar. Time for us to be getting our winners selected.

Joe

Hello Gram,

I think the new entries should be highlighted just the first day they are listed. My reason for this is that some do not read their grams everyday, but when they do get around to reading them they read them one at a time anyway! The highlighting calls your attention, like saying "Hey, look at me, I'm a highlighted correction, I wasn't here yesterday, you better make a note in your book before you close your Gram"! Phil, I think you're doing a GREAT job with the Gram by the way. I know that most of the readers do not realize the amount of work that goes into putting the Gram out. Kudos to you. By the way, I'm putting some mpc on the side for you that have the series numbers somewhere in the serial number. Maybe by the next Fest your fetish with that will diminish, but if not I'll have them. Take care and have a GREAT day!

William E. Yanchick

Fatwa On Paper Money - Continued (from Monday)
by Dave Klinger (from an Islamic website)

Part II:

MONEY: A COMMODITY OR A SYMBOL?

Until the beginning of the twentieth century the most popular and universal medium of exchange was gold and silver coins. Currency was considered to be as flexible as any other merchandise. People responding to their own particular needs demanded the coins and also offered them, thus their market value was established daily.

Today money is represented by pieces of paper as non-redeemable official notes whose quantity can be increased at will. This symbolic money originated from private contracts or promises to pay issued by goldsmiths and later by banks. The debate that divides the defenders of gold and silver and their adversaries is not new, it has been going on for more than three centuries.

MONEY IS A SYMBOL AND NOT A COMMODITY:

"It is the denomination of the currency of the money that men regard in bargaining, not the quantity of silver. It is the public authority upon the metal that makes it money" (Nicolas Barbon, 1696) "Money is a symbol of a thing and represents it" (Charles-Louis de Montesquieu, 1748) "Money is the symbol of all commodities" (François-Véron de Forbonnais, 1776) "All monetary functions which are usually performed by gold and silver coins, may be performed as effectively by a circulation of inconvertible notes having no value but that fictitious and conventional value... they derive from law" (John Fullarton, 1848)

MONEY IS A COMMODITY AND NOT A SYMBOL:

"Silver and gold, coined or uncoined, though they are used for a measure of all other things, are no less a commodity than oil, tobacco, cloth or stuffs" (Josiah Child, 1689) "Money is not a mere symbol, for it is itself wealth; it does not represent values, it is their equivalent" (Guillaume-François Le Trosne, 1777) "Gold and silver have value as metals before they are money. The coins which today have a merely ideal denomination are in all nations the oldest; once upon a time they were all real, and because they were real people reckoned with them." (Fernando Galiani, 1803) "The false definitions of money may be divided in two main groups: those which make it more and those which make it less, than a commodity" (Wilhelm Roscher, 1858)

Friday:

PART III: Some Common False Objections to Gold & Silver as a medium of exchange.

EDITORIAL

There is one more and final part to the above series on Money. It will be published on Friday after Larry Smulczynski's article.

I'm going to try something new with this Gram: Howard Daniel has written a few nice articles in the past, and today I have published a book review by him. I have added a sometime section below for book reviews. I don't expect a book review very often, so the section will only appear when there is one. I felt the need to distinguish a book review from just a regular letter, hence the addition of this section. Please feel free to make use of it!

Good News! Fred has agreed to let me run with the gram for now. I think he has come to like his newly found free time.. (I think Mrs. Schwan likes it too!) He even went as far to say, he will write a weekly article for the Gram! I look forward to this, as it would fill in one of the unassigned weekdays for a regularly featured article. I was even thinking of giving up my Phil Phridays so he can have a Fred Friday. I'd probably switch to Moody Money Mondays.

More Good news: Paying heed to Bill Yanchick's suggestion, new entries to the Catalog Correction Section will be highlighted for one day. This will help those of us who have already started making the listed corrections, without having to search through those already listed. The reason, I like to keep the correction in page order for the book, (in case I haven't specified lately) is so 4th Edition book owners just taking delivery of their books do not have to flip back and forth making corrections. Speaking which:

BOOK REVIEW

World War II POWs & Civilian Internees in East Asia

A book review by Howard A. Daniel III

Richard B. Graham's "Postal History" column in the March 25, 2002 issue of Linn's Stamp News is titled; "Rossiter Trust: British POW book, annual journal". The major part of the column is about a book; "A Postal History of the Prisoners of War and Civilian Internees in East Asia during the Second World War", Volume I, Singapore and Malaysia" by David Tett. This book was published by the Stuart Rossiter Trust Fund of Great Britain that often published books on out of the mainstream topics. The book's over 400 pages are hardbound in green cloth measuring 8.5 by 11 inches in size. Inside there are 15 chapters, 7 appendices, a bibliography and an index among hundreds of illustrations. I am not sure how many Americans will be described in this reference but I do not know there were many of them in that part of the world when the war started. For those of you collecting camp financial instruments, I am sure this reference will be an important addition to your library. It is available for $47.50 postpaid from:

Leonard H. Hartmann,
P.O. Box 36006
Louisville, KY 40233-6006

After searching the Internet I found his website and it is www.pbbooks.net and his email is leonard@pbbooks.net, but he does not have any online payment system with PayPal or credit cards, so you will have to send him a check or money order. But he does have a HUGE book list with many other books from the publisher of the above book and many others with military subjects. There is some good stuff there!!!

Fest Auction

By Larry Smulczenski

There have been a number of columns written about the FEST, so I won't continue to expound on this event. I would however, like to talk a little bit about the Auction that we conducted there on Sunday morning. Although I pleaded with folks to get there lots in early, we still had a couple of attendees scurrying around minutes before the auction, wanting to add this or that to the list. To those of you that heeded my pleas, a big, unqualified "THANK YOU". We really wouldn't have made it if I hadn't gotten a head start with the lots that were mailed to me. Many of the donated bulk lots took hours to sift through and list and therefore just couldn't have been done during the FEST. Still I spent a couple of nights after I arrived in Port Clinton writing up the lots that I was given at CPMX. Fortunately, Phil agreed to come in a day early and did a great job of typing and entering the entire Auction into the computer. He worked into the wee hours of the morning to tie it all together. We tried to send it out via the Internet, to Gramsters that weren't in attendance, but because of the problems that the Gram was having at that time only a few subscribers received it. That's an area that we will have to improve on next year and that is another reason to get your submissions in early. But we did receive a couple of bids via email from California and one even as far away as England, so we do know that some of the Grams reached subscribers.

The Auction itself went very smoothly. Phil was able to keep up with the winning bids and the winning bidders and even did a super job of bidding for the book as well as himself and kept it all straight. Festers were enthusiastic bidders and of the 110 lots that were presented for bids, 100 found new homes. Only 10 were returned to the consignor. To top that off, all lots that were donated with the proceeds going to the Scholarship fund were sold. That is significant when you consider that more than one-half of the lots were donated, fifty-eight of the 110 to be exact. The big winner, of course, was the scholarship fund which was enriched by a total of $2155.00. This means that two additional scholarships can be awarded to the ANA Seminar this year. Of course, we need to find those deserving individuals to send to this event and it is less than three months away.

Finally, I'd like to publicly thank, the large number of donors that contributed items to the Auction to benefit the Scholarship Fund. Your generosity overwhelms me. Whether it was large number or single lot, they were all appreciated and go to a common good cause: education of a numismatist. We know how last years recipients appreciated the Seminar and raved about what they learned. I'm sure that this years class will feel the same.

My handy-dandy calendar of World War II Events, tells me that on this date in 1941, President Roosevelt signed the Office of Price Administration into law in an effort to prevent price gouging and hoarding. The OPA, which controlled rationing, would become one of the most powerful agencies in America for the duration of the war. World War II Remembered has only four short paragraphs about this organization and the rationing items that it issued on page 425. In reality, these rationing items and documents issued by the OPA are a huge collecting area by itself. There are hundreds of ration tokens or stamps and thousands of documents pertaining to the ration items of World War II and many of them can be had for a few cents to a few bucks apiece. These fit nicely into our area of interest.

We have a sister organization, The Society of Ration Token Collectors, that specializes in this area. They have a wonderful catalog that lists these ration items and associated documents and contains over 600 pages. They produce a small journal quarterly, that includes new information and sometimes an auction. Dues are a mere $8.00 a year. I would recommend it to you if your interested in these items. I know the president of this organization is a Gramster, and I'm sure that if you expressed an interest, he would help you out.

EDITORIAL

Neither Ski, nor I for that matter, can stress the point of having your Fest IV auction lots sent in early enough. Maybe some of you who are dealers are afraid the item may be tied up and not available for sale if you send it in early. Think of it this way, if we have the lots early enough before the Fest, it will be listed on two websites and get a lot more coverage than at just one show at a time or one price list mailer.

SHOW REPORT

Valkenburg Report

by Harold Kroll, Marcus Turner & David Seelye

Greetings from Valkenburg. Harold, David and myself are crammed into the small office in the Parkhotel Rooding office sending out this message tonight (it is probably 3:00 p.m. in the states.)

This afternoon marked the first issue of Fest Money issued in Euros. MPC Fest Overseas Exchange Euros were issued to all Festers and scholarship donors. The Euros are denominated in 1, 5 and 10 Euros. The designs are quite simple but contain some exciting security features. Trading for special serial numbers and replacements has been very hot over the last few hours. We will wait for further reports from other attendees on the issues rather than having me ruin it for everyone.

The use of the (Official) EU Euros is now in effect. As collectors we have been keeping a close eye on our change looking for Euros from different countries.

Since I flew into Frankfurt Germany I was able to pick up several German coins and of course the Dutch. Little else has been seen thus far, other than a single Belgian 1 Euro. Several Italian and Finish mint set have been on the pre-bourse floor but little else.

The pre-bourse started yesterday morning and saw its strongest attendance this afternoon. Many dealers and friends were in attendance including:

Australian Dealers: John Pettit, Tony James, Trevor Wilkin,
British Dealers: Pam West and Ian Gradon, Phillip Phipps, Croatian Dealer: Stojan Blostonovitch
US Dealers: Mel Steinberg, Dave Seelye, Tony Piscotti, and Joel and Neil Shafer Italian Dealer: Walter Nasi and a several others from several other countries.

Finds on the floor have been numerous. I found bought several Yugoslavian Partisans issues among others. David Seelye was fortunate enough to purchase a 1943A AMC lire as well as a nice group of 500 and 1000 lire FALSO notes. We also found several sheets of Generalgouvernement (Nazi Issued) rations for Ice Cream.

The beginning of the official show at the Geulhal starts tomorrow but is limited to dealers Tomorrow (Friday) afternoon. The number of dealers present should triple.

As usual dining has been great. There is not a bad place to eat in Valkenburg. We will attempt to give more updates as the show progresses.

FEATURED ARTICLE

ANA'S NATIONAL COIN WEEK HONORED BY PRESIDENT BUSH

by Steve Bobbitt

Telephone (719) 632-2646 x113

E-mail pr@money.org

President George W. Bush has extended his best wishes to the American Numismatic Association (ANA) for National Coin Week, April 21-27, 2002. In a statement dated April 1, the President notes that during National Coin Week, which the ANA has sponsored since 1924, Association members work to help educate the public on the history that can be found in coins from yesterday and today. He recognizes that coins, paper money, tokens and medals are integral in people's every day lives, and that they give insight into the development of civilization.

The President commends those who will be celebrating National Coin Week and this years theme "Faces of Time," which focuses on the people whose portraits have graced coins through the ages. ANA Past President David L. Ganz asked President Bush for the National Coin Week message. Ganz, who serves as mayor of Fairlawn, New Jersey, provided a proclamation from that community in recognition of this special week in numismatics. ANA President John W. Wilson says, "On behalf of all the members of the ANA, I am pleased to receive the message from President Bush, and I want to thank my predecessor, David Ganz, for his efforts in obtaining this important recognition."

"During National Coin Week 2002, the ANA wants people to pay attention to their money and the faces looking back at them," says ANA Education Director Gail Baker. "With the United States Mint issuing fresh 50 State quarter designs every 10 weeks, people everywhere are thinking about the images on our money. Holding a coin from 50, 100 or even 1,000 years ago can start someone on an exciting journey of discovery into the honor, recognition, politics and power behind the face that appears on the small piece of round metal. "The Association is encouraging its members to join in the National Coin Week celebration by offering two full scholarships—including airfare, tuition, meals and lodging—to a future ANA Summer Seminar held in Colorado Springs, Colorado. Two one-week seminars are conducted each summer with more than 30 classes and more than 10 mini-seminars on a wide variety of fascinating areas, including United States coin grading; the numismatics of biblical, Roman, Byzantine and American Revolutionary periods; Asian, English and Mexican coinage; U.S. and world paper money; and counterfeit detection. Some activities collectors will do during National Coin Week are:

- Hold an open house at a school or club to talk about coins and their faces.
- Have several coin club members prepare short presentations highlighting the person who is portrayed and/or the artist who created the image.
- Visit the United States Mint Web site www.usmint.gov to see the faces that appear and will appear on circulating, commemorative and bullion coins.
- Mount a National Coin Week exhibit at a library, bank or school.

The ANA presented a special exhibit award for the best National Coin Week display mounted at the Association's National Money Show™ in Jacksonville, Florida, in March. The other scholarship will be presented this summer to the individual or club report of the best and most innovative way in which they promoted National Coin Week and the theme "Faces of Time." Fatwa on Paper Money - Final Part

by Dave Klinger

Part III: SOME COMMON FALSE OBJECTIONS TO GOLD & SILVER AS A MEDIUM OF EXCHANGE

In any debate about gold and silver, certain objections are repeatedly raised by opponents of monetary freedom, even though those objections have been refuted many times before. Some of these objections are:

There is not enough gold;
Russia and South Africa, since they are the principal producers, will benefit;
Gold is subject to undesirable speculative influences;
Gold will produce instability in prices.

The first objection, that there is not enough gold, is based upon a misunderstanding of the price of gold. It assumes that the present exchange ratio between a weight of gold and notes is the exchange ratio that must prevail when the gold is made a medium of exchange. Such obviously is not the case. To put it simply, lower prices under gold currency will eliminate the necessity for larger sums. One could buy a suit that costs 400 paper units with 20 gold equivalents at a different exchange ratio.

The second objection, concerning Russia and South Africa is equally groundless. It could be considered an advantage, in the same way oil or a fertile soil could be equal, in comparative terms. The amount of gold already taken out of the earth in the last two thousand years is already superior to the known but unminted reserves of Russia and South Africa. The unminted reserves of Russia are estimated to be about 250 million ounces which is less than what the United States already has in minted reserves. The demand for gold as a medium of exchange will release the existing hoardings, a process which is already in vogue in most central banks.

The third objection, that gold is subject to speculative influence and therefore too unstable to be used as a medium of exchange, is also false. During the 70's, gold became a major hedge against inflation. The run-up in gold prices from $35 to $850 per ounce came as a result of fears about the value of paper-money and developing international crises. People who object to gold because it is speculative confuse cause and effect. The real speculation is provoked by an irredeemable paper-money system and people who logically want to protect themselves from it.

The fourth objection, says that gold will produce instability in prices. Comparing prices in gold in the U.S. in 1833 with 1933, just prior to the abandoning of the domestic gold standard, the index of wholesale commodity prices increased only 0.9 percent in one hundred years! Since then the index increased 350% by 1971 when President Nixon, declaring international bankruptcy, announced that no more gold would be given in exchange for dollars. In the last twenty years the index has gone up around 400%.

Gold is therefore stable and fit to be money, and history has shown us that there is no money more unstable or unfit than paper-money.

BOOK REVIEW

Schiffer Military History
by Howard A. Daniel III

The Schiffer Publishing Ltd. company produces a periodical book catalog that contains references from about the Civil War to the present. There are many histories of U.S. and foreign military units, and a section on related materials. This section has medals, decorations, badges, counterfeits of Holocaust materials, and patches. There was also a reference about WWII sweetheart jewelry that reminded me of a love token and bracelet Fred Schwan bought at the FUN Show. I did not see "World War II Remembered" or "Military Payment Certificates" books in the catalog, so I believe the BNR Press should contact this firm and see that they are listed in their catalogs.

I believe their book catalogs will be an excellent source of reference for many Gramsters. The current catalog's title is "Spring 2002 Catalog" and it can be acquired from their address at:

EDITORIAL

Another big gram today!
We've got a Show Report, Two nice articles including the article on ANA's National Coin Week and the final installment on Dave Klinger's Fatwa on Paper Money , and Book Review. It does sounds like Maastricht is off to a good start! Don't forget to bring back something for your asistant editor- bribes ARE accepted for expediting articles. :o) Seriously, I'm looking forward to hearing more about it - I only wish I had been able to go. Enjoy!

Something I missed and forgot to mention yesterday: Gram 591 - another Gram / MPC Series match! Can you believe we are up to 591? Next stop: Gram 611. I'll be here. Will you?

On to something of a little importance: I need a little feedback from you Gram recipients: I would like to know how favorable you all would be to:

- 1) Publishing the letters and articles below in alternating colors, to distinguish them from one another, or:
- 2) Having one in bold, one normal, one in bold, one normal, or:
- 3) A divider between letters such as: * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * *

I personally like the divider, as it won't make you all burn through your color ink cartridges unnecessarily, as the same with the bold type and black ink cartridges. I thought I'd ask your opinions and get a little interaction.

Ass't Ed.

MAIL CALL

Good morning Mr. Asst. Editor Sir:
I must have gone blind and dumb at the same time (well, some suggest I was born dumb). I cannot for the life of me find the reference to Series 100 'B' "pre-MPC" items anywhere in the Third or Fourth Editions of the MPC Reference books. As far as I can tell, only the 'A' Series 100 is presented. To confirm that 'B' exists, I went to WWII Remembered and found the Series 100 material presented on pp. 290-292 \ Allies; with the 'B' material charted on p.292 just as is the 'A' material elsewhere. What am I missing here-- besides my mind that is--(I should know better than to give this group and opening like that)--better yet, where am I missing the reference? Thanks for any assistance. I probably should look for teeth marks as it is probably right there in front of me.

Rusty Crawford

Hi Rusty!

"B" type Yen were never listed in any of the MPC Catalogs... As they were not MPC. They are AMC. "A" Type Yen are listed in MPC Catalogs because they were used shortly as an experiment for MPC, then Series 461 was issued. If you need info on "B" type Yen, you already know they are listed in WW2 Remembered. Help this solves your dilemma!
Your Humble Assistant Editor

My thanks to Larry Smulczenski for alerting me to the existence of the Society of Ration Token Collectors. Could we have a bit more info on it please, i.e.: does it cover world or only US ration tokens, how can I join (and do they have overseas members), what is the cost of the catalog?? In line with Ski's last sentence in yesterday's Gram, I'm expressing an interest.

FEATURED ARTICLE

New Item for "World War II Remembered"

by Howard A. Daniel III

On Saturday, February 9, I departed early (for me) at 8 a.m. for Williamsburg Honda to have my CR-V's regular maintenance check. Afterwards, I drove into Williamsburg and ate a favorite breakfast of two eggs over medium with grits, toast and coffee at a IHOP restaurant. Yes, there are still some of us eating grits by choice.

After breakfast, I was looking at the dragon paint job on a truck parked near me, when the owner got out of it and came over to me. What did I do wrong this time? It turns out he is Charlie Carter (of Charlie Carter Cleans Chimneys) and lives not far from me in Middlesex County. He said that he noticed I was admiring his dragon paint job, and he and his wife were talking about my "SE ASIA" license plate. They are interested in all parts of East Asia, so he wanted to talk to me about visiting Southeast Asia. To shorten this, they want to accompany me back to Viet Nam in the future, then they will go on to Cambodia and Thailand. After a couple of days in Saigon and maybe My Tho, I will introduce him to a tourist firm there that can take them around to several sights before they leave for Cambodia. He also works and has worked in many retired "spook's" houses in our area and will ask them if they know about any financial things of interest to me and maybe you.

Then I drove to the Best Western Patrick Henry Conference Center for the annual Williamsburg Stamp Show. I met several dealers I know and a couple of new ones. They had nothing for me or anything on the want lists I carry with me, but I did hear a collector talking about Japanese Military Postal Savings Books. Now that sounded really good for Joe Boling and also for some other World War II collectors and researchers! So I waited for him to finish his conversation and stopped him as he was walking to another dealer.

His name is Bernard L. Muehlbauer and he was in Japan and Korea during the occupation time after World War II. His wife is Japanese and somehow became a specialist in Japanese philatelic pieces. His current project is finishing a reference about the coded APO-like system the Japanese military used during the war. The reference will be about 150-200 pages, but to keep it to a reasonable size, it come with a CD-ROM which will contain about 15,000 (!) of the APO-like numbers for geographic locations, unit locations and high-ranking (I think?) military individuals. Mr. Muehlbauer lives at:

17 Mill Creek Terrace
Hampton, VA 23663

and his email is "Muehl@erols.com", if you want to contact him. I pre-ordered a copy of his work because it does include Southeast Asia.

Then I drove to nearby Fort Eustis to acquire a Department of Defense vehicle decals for my Honda CR-V, but the office issuing them is only open during the week. There is a 100% ID card check at the gates for everyone coming on to Fort Eustis and only a random check of the vehicles with or without decals. Around the Washington, DC, area, there is a 100% ID card check at the gates and all vehicles without decals are checked. So I want decals to eliminate most of my vehicle checks at Fort Belvoir and elsewhere. No luck today, so I will come back during the week to acquire them.

On the way back home, I drove back across the York River bridge into Gloucester County and stopped at a weekend-only flea market. I found a couple of items at the same store that has a bunch of MPC that I wrote about a year or so ago. This time I found a "Junior Officers' Club" menu dated Thursday, April 29, 1943. Can you imagine stuffed celery, orange juice, shrimp cocktail, soup and Long Island Duckling with dressing for $1.65? Those junior officers ate good! In the same folder, I found an original U.S. Individual Income and Victory Tax Return for 1943. It is marked "my copy" and for a Jack M. Wilkems(?). He worked at the Virginia Engineering Company, Newport News Shipbuilding, and for an individual as a carpenter. His "Net Victory Tax" on the final line of the form was $67.42.

I am gifting both of these items to Fred Schwan because I think the form should at least be illustrated in the next

"World War II Remembered" edition somewhere near U.S. Treasury items. Both items cost me a grand total of $2.00. After the flea market, I drove home and started writing this before I forgot something and/or changed my mind. I hope my little day trip has something of interest to some of you Gramsters.

EDITORIAL

It's always nice to find some new area to collect, I guess that's how it all starts. He collects this, you collect that and they collect the other. Then you all start talking to one another, and all of a sudden, WW2 Remembered is written and published. Then before you know it you have a bunch of people who decide they aren't the only weirdos collecting this stuff! But with WW2 Remembered, and Catalog for MPC, and all the other reference books being published now for a multitude of things, it does get difficult to find a new niche. But once in a while, you do. I admit I did it with Military Paybooks. Fred made a quick mention in the previous MPC Catalogs, but when I started looking, I found no one collecting paybooks as a subject in whole. Now? I've met one other, who lives overseas, and he specializes in UK & Commonwealth Territories only. So, the moral? Don't ever let someone do your thinking for you. Look, listen, make suggestions, always be willing to try something new, never pass up the opportunity to create a name for yourself where no one has done so before! Ass't Ed.

MAIL CALL

Phil:

I was afraid that was the answer. I had gone back & reread the 3rd & 4th MPC book materials on S-100 as well as the WW II Remembered stuff. I happen to believe you are both right; S-100 is not MPC and should not be categorized as such. BUT, as the precursor to true MPC (and as it is the first to carry a series number in a manner like true MPC -- I understand the year-series differences) it should have a more of a place in the introductory material than it does.

Most general collectors of paper and other things military, while maybe aware of the fact that there are 'A' & 'B' forms of Series-100, generally never see the 'A' form of that paper. The 'B' underprint is far and away what is out there for the public in the monthly show, estate auction, cigar boxes in the attic, etc.

Hell, I don't need to argue that with you -- you know all of that many times over. I still think it would have been worthwhile to stick an up-to-date version of the WWII remembered page concerning 'B' into MPC4. As long as the 'A' was going to be mentioned, so should be the 'B' and as long as 'A' was to be charted, so should have been 'B'. Leave it to the professional collectors like you and Fred to argue out the nuances of the situation.

A sideline. I was very interested in Joe Boling's comments about looking for collectibles in the various locations in Vietnam. That brought back many memories. When I was there in '68, I did a lot wandering thru the market stalls up & down the country (my job provided the opportunity to travel across CTZ lines with great frequency) primarily looking for trade dollars but willing to obtain copies of interesting looking paper -- I was not serious about foreign currency at that time. I found that on-the-street the 1964 Kennedy halves and the trade dollars generally were very identifiable as counterfeit as most bore the same defects and felt/rang false. Colonel A. J. Vinci (later of Florida Numismatic fame) had been an acquaintance at the Pentagon. I mailed copies back to him for his verification that they were indeed fakes. At the time I was there it was somewhat difficult to contact the dealers whose names I had been given. Most everything was in shambles and I was not generally focused on my collecting interests.

In my year, though, I did obtain several very nice Indochina bills and pre-partition Vietnamese paper. Once I received a very well used Ho Chi Minh 5 or 10 Dong note in change from a shopkeeper or restaurateur who immediately became quite embarrassed that he had given it to me, an American. I assured him I was not offended and still have the note. Only in later years did I consider that he might have been worried I would turn him in as a subversive or perhaps that he had given away something he valued. I was too surprised at receiving it to do anything but put it away to mail back home to the wife who surely wondered at all the strange stuff she was getting from me.

I had better quit rambling on & on. I appreciate your reply concerning the S-100 AMC-MPC. Thanks. You do a fine job with the Gram keep it going. Maybe we now call you Editor and call Fred the Emeritus Editor?

Rusty Crawford

Series 003 - Number 594 Sunday - 14 APRIL 2002

320 days to Fest IV

SHOW REPORT - MAASTRICHT, NETHERLANDS

by Marcus Turner

Today the show opened to the public. Attendance was very heavy and sales brisk. The big buy of the day was made by David Seelye, finding a North African 50 Franc POW note. It is only 1 of two know, is the note pictured in Campbell and has been traced back to the Ruth Hill Collection. Several other great finds were made over the course of the day. The day was capped off by dinner with the english speaking contingent including dealers and friends from the UK and Australia including Tom Warburton, Pam West, Trevor Wilkin, Ian Gradon and several others.

Tomorrow will be the last day the show and trading on the floor will continue until 6:00pm. Closing of last minute deals should be rampant. It looks like I may have found a ride back to Frankfurt so I will probably stay at the Parkhotel for another day meaning another report for everyone to suffer through. More to come.

Tomorrow: WESTPMEX, NY Show Report

Hasty Counterfeiters Convicted

by Sgt. Howard Taubman, Staff Correspondent submitted by Ken Kugler

This is from the Stars and Stripes, Mediterranean and was printed in Italy.
It is Vol. 1, No. 208, Page 2 - Thursday 15 March 1945.

Rome, March 14- Two Italians who printed 1,100,000 lire worth of Allied military currency, were convicted before an Allied military court today. It was brought out at the trial that their counterfeiting job was remarkably good but that they were nabbed because they were a little too hasty in cashing in on their phony 5000 lire notes. The defendants were Tancredi Cicala, 56-year old lithographer and employee of the Ministry of Communications who received a 10-year jail sentence, and Turindo D'Incicco, a porter at the University of Rome, who got seven years. They were nabbed by Allied agents before they could get rid of more than a few thousand lire of their currency, Lt. Louis A. Sabatino of Miami, Fla. the prosecutor told the court consisting of an American major and British and lieutenant.

The counterfeiters had done their job of printing 500-lire notes that the Bank of Rome accepted their money in good faith. It was only because Sgt. H. G. Hogg of New Zealand was observant that they were prevented from disposing of a lot more of the fake currency. Cicala, a small man with graying hair, whose background and record were respectable, deposited 7,000 lire of the phony money at the Bank of Rome last December. The clerk who accepted it was later forced to make up the money to the bank.

Shortly after Cicala's deposit, some of the currency was turned over to an Italian messenger from the New Zealand Club in an exchange for Italian money. Sgt. Hogg received the money, fingered it, was suspicious. He thought that the currency was moist as if the ink was not entirely dry. He called in the British MP's. Sgt. Maj. L. Tubby and Lt. E. W. Pinder, former British constables and with the Special Investigating Branch, worked on the case for about six weeks. They found Cicala quickly enough, and he had some fake currency, but not much. He kept giving them false leads, naming nonexistent accomplices who lived at nonexistent addresses in Rome.

Finally they tracked down D'Incicco at his apartment on the roof of one of the University of Rome buildings. The press used to print the money was in D'Incicco's home. Further search on the University premises brought to light the plates on which the engravings were made. Since D'Incicco knew that investigators were on his trail, he concealed as much of the incriminating evidence as he could. He had either a sardonic sense of humor or had read too many thrillers. The plates were found hidden in the desks of several professors. One turned up in the office of an economics teacher. The investigators said that the professors were wholly guiltless and were thoroughly unhappy when evidence was found in their desks.

The court ordered that the press plates and inks be turned over to the British police school here for classroom study.

TECHNICAL DIFFICULTIES

Due to technical problems of the MPCGram mail server being hit by lightning, the MPCGram will be coming from a different e-mail address. Until further notice, please do not reply to mpcgram@papermoneyworld.net, and send articles and letters directly to the following email addresses:

mpcgram@yahoo.com

iwantmympc@aol.com

Doug Bell can be contacted at: mpc@sirinet.net

Special thanks to Ken Kugler for submitting the above letter. It is a very nice piece of history. I have to say, I love history like this.. Realizing this incident happened 57 years ago, and here it is printed again and appreciated. I can only wonder at all the undiscovered tidbits lying in some archives or library waiting to be brought to light again. Perhaps some enterprising Gram recipients can visit their local libraries, or search the web for articles of interest... Who knows what's out there? Ass't Ed.

MAIL CALL

Phil,
Was there an MPCGRAM 592? If so I didn't get it. Since joining the group short while ago, I look forward to each MPC gram and the info contained therein. Please check on 592 for me and keep me on your email listing.

Will any of the gramsters be going to Memphis? My wife and I plan to attend. Regards,
Roger Urce

T man on Eisenhower's Staff

submitted and annotated by Fred Schwan

Bernard Bernstein served on General Eisenhower's staff representing Treasury matters. These included exchange rates, issuance of money, and other things of great interest to us.

Fortunately, under the direction of the Truman Library a long oral history was recorded of Mr. Bernstein. The interview was conducted by Richard McKinzie. The interview is made available for research by the library.

This is the first installment of extracts from this interview that we will publish here in the Gram. We hope to include comments which will be included in square brackets [].

Oral History Interview with BERNARD BERNSTEIN
July 23, 1975
by Richard D. McKinzie

BERNSTEIN: I was a student at the Columbia Law School from 1927 to 1930. In my first year at the law school I took, like all the other students that year in the opening class, the course in contracts. The professor who taught contracts was Herman Oliphant. He gave me the only A+ in the class.

After graduation from law school I went to work for a prominent New York law firm, Taylor, Blanc, Capron and Marsh, at what happens to have been the highest salary paid any law clerk in the City of New York at the time, $3,000 a year. I worked there for a few years. President Roosevelt and the New Deal, obviously struck a response in the hearts and minds of young people all around the country. I read in November 1933 that Henry Morgenthau had been appointed Under Secretary of the Treasury and that his General Counsel was Herman Oliphant who had been his General Counsel at the Farm Credit Administration. I decided some time in December 1933 to write a letter to Herman Oliphant reminding him of the favorable relationship he and I had had as professor and student at Columbia and saying I would be interested in coming down to work. He invited me to come down to see him.

I went to Washington and waited in Oliphant's outer office for quite a while. He was a busy man. As soon as Oliphant and I began to talk he said that I should just start working.

Well, the first couple of years at the Treasury I worked most of my time on matters relating to gold and silver. We were calling in all the gold at $20.67 an ounce. The President in January, 1934 had fixed a price of $35 for an ounce of gold. A lot of people who had gold were reluctant to turn it in at $20.67 an ounce. Similarly people who owned gold clause obligations did not like the idea of such obligations being paid off dollar for dollar after the devaluation of the dollar. Such people wanted $1.69 for every dollar of their gold clause obligation. The Joint Resolution of June 5, 1933 made all gold clause obligations, both public and private obligations, payable in any U.S. legal tender currency dollar for dollar.

We had a great deal of work in administering the various gold control orders and in participating in litigation that attacked gold controls and the gold clause resolution. It culminated in a famous group of cases coming before the United States Supreme Court, the famous gold clause cases. As a young lawyer I was given the opportunity of working on the briefs in the Supreme Court cases. This surely was, up to then, the high point of my career as a lawyer. I participated in the development of the Government's strategy in these cases, in the writing of the briefs and in the preparation for the oral arguments.

In 1937, the Japanese sank the American gunboat called the Panay in the Yangtze River in China. The President asked the Secretary of the Treasury if he had some ideas as to what the Government might do. Secretary Morgenthau talked to Herman Oliphant and Herman Oliphant talked to Clarence Oppen and me. Clarence and I almost locked ourselves up in Oppen's office. Oliphant was so concerned about possible leaks that he asked Oppen to have the venetian blinds in his office shut so that nobody could spy on us from the Washington Hotel across the street. What we produced at that time, was the first document that ultimately came to be known as Foreign Funds Control, based on Section 5(b) of the Trading With the Enemy Act of 1917. We said that the President had the power to control banking transactions under certain circumstances. We drafted a document for the President by which he would impose controls on banking transactions in which the Japanese had an interest. For reasons formulated at the top level of Government, the President decided not to go forward with issuing that order.

Thereafter, for I would say three years to about--in any event, to April 1940, everytime there was a crisis in international affairs, generally speaking precipitated one way or another by Hitler and the Nazis, I would take out these old documents, redraft them in terms of the current crisis, and we always were ready with our written plans as to how to proceed. Now, if I may, it's at this point that I would like to read some ideas that I put down on paper.

Beginning sometime in 1936 or '37, the Secretary of the Treasury, Henry Morgenthau, Jr., as a result of his own foresight and sound judgment, as well as his close personal and official relationships with the President, began to be increasingly concerned about the dangers to the democratic nations of the world of Nazism and aggressions on the part of Germany and Japan. He was continuously studying and seeking ways and means of building up the strength of the United States, of the Western democracies, and of China, and of weakening the power of Germany and Japan. He directed his top staff to focus on the problems and to bring him suggestions and ideas.

Editorial

Where's Phil? Many of you must have been wondering that. No only has the Gram been a no show, but he has not been working the phones. A careful study of eBay activity would probably show that their volume is down. Phil has been banished to phone hell. Somehow his area is without phone service. He braved the elements to get to another community to tap out a message in Morse code to me telling me the above (well, sort of) and asking me to jump back in the editor's seat.
By the time that I decoded the message it was midnight, but I figured that we should get out some sort of emergency Gram. I tried to copy all of Phil's fancy formats etc., but could not make it work very well, so decided against that. We have even cut the standard material below because there have been updates while Phil was working on it and it is likely that by introducing some old copy the situation would be made worse. We will try to get all of that going again by tomorrow.

Phil's technical problems are on top of the ones that Doug has had with the main mailing list at papermoneyworld.net. Today he seems to have resolved those problems, so possibly Phil was being punished for Doug's good fortune!!

Phil has some features and mail all laid out for some Grams so even in that area I am at a disadvantage but, it just seemed appropriate that we should have a Gram on IRS day so here it is.

I must take this opportunity here in the hot seat to restate that Phil is doing a great job as many of you have noted here and to me privately.

Yesterday, I started work on some items that I was going to include in some columns by me. Now I will try to get some of that ready for an article. I suspect that I will be publishing the Tuesday Gram too, but am not sure. As always, send your stuff in to MPCGram@Yahoo.com and send it ASAP!!!

Mail Call

Dear Esteemed Editor,

I am having a severe case of MPC Gram withdrawal. Will I be seeing another one in the near future? Please reply when you have recovered from the MPC Fest with a complete SITREP. I am sure you and the attendees slept very little during your time together, but we unfortunate Gramsters who could not attend because of other obligations need to know what happened at the Fest ASAP.

Howard A. Daniel III

Dear Howard,

Well, this letter is a little old, but in light of the problems above, it is one of the few letters that I could find in the "file" to put in the Gram so here it is. We sure could use a column from you for every Wed (or pick a day). That would help us avoid that dreaded Gram withdrawal syndrome that you mentioned.

Covering the entire World of Military Numismatics

Series 003 - Number 596 Tuesday - 16 APRIL 2002

318 days to Fest IV

FEATURED ARTICLE

America may scale down European bases

By Rupert Cornwell in Washington

submitted by R. Balbarton
12 April 2002

The Bush administration is planning a major shake-up of the country's military high command, to speed up the creation of more streamlined armed forces for the post-Cold War world.

The changes, including the first appointment of a Marine to head NATO, elaborated by the Defense Secretary, Donald Rumsfeld, and approved by President George Bush, involve four of the US regional commands worldwide, as well as two of the four services.

Most importantly however, they signal Mr. Rumsfeld's determination to create a more flexible military for the 21st century, despite resistance from the entrenched Pentagon bureaucracy.

The most striking move is the expected nomination of General James Jones, commandant of the 170,000-strong Marine Corps, to be the new supreme commander of NATO. General Jones will replace Air Force General Joseph Ralston, who will step down at the end of the year.

The NATO job, which was also held by Dwight Eisenhower before he was president, and the former secretary of state, Alexander Haig, can be fraught with political danger - as General Wesley Clark, General Ralston's predecessor who was sacked after the Kosovo war, can testify.

General Jones, raised in France and a fluent French speaker, has a reputation as an innovative soldier. As Marines commandant, he leads the service most used for far-flung interventions and peacekeeping missions - which Pentagon planners believe will be the shape of warfare to come.

The arrival of a Marine general in Brussels may foreshadow a scaling-back of fixed US Army bases in Europe, most of them installed to counter a vanished Soviet threat. Such steps have been hinted at on several occasions by the Pentagon since Mr. Rumsfeld took office in January 2001.

The other key change is the probable promotion of General John Keane to become the army's new chief of staff. General Tommy Franks, head of Central Command and in charge of the campaign in Afghanistan, will stay in his job, Pentagon officials said.

SHOW REPORT - WESTPMEX, NEW YORK

by Philip M. Goldstein

Like I said in a previous gram, it always seems when there is a big show going on, there always a Westchester Paper Money Exposition & Show scheduled for same weekend! That's good... because it keeps the competition out of my hair and leaves the goodies for me - LOL! BTW, I had made a mistake with my listing in the Gram, as this was the small 100 table show. That does not mean, I didn't find anything...

As I start canvassing the floor, I see a regular table holder and who is a World Paper Money dealer. We became friends over the course of time. He is Spanish and speaks hardly any understandable English, so he has his younger son translate the more complicated deals. With a happy grin he welcomes me and he then digs out a 5" x 8" sleeve out of his briefcase, and hands it to me saying through his son he held these with me in mind. There were about 20 MPC notes. All common, and all circulated, but I went through them anyway. As I carry both Harold's High Serial Number List, and Doug's Position Number List with me, it does take a few minutes to check each note. I seemed to the source of some sort of amusement for when I looked up, he was smiling and pointing me out to other WPM collectors saying (in broken English) "Positions Numbers collector!" In this group, I found no high serial numbers, but I did find 4 notes with Position Numbers that Doug needed. The best two of those where a Series 481 $1, Position Number 1 on the right, (that's right: a denomination / position number match) and Series 481 .10 with PN 84. Doug was more ecstatic about this note, as this was the last note he needed, because it completes his Series 481 10¢ PN group. After paying and bidding my friend a good evening, I search the rest of the floor to no avail.

As I'm getting ready to leave with my female company, I hesitate... She asks what's wrong? I tell her I have this nagging feeling I'm missing something... I search the floor again. Nothing. Again we go to leave, and again I stop by the door. She says not again... I say I can't help it! I know I'm missing something... I search the floor again, and this time, I found what was keeping me from leaving: a set of 3 consecutive Series 461 10¢ notes. I asked to see the notes. The dealer who has them, has them marked au/unc and are priced $60 net for the three. I recognize the dealer, who is notorious on the bourse to be overpriced, over graded, and rigid in dealing. But immediately on examination, you saw they were not as graded and that they are lightly circulated. (Fred once made a mention that finding circulated consecutive notes are a lot tougher than uncirculated consecutive.)

I pointed this out to the dealer and haggled with him for about 10 minutes at the beginning of the show. He would not budge, saying he's priced them accordingly, and to the April green sheet. I say the green sheet don't know squat... I immediately whip out the 4th Edition book and launch into a salemans pitch on how new the book is, only released one month ago, show him the appropriate prices for that grade and if Fred's catalog prices are lower the green sheet prices, you know something is wrong... He starts to hem and haw. I say well, there not worth it at that price. I suggested he might have an impartial party grade them, and I put them down and walked away.

I walk across the room to the refreshment counter with company in tow, to watch this scene unfold. While I'm sipping on a soda, and after 3-4 minutes, he turns around to a dealer behind him, with the MPC notes in hand. They talk, a little heatedly, and I watch the dealer with the MPC scribble something on the holder containing the three notes and place back in case. By this time, my date is getting impatient, and I say we'll leave a few more minutes. MPC FIRST! I saunter back over to that aisle, and casually work my way up the opposite side of aisle. As I pass him, he calls out to me, and says he'll do better on the notes. He lowered the price from $60 to $45. He explains he is not experienced with MPC, nor does he regularly purchase it for resale. I tell him no problem, but I suggest he start purchasing MPC as it is the up and coming area of paper money, and I'm almost always at every WESTPMEX show. I think about the notes at $45 and say I'll take them. He is now quite happy he says, as he didn't want them sitting in his case until next show. And I'm quite happy, as I now have a set of three consecutive Series 461 10¢ (my previous earliest set was Series 472 5¢ notes) and that these were circulated, not unc. The Serial Numbers are: A01996615A xf, A01996616A xf, A01996617A au.

EDITORIAL

Fred brought up a good point regarding this scaling back of the military: the closure of military banking facilities, and with that the loss of MBF Checks. What are we going to do!?!? I don't know if I can live without my MPC & MBF checks... Ass't Ed.

Very interesting replacement. Series 692 $10 (!!), serial number E00032007 pos 5. This SN demonstrates the system very well. Four positions completed = 32,000 notes. This then is from sheet number 7. Note is overall very fine, but looks extremely fine from the face. The centerfold that is strong on the back is not even noticable on the face. Two staple holes that saved the note from destruction 30 years ago at left. Yours for $3300, terms possible. Confirm at: fredschwan@yahoo.com

FEATURED ARTICLE

New Finds:
by Joseph Boling

Although last week I promised more tales of past collecting derring-do, a few interesting items have come my way since then. Let's talk about them. At a meeting of the University Coin Club (Seattle) last Thursday, a collector approached me carrying the 3rd edition of Fred's tome and asked for assistance in interpreting the listings. He could not understand the lines in the series 481 listing marked "w/D- position # right." I agree that if you just pick up the book, the listings are not intuitive; you have to already know the Comprehensive Catalog numbering convention of using "r" for replacements, and know that "D-" means a serial number without suffix. If you have not read the explanation of replacements, the listing is hard to interpret. So, I explained what D- meant (he was interested because of the grossly higher values for notes on those lines).

He had acquired a small group of 481 pieces at a different club's meeting the previous week; he had six nickels, a quarter, a half, and three dollars. I quickly checked for D-; there were none. However, I then looked at the serials on the dollars, and saw one that looked uncommonly high. Not having my MPC book at the club meeting, I called our Esteemed Editor to query him about the 4th printing serial break. He was sick in bed, snoring. Judy found a copy of the book, found the page we needed, and read me the low serial for the 4th printing $1--24640001. Just as I suspected - my friend has a 4th printing $1, and a fairly high one at that--D25586062D. The note is a nice VF-XF, quarter folded once each horizontally and vertically. It looks as if it were issued just before C-day and got folded up to put away as a souvenir. Harold, is this a high number? Fred tells me that it is not a condition census piece--in fact, it might be the lowest known grade for this variety, the others also having been issued just before C-day. Here are the pieces in this group:

Den	Serial #	Pos #	Grade	Printing
5¢	D07811330D	53	G	2nd printing
5¢	D07763379D	47	G	2nd printing
5¢	D09410562D	1	G	3rd printing
5¢	D09579823D	22	VG	3rd printing
5¢	D09606093D	25	VG	3rd printing
5¢	D15738791D	36	clean F	4th printing
25¢	D02153109D	18	F	1st printing
50¢	D05326696D	78	VF	3rd printing
$1	D13696838D	33	F+	3rd printing
$1	D17596197D	30	VG	3rd printing
$1	D25586062D	49	VF+	4th printing

Note the monotonically increasing grades in the nickels, exactly in line with the serial numbers / printings. The 4th printing $1 will be in the Lyn Knight Memphis sale in June (if Joel Shafer can still shoehorn it in, which he has promised to try to do).

Also last week I received an email out of the blue from an auction company I had never heard of announcing an estate liquidation sale in Richland, Wash, on 14 April. I emailed back to see if there was any paper in the sale, and got a call that there was a little, but that there was a lot more to be sold later. I asked if that could be brought to the sale venue so I could inspect it; that was doable. I found a plastic bin about 10"x14"x7" just about full of mostly foreign notes. There was some US small sized, and some Canadian, but very little else that is still valid in foreign exchange. There was a separate plastic bag with a large handful of MPC and AMC (and lots more AMC in the loose notes in the bin). I spent about 90 minutes looking at every note, and separated about a dozen that would sell for $20 or more; not much in such a large group. It was somewhat disappointing.

However, there were a couple of pieces that I thought EE would be interested in, so I called (and he was HOME). He told me what he would pay, and I inquired of the auctioneer whether we could do a side sale on the two pieces. He said they would have to be auctioned, since it is a court-supervised disposition, so he announced a B-lot (so called because he inserted it after an existing lot, as 221B) and opened it at the price Fred was willing to pay. If there were no further bids, we would get it at that price. Well, I'm damned if there wasn't someone who either recognized the value of the notes, or figured that if I were willing to pay x, they must be worth x+$5. We finally got them for x+$30, and I was still happy with the price. What were they? A 681 5c replacement, C00385549 PN49 in F, and a German Rentenmark with Luxembourg post-war revalidation stamps (see SB pages 330 and 36-38).

Note the serial on the 681 nickel, as it falls in the list on page 291 of the 4th edition--fourteen notes past an already-reported piece. Interestingly, as I was waiting for my driving companion to complete paying for his lots, another attendee commented on the insane price that the two-note B-lot had brought--he was thinking about bringing his MPC right over to see if they could be sold that high. I explained the concept of a replacement note, which he understood, but he had completely failed to recognize the piece that had been sold as a replacement. Contact Fred if you need it (the Luxembourg piece will not be for sale).

EDITORIAL

First, I want to apologize to Joe, for forgetting yesterday was Tuesday... Don't know where my head is, but it sure wasn't in a calendar... I'm just glad his article made it out.

Second, another Series 481 $1 4th Printing.. That brings the total now known to seven. There is one located in a museum, and I need the serial number off of it. Can anyone furnish the number? (hint hint Ski) I wonder how many more of any of the multiple printing notes will turn up over time... I must admit, I lack the patience to wait and find out how many are known in lets say 5 years and 10 years... But I'm sure we are only seeing the tip of the iceberg. In retrospect, and although missing the multiple printings I once owned, I'm also glad I sold mine when I did!

Third, below is a letter from Jim Downey concerning an IRS ruling on MPC in 1975. Is should prove to be of interest...

Fred:
The web address below is for Revenue Ruling 75-477. It was issued by the IRS in 1975 and relates to the tax treatment of income gained by a civilian contractor through black marketeering in MPC. It is a short piece and think it would be of interest to the Gram audience:
<http://www.taxlinks.com/rulings/1975/revrul75-477.htm>
I have done a search for other Revenue Rulings that may be of interest, but have not found any.

Comment: "Show Report!" It's so nice to hear from a true collector's point of view. I rememeber collecting strictly as a hobby. My joy was unlimited! Then came "paying bills too" so now, I too collect but have to "deal in numismatics" fulltime. This makes it so hard just to cruze the show for things I like. I do both but get hammered by my peers for "collecting"! I FEEL sorry for them. FOR they do not "know" the joys of collecting.....like Phil! I'm sure happy I collect MPC!!!! Guy Araby! coin dealer.

Howard Daniel,
I would really like to see the income tax form you found in Va. I do income taxes as a community service at the senior centers here in Balto,Md. Could you scan it and put in you next gram. My new email address is donflyer@msn.com

316 days to Fest IV

FEATURED ARTICLE

by Larry Smulczenski

After the FEST, Fred and I went on a little trip to the National Bank of Canada in Ottawa to observe some of the treasures in their archives. Our main purpose was to gather information on the POW camps in Canada and gather information on the notes that these camps issued.

We had planned to leave Monday morning after the FEST, but if you have every had the pleasure of going on a trip with my traveling companion, you know that getting on the road when you plan is a figment of the imagination. We actually hit the road about 5 PM Tuesday and drove until we were tired, stopped and got a good nights sleep and then made the drive into Canada the next day. The weather was nice, even though this was early March and the scenery though the St. Lawrence Seaway area was lovely even if the trees and vegetation hadn't started growing yet. Just the sight of the many small islands with several houses or buildings built on each one of them was very interesting to see. We got to Ottawa at about 5 PM on Wednesday and drove around to get familiar with the streets and various government buildings in the city. Ottawa is a very beautiful city with contrasting architecture. Some very old buildings from the 1800's or before sitting right next to very modern buildings. We found the Bank which was one of the newer buildings and then got a motel about a half mile up the street.

The next morning was our appointment with Paul Berry, the Curator of the National Currency Collection. We were met with open enthusiasm and spent most of the day oh-oh-ing and awing at the notes that Paul would retrieve from the vaults to show us. The bank has a very extensive collection of Canadian POW camp notes. There were 26 POW camps in Canada during WWII and most of them issued chits for use by the prisoners. Some of the camps were in operation as early as late 1939, since you must realize that Canada as part of the British Empire was drawn into the war long before Pearl Harbor. As Enemy Aliens were identified and Merchant Seamen were captured they were interned in some of these camps. We were able to photograph all the POW camp scrip that Paul showed us and I must say it was a spectacular display. Some of the camps issued chits from 1 cent clean up to 5 dollars in value. I haven't got around to printing out all the photos that Fred took up there yet, but that is one of those projects that I have to get around to doing. I know that when I do that it will be like another trip to Canada for me.

We also got to see many other World War II notes that the Bank has as part of its collection. Most of these notes were in specimen form as they were the examples of newly issued currency sent by the issuing authority to the Bank of Canada. The Bank of Canada placed the notes in their archives when a new series was issued and these old series were demonitized. We saw many beautiful notes, one series that I hold near and dear to my heart, is the 1948 Special Army Currency from the Federal Republic of Germany. There was a full set of these notes in Specimen Form.

After we bid a fond farewell to Paul, Fred and I went across the street to the Canadian National Archives. You could spend hours here and your only limitation is to think of key words or phrases to type into their computers of things that you wanted to see. The only problem is that you must have a couple of days there so that they can pull the references out of there holdings to show to you. Fred was able to find some photographs that he purchased that have to do with our interests, but I'll let him write about that sometime in the future.

We concluded our day with an evening trip to the Canadian War Museum. This was another worth while visit. We spent the rest of the evening viewing the exhibits, which covered every facet of the war. There were great photos from some of the POW camps, and hundreds of heroic deeds attributed to the various branches of the Canadian Military. By now we were both running on empty, so we concluded the day with a late dinner and headed back to the motel. I'll continue our little journey next week.

Although not too many newspapers are reporting it, today, April 18th is the 60th anniversary of Doolittle's Raid on Tokyo. Four months had passed since Pearl Harbor and the Japanese had made great advances in the Pacific overrunning Singapore, the Dutch East Indies, Hong Kong, Wake Island and Bataan in the Philippines including the infamous Death March, while Corregidor remained under siege. There was little good news and an anxious President Roosevelt challenged the military to develop a mission to strike at the enemy and boost the nation's morale. This task was given to Lt. Col Jimmy Doolittle and was planned, practiced and perfected, only a couple miles from my home here in Northwest Florida on the eastern side of the Eglin Air Force Base Reservation. Sixteen B-25's were to take off from the Carrier Hornet which would get them to within 400 miles of Japan before they would launch and attack targets around Tokyo. After the raid, the aircraft would land at friendly fields in China. However the task force was sighted by a picket ship, 150 miles short of the launch point. Doolittle and Admiral Halsey decided that the mission should launch immediately even though they would not have enough fuel to reach their post strike bases. All sixteen aircraft, took off and successfully dropped their token bomb loads on Japan. Thirteen of the bombers reached China where they either crash landed or abandoned their aircraft in flight due to fuel exhaustion. The crew of one was interned in Russia while the other two were captured by the Japanese. The Japanese tried these captured aviators and sentenced them to death. They beheaded three of these airmen and then "graciously" commuted the others to life imprisonment. One of those captives died in prison. In all 71 of the 80 airman participating in the raid survived. I don't know how many are alive today, but they hold a annual reunion here in town to commemorate this historic event.

Doolittle died in 1993 at the age of 96. He was a very interesting leader, having already been an engineer, test pilot, flight speed record holder, and successful businessman prior to the mission. He went on to command the 8th Air Force during the invasion of Europe.

EDITORIAL

Hello to all out there in MPC Land,
Today's editorial is going to be about something I feel needs to be addressed: MPC Note formatting. We've discussed this before, and now I feel is the time to do something. When I receive a letter, or a feature, or a request for sale, whenever I have to list a note or notes, you would be amazed at the varieties of note listings I get... Way too many to list and way too many not to be confusing... So, although I know the more advanced collectors who are used to doing things the old way might be a little slow in changing, I feel it needs to be done. It makes things easier to read, less chance of confusion. etc. etc. Therefore I would very much appreciate all references to MPC Notes in this format:

Series/Printing - Denomination - Serial Number - Position Number - Grade - Notations - Quantity (if necessary) - Price -

i.e:

641/1	.10	J00001234J	32	vf	Joe Blow Pedigree	$10
681	$20	C05467001-7100C	57	unc	unbroken pack	$5000
692	.50	E09876543E	23	various	group of notes	22 $25

This formatting follows the Catalog Listing almost exactly which makes it an even better reason to use. If you need to list a Catalog number, then list it first, before Series.. (But nobody has used cat numbers yet, and MPC notes are pretty much self explanatory so I don't think it's needed) Also if a note didn't have a multiple printing, there is no need to list as 661/1, as 661 will suffice, nor do you have to use the word "series" before every listing. I really think this is needed to facilitate listings in the gram, save space in the text, and as my time would be better used for more important things concerning the gram. Ass't Ed.

MAIL CALL

Reprint: Originally sent on the evening of April 12th from Valkenburg...Greetings again from Valkenburg. Today marked the official beginning of the Maastricht papermoney show with the dealer-only session beginning around 3:00 this afternoon at the Guehaul. Prior trading buying and selling continued at the unofficial pre-bourse at the Parkhotel Rooding. Some good finds were made in the morning including a UNRRA Czechsolovokian piece. The dealer only sessions filled the hall with dealers from all over the world and several big finds were made. Harold Kroll managed to buy a set of Belgian Reichs checks that are not listed in Schwan/Boling. Trading of MPC Fest Overseas Exchange Euros were somewhat muted due to hoarding of the short supplies by recipients. Some replacements were reported. All but one of the new Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates were sold out before the show even began. More to come tomorrow as the show officially opens to the public.

Dear Editor,
We all know about e-mail, but did you ever hear of V-mail? I found the following article on a web site from Duke University:

During the latter years of World War II, V-Mail became a popular way to correspond with a loved one serving overseas. V-Mail letters were written on forms that could be purchased at five and ten cent stores or the post office. These special forms were photographed, put on film, flown across the world and then reproduced at the mail center closest to the recipient's position.

The development of the V-Mail system reduced the time it took a soldier to receive a letter by a month - from six weeks by boat to twelve days or less by air. However, the main advantage of V-Mail was its compact nature. Reduction in the size and weight of the letters translated into more space for crucial military supplies on cargo planes. One advertisement explained that 1,700 V-Mail letters could fit in a cigarette packet, while reducing the weight of the letters in paper form by 98%. Transport of the letters by plane minimized the chances that the enemy would intercept the letters, although writers were reminded to delete any information that might prove useful to the enemy in case some V-Mail was captured.

Americans on the home-front were encouraged by the government and private businesses to use V-Mail. Letters from home were compared to "a five minute furlough," and advertisements that instructed how, when, and what to write in a V-Mail reached a peak in 1944. Letters were to be cheerful, short, and frequent. V-Mail made it possible for servicemen halfway across the world to hear news from home on a weekly basis." Do any Gramsters have examples of V-mail?

Very interesting replacement. Series 692 $10 (!), serial number E00032007 pos 5. This SN demonstrates the system very well. Four positions completed = 32,000 notes. This then is from sheet number 7. Note is overall very fine, but looks extremely fine from the face. The centerfold that is strong on the back is not even noticable on the face. Two staple holes that saved the note from destruction 30 years ago at left. Yours for $3300, terms possible. Confirm at: fredschwan@yahoo.com

Series 003 - Number 599 Friday - 18 APRIL 2002

319 days to Fest IV

T man on Eisenhower's Staff

part II submitted and annotated by Fred Schwan

Comments by Schwan included in square brackets [].

Well, this legal staff, as I say, was constantly formulating programs which would both protect assets of those we considered our friends and make things difficult for the Axis powers in the fields of finance and economics. For example, at one time when Hitler was taking over 25 million dollars worth of gold that belonged to the Czech National Bank, we prepared a little plan to try and prevent that gold from coming into the World Market and make funds available to Hitler. In April 1945 we found the gold in a salt mine in the middle of Germany.

In April 1940, the Germans invaded Denmark and Norway. We had another one of these meetings in the Secretary's office that was typical when a crisis in the world arose. At the meeting there were officials from the State Department, Federal Reserve Board and the Treasury to consider financial and economic matters that we might engage in view of the Nazi invasion. As usual, I had taken the old documents that had been drafted and rewrote them to apply to Denmark and Norway. I had the documents all prepared, the Executive Order, the Treasury Regulations, the instructions to the Federal Reserve Banks, etc., a whole sheaf of papers in a folder. There they were, all we really had to do was to take them out of a safe in the General Counsel's office, make them applicable to the current situation a we had a set of documents ready for signature. The discussion went on almost all day in the Secretary's office as to what to do and how to do it. I think the consensus was that we have to take measures to protect assets in the United States belonging to Danish nationals and Norwegian nationals. One group thought we could do it in a sort of voluntary manner by giving some guidance to the banks. The other group, led by Secretary Morgenthau, said that this could only be done by executive order and regulations to apply uniformly to all banking institutions and anyone else who held any kind of property in which Danes or Norwegians had an interest. It would also be necessary to have a regulatory system in which you permitted some transactions and you didn't permit other transactions, and you got reports and so on.

At around 5 o'clock on April 10, 1940, Secretary Morgenthau picked up the telephone from the wall back of his desk, called the President, very briefly summarized the views that had been expressed at the meeting, and in almost less time than it's been taking me to make this statement the President told the Secretary to send over the Executive Order for the President to sign. That night we issued Executive Order 8389 and the Treasury Regulation. That was the beginning of the Foreign Funds Control system. This program got to be applied to every country as that country was overrun. Then it got to be applied on a broader scale.

That legislation was enacted by the Congress on May 7, 1940. The German invasion of Holland and Belgium took place on May 10, 1940. That gives an idea of the degree of cooperation between the President and Congress in a time of crisis and the prompt recognition by the Congress, as well as by the administration, of the necessity of protecting all the assets in the United States belonging to nationals of the countries being overrun and of foiling Hitler's efforts to use these assets for his aggressive purposes. Of course, the freezing control program was extended to Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg upon the commencement of the invasion by Germany.

The invasion of the low countries took about five days. As soon as the invasion started the Dutch came to the Treasury and asked could we do anything to help them with these vast amounts of securities and values that they had in Holland. The American foreign funds control was being applied basically to assets in the United States.

On Sunday night a meeting was called at the residence of Secretary Morgenthau. There were Treasury, State Department and Federal Reserve people there. I had prepared a plan and had worked on it with Adolph Berle, who was at the time Assistant Secretary of State. Basically the idea was that the Dutch Government would go into its banks, open up the vaults, open up the safe deposit boxes, take out all of the securities, anything of value, money, etc., and make lists and affidavits of what was taken out. Our consuls over there would verify the lists and affidavits and these valuables would be destroyed and not allowed to fall into German hands. The currency would be destroyed, the securities would be destroyed, etc. This was applying for the first time the scorched earth policy to money and securities and comparable valuables.

There was a long meeting that night at the Secretary's home. All of the representatives of the United States Government strongly supported the plan. The Dutch were very tense. Not only was the Dutch ambassador present but he had with him some of his colleagues, including a lawyer who made a good impression. He was a tall, imposing looking man, able, and spoke English well. The Dutch said they would have to take it up with their government. The lawyer's name I think was von Saher. He came to my office the following Tuesday morning to say that the Dutch Government was unable to go ahead with the proposed program. He then broke down in tears. Within another 24 or 48 hours the fighting was over--the Germans had overrun Holland.

The next great step in foreign funds control was in about June 1941. We had been arguing for a year at the Treasury that the foreign funds control should be applied to all of Europe, to Germany and to Italy, Russia, everybody in Europe, and should be used not only as a defensive instrument, to protect the assets in the United States, but as a strongly offensive instrument to try and interfere with Hitler's plans in which he used money and financial assets to wage his war.

The State Department had opposed this all the time. Interestingly enough I saw in Acheson's book that, Acheson was sympathetic to our view all the time, but he was overruled at the State Department. It wasn't until June 1941 that foreign funds control was applied to all of Europe.

Incidentally, I think it's interesting to note that when Russia invaded and occupied the three Baltic countries, Estonia, Lithuania and Latvia, we just automatically applied the foreign funds control to those three countries and wouldn't allow the Russians to touch the assets in the United States belonging to nationals of those three countries. We treated the Soviet Union exactly the same way as we treated Nazi Germany, in terms of protecting assets in the United States of nationals of countries that were overrun. There was just no question about it. I prepared the documents; they were approved by the various divisions in the Treasury; the Secretary and the President signed the documents, and the documents were issued. We also began in June 1941, as I said, the great census of foreign-owned assets. There was very extensive and painstaking preparation for it, and preparation of the forms and instructions. With the help of the Federal Reserve system and the banking system of the United States, we obtained this information which was invaluable to us and to our allies.

There was a very famous press conference, a conference that President Roosevelt held in I think December of 1940, in which he first developed the lend-lease idea. He said in substance that when your neighbor's house is on fire, you lend him your hose, you don't ask him a price for it, and you just let him use your hose. The President said that is what we have got to work out, to help Britain and France and the other democracies. Again he turned to Morgenthau for some ideas. Morgenthau turned to Ed Foley, his General Counsel. Ed Foley, Oscar Cox and I sat down and worked almost over a two-day period and produced a draft of the lend-lease bill that came to be known as HR-1776.

I think Arthur Krock sometime in 1943 had a column in the New York Times in which he has the story of the origin of this lend-lease legislation, and mentioned various names, including names I just stated, and how the President got all the departments concerned to review it immediately. Dean Acheson, who at this time was in private practice, was called in by Morgenthau to assist on the proposed legislation, reviewing it and tightening it up. Colonel Stimson, the Secretary of War, reviewed the bill. The State Department, of course, reviewed the plan and a lend-lease bill was presented to Congress. This was another product of the Treasury and of the Treasury Legal Division and a result of this unusual relationship between the President of the United States and the Secretary of the Treasury, and the encouragement that the President and the Secretary of the Treasury gave to new ideas, to creativity, to new approaches to the solution of problems. However, I feel bound to say that in all fairness the real credit for lend-lease belongs to President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

You can understand that I may be a little biased about Franklin D. Roosevelt. He was a great force in the world and in my life. I remember a few years ago at a dinner meeting at Columbia Law School I said I felt that he was the greatest man who lived in my lifetime. It was obviously a marvelous experience and a wonderful opportunity to work in his administration.

For a good while, the Treasury had an active hand in the administration of the lend-lease program. I myself didn't work on it, I was working so much on the foreign funds control and other international financial matters. Oscar Cox was working on lend-lease a good deal as well as the Secretary and Ed Foley. Then lend-lease was lifted out of the Treasury and set up as a separate administration. I think it was first turned over to Hopkins to run and I think Oscar Cox was a big driving force in the development of the lend-lease administration. But Secretary Morgenthau was the one who sat on top of the problem of how were the British and the French going to pay for purchases in the U.S., and he drove a tough bargain in protecting American interests. He made the British sell their securities in some big American companies in which the British had a big direct investment. Morgenthau, with the backing of the President, forced the sale to produce cash to pay for war supplies that we were selling to the British.

But the impact of that program was greatly to stimulate war production in the United States at a time when our war production situation was very weak. I think that men like Secretary Stimson and General [George C.] Marshall give credit to Morgenthau and to the friendship between Morgenthau and President Roosevelt for the stimulation of the war production facilities in the United States in the period of 1939 to 1941. When we got into the war in December 1941 war production was moving ahead and we did not have to start from a standstill.

Well, throughout this period we were working closely with Latin-American countries. We had a conference with all the Latin-American countries to persuade them to adopt a financial and economic control program comparable to our program. Of course, we knew there were a great deal of Nazi German and Japanese interests down there that were working against us, and trying to get goods and supplies and financing to aid the Japanese and German war machines. We were eager to stop such things and it took a lot of hard work. A considerable amount of progress was made.

[In this part and future parts we see many hidden actions of the Treasury Department beyond creating and selling bonds and printing various monies. Of course I wonder if we will ever find numismatic (or other) documents relating to these actions so that we can add them to our collections. Recently, documents have been found relating to securities held in Switzerland during the war. I believe that these have been discussed here in the Gram, but if they have not, they will be. In the Swiss case, certificates were attached to the securities making a numismatic World War II item. I love it.]

EDITORIAL

The above letter marks a milestone in Gram history: This is Fred's first contribution as a weekly columnist! Now that he has some spare time on his hands, as I run things here at the gram, I did to him, what he liked to us: "Right an article!" I gave up Phil's Phridays, as I usually pull something from my experiences and use that to fill in on days with no regular column.. It didn't seem right for me to have a regular column AND fill in the off days. (Besides, I would run out of things to right about quicker!)

MAIL CALL

I received two issues of MPCGram 597. I only read one, so don't suppose I have to pay for two, but if useful to you, I did get two. Bill

So what happened to the special article on Series 591? I thought we were going to get a specialist's writeup on each series as its gram number rolled around. Since I don't print the grams, color or bold are not an issue. But since I get them over AOL, I will not see either the color or the bold anyway.

Hi!

I have been collecting and dealing in coins, paper money, stamps, and related items 40 years. Using "black lights" and "UV lights" one can find "stamps" as well as "paper money" come in "experimental" as well as just a variety of papers. When using a "Black Light" on my MPC, I noticed that series #641 fractionals as well as "ALL OF" series #651 and some of the fractionals of series #692 come on "High Bright Paper!" In stamps, this can change the value and is considered a different variety. I also have a "lone" series #461 $10, 'not from the pack of 100 that was broken up in the 70-80's', that exhibits this quality! I have about 5-20 of most all notes in CU I used to compare, except the rarer issues. I noticed this paper variety on as many as half the notes in a given group from series #641 fractionals and a few of #692 fractionals I can't explain why I only have seen one "lone series #461 $10" on this "high bright paper" as no other notes exhibit this quality until the 600 series. Does anyone else collect or study these varieties???

Series 003 - Number 600 Saturday - 19 APRIL 2002

314 days to Fest IV

FEATURED ARTICLE

USS Thomas A. Edison - SSBN 610

by Dave Klinger

I have a few more details related to the face design on the Series 681 fractional notes. We all know that the main design is of the submarine USS Thomas A. Edison (SSBN 610).

It was also determined that the photo from which the design was taken was from 1963 as the SUB was leaving Holy Loch Scotland. I posted the note on several web sites asking for more information and have received several good responses from crew members from the time the photo was taken.

One former crew member, Retired Senior Chief Sonarman Jack Geng identified the unusual sonar dome on the bow as a "Hindsight Sonar" part of the AN/BQR-2 Sonar System. Jack said that it didn't work very well, which is why it was removed soon after this picture was taken.

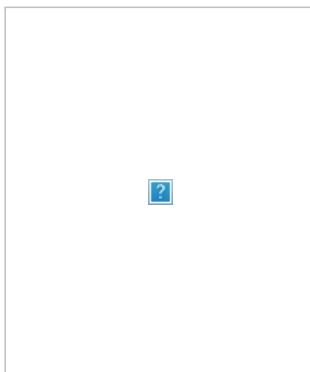

Also I was able to determine that it was the Gold crew which was aboard when the photo was taken (thanks to Senior Chief Geng and Senior Chief Barbee, also a shipmate from that time.)

What that means is that the man on top of the sail is the CO of the Gold Crew - CDR William Dedrick (photos attached).

Editors note: the Commanding Officer and the "Gold Crew" of a newly built naval vessel, are also called the "Plank Owners" This is because he (and his crew) were on hand for the christening ceremony at the respective shipyard where that vessel was built. After their first tour, or as the navy calls them, roles and missions, they were then relieved for r&r by the "Blue Crew". Then subsequently Gold and Blue crews alternated scheduled operational tours. (reference page 31: "SUBMARINE: a guided tour inside a nuclear warship", by Tom Clancy

You can look at these photos at the following web address:

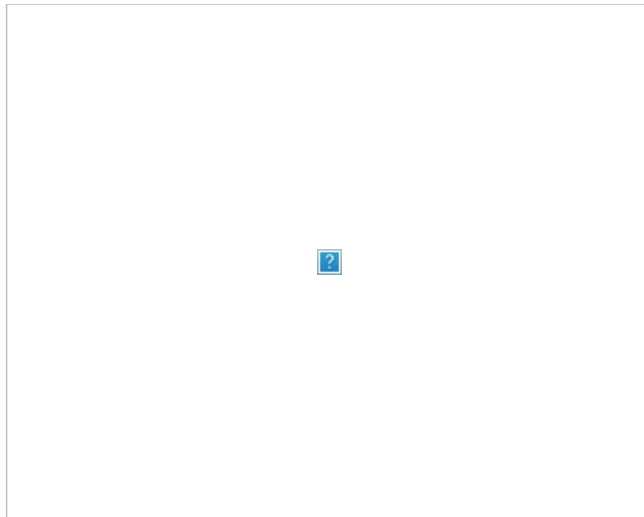

www.geocities.com/Pentagon/6153/edison.htm

CDR Dedrick

(man on top of the sail)

This picture was taken in the Wardroom of USS Edison. I've been to sea on this sub, and have eaten here. (note picture of Thomas A. Edison, scientist, on bulkhead to the right of the face of CDR Dedrick). CDR Dedrick is now deceased.

USS Thomas A. Edison - SSBN 610

Series 681 .10 cent note

Bureau of Engraving & Printing Artists / Engraving Proof

(compare with color photo - notice sailors on deck and land were removed, but seen in above color photo)

President John F. Kennedy on board USS Thomas Edison - 14 April 1962

This from Senior Chief Geng:

"CDR Dedrick was my first skipper, and what a fine Commander he was. We all thought the world of him. In fact we called ourselves "Dedricks Tasmanian Devils". When we came back from patrol, we had a large canvas banner with the cartoon character of the Tasmanian Devil tied onto the sail."

EDITORIAL

Another fine day in the history of MPC Gram! We are trying out embedded images in the text of the feature. Please note: Some Gram recipients may not be able to view these pictures in text, therefore the link to the web space where the pictures are stored is furnished above. Those of you who were able to see the pictures embedded, I would like to know how they came out as I had to resize the images slightly to save on file space.

I know AOL users will be able to see these pictures embedded, but I don't know how many other ISP's support embedded images. As with this gram, if successful, we will continue to embed images and list the URL to view the images directly. And on a personal note, and being real keen on submarines, I found the above article really interesting. Thanks David!

Now, in response to my slip up on Gram 591, and Joe Bolings letter concerning such, Ed Beaman was gracious enough to locate the following in MPC Gram archives for me:

"As with the discussion above, I (Fred) will fill in most of the other series as we come to them, but since we have some series specialists, I ask that they report on their respective series when the time comes. Specifically:
Series 472 MPCKid
Series 481 MPCSKI
Series 641 David Seeyle (this was changed to Phil Goldstein a day after publication)
Series 651 Marv Mericle
Series 691 and 701 Marcus Turner

I am sure that everyone will agree that we look forward to your comments on these respective series. If you want my commentary/consultation before publication, get the articles done early and send them!" Fred

Now, I have cordially invited Mike Cummings to write a few word on Series 611 which is coming up, as he is fond of the Series 611 $5 note.. I only hope he can find time. Series 661, 681, and 692 are currently unassigned. I know Fred can pick up on one, anyone care to take one on?

Recent Finds in my Stacks, Part 1
by Howard A. Daniel III

I recently bought two large fireproof safes and am sorting down and placing hundreds of pieces in holders before stuffing them in the safe. Later, I will start sorting them down to find the duplicates and others I need to trade and sell so everything will fit in the safes. Some of the pieces I have recently rediscovered that might be of interest to you are;

Burma
10C Block BH Pick-11a Cutting error with wide paper at top and "Best Wishes Nov 20-44 Joe" written on the face.
10R Block D67 Serial 091533 with "Military Administration Of Burma Legal Tender In Burma Only" overprint.

China
1CGU Block BC Serial 682063 Signature 7 Pick-325d Some of this series was used as Mil Curr in NVN above 16th parallel while taking the Japanese surrender after WWII.

Philippines
10P Block 6 Serial 1011011 Pick-111a

Thailand
1B Block 58 Serial 23175 Pick-54a Signature 20
1B 15 February 1943 Lottery Ticket

United States
10C Block/Serial D04213363D Position 23 Series 481 Pick-M23 Cutting error with wide paper at bottom.

The rest in this week's finds were all non-military and not of interest to most Gramsters. Remember, the above are not for sale and are just presented here for anyone's research/knowledge.

FEATURED ARTICLE

The BROWN Malaya $10 dated 1st July 1941.

by Mel Steinberg

BROWN $10:

It was during the Singapore Coin Show in March 2002 that it was first discovered. A local part time dealer, Mr. Lee, bought a collection of Malaya bank notes from a member of the public at the show. He mistakenly thought that the BROWN $10 was a below average specimen of the purple $10 of 1940. However, he later realized that it was brown and dated 1941. Mr. Joseph Pohof, United Numismatic Centre bought it for resale and a few days later I was the excited new owner of the note.

When was it actually issued? The archives of Waterlow and Sons were destroyed by fire during WW2 and the Board of Commissioners of Currency Malaya had been disbanded after Malaysia and Singapore attained independence from British rule. If another BROWN $10 does not surface and no confirmations can be made from the printers or issuers, I would like to speculate on what actually occurred.

Facts Known:

The Board of Commissioners of Currency Malaya commissioned Waterlow and Sons to design and print a new set of bank notes with the portrait of King George VI, for use in the Straits Settlements and Malaya States. A set of proofs, printed in bank note paper and dated 1st January 1939 were prepared. The proofs were $1 in Green, $5 in Blue and $10 in Purple. The Proofs were accepted and the bank notes were printed with the 1st January 1940 date. The $10 were shipped to Malaya and issued to the general public.

The $1 and $5 bank notes were being shipped separately to British Malaya by the merchantman Automedon but were lost on 11 November 1940 to the German raider Atlantis in the Indian Ocean. The bank notes were sent to Japan. Subsequently, a few bank notes were apparently issued by the Japanese during their occupation of Malaya. In 1945, after the surrender of the Japanese and the return of the British, the bank notes issued had the same design but the colours assigned had been changed. The $1 had been changed to from GREEN to BLUE, the $5 from BLUE to GREEN and the $10 from PURPLE to RED. The bank notes were dated 1st July 1941. Observations on the $10 issues:

Serial numbers:

PURPLE	A/1	000001	to	A/82	077559
BROWN	A/84	064729	to	A/84	064729
RED	B/70	059656

All serial numbers start with zero, therefore only 100,000 per block letter/number.

RED $10:

None has been sighted with block letter CEA¹ according to Joseph Poh. My Submission: Here is a scenario that probably took place in the 12 months prior to the British surrender of Singapore on 15th February 1942. In 1941 there was a need for more $10 bank notes, but after the $1 GREEN and $5 BLUE were lost to the Germans in November 1940, contingency plans for additional security had to be made, in case another shipment of bank notes was to be captured. As a result, the PURPLE $10 was discontinued and replaced by the BROWN issue, which was printed in England, and the bank notes shipped to Malaya and ISSUED BEFORE the Japanese invasion. Obviously, not many got into the hands of the general public.

The Japanese invaded Malaya on 7th December 1941 and when it was apparent that the surrender was inevitable, an order was made to destroy all stocks of bank notes in the vaults of the BCCM. Could it be issued after the war? Unlikely, as it is a well known fact that the RED $10 was the issue. Could the colour been chemically changed from RED to BROWN? Unlikely, as there has been no sightings of a block letter CEA¹ specimen. Could the colour been chemically changed from PURPLE to BROWN.

Unlikely, but if so, then we will have the discovery of a PURPLE $10 dated 1st July 1941.

EDITORIAL

Yesterday's Gram, by the way, was another milestone. Not only did we have embedded pictures, but we published our 600th Gram. Can you believe 600 of these things? (Ed Beaman, I feel sorry for you now!) I wonder how many words those 600 Grams add up to... How many hours of work went into them. I certainly know the frustration that went into the past few that I have done, so I can just think of what Fred went through. I remember the first Gram. I also remember thinking, it'll never last... Too much work, not enough time.... I'm glad I was wrong.

Congratulations to all of us who have kept this monster alive and growing for the past 600 issues. Here's to another 600!

Here's your chance at 24 hours of fame: I need an article for tomorrows Gram - I'm all tapped out. Ed.

Fred/Phil:
Recently in the Gram there was a question about V-Mail. My father's brother served in the Marines in WWII. (He was KIA during the landing on Iwo Jima.) In his effects are numerous V-Mail letters sent to him by his family and friends. His return mail was not sent via V-Mail. V-Mail consisted of a one-page letter that also folded into its own envelope. The letters have detailed instructions on them. The following text is from the letter:

V-Mail Service provides the most expeditious dispatch and reduces the weight of mail to and from personnel of our Armed Forces outside the continental United States. When addressed to points where micro-film equipment is operated, a miniature photographic negative of the message will be made and sent by the most expeditious transportation available for reproduction and delivery. The original message will be destroyed after the reproduction has been delivered. Messages addressed to or from points where micro-film equipment is not operated will be transmitted by the most expeditious means available.

INSTRUCTIONS

- (1) Write the entire message plainly on the other side within marginal lines.
- (2) PRINT the name and address in the two panels provided. Addresses to members of the Armed Forces should include rank or rating of the addressee, unit to which attached, and APO or Naval address.
- (3) Fold, seal, and deposit in any post office letter drop or street letter box.
- (4) Enclosures must not be placed in the envelope and a separate V-Mail letter must be sent if you desire to write more than one sheet.
- (5) V-Mail letter may be sent free of postage by members of the Armed Forces. When sent by others postage must be prepaid at domestic rates (3c ordinary mail, 6c if air mail is desired).

I trust that this information will be helpful.

FEATURED ARTICLE

A New Wrinkle in Danish Military Currency

By Warner Talso

I say "new" advisedly. This is new to me and I can find no mention in S/B. It turns out that the Danish personnel aboard the hospital ship "Jutlandia"; serving during the Korean Conflict has their own specially printed paper currency in Danish Kronor. It seems to me this satisfies the definition of military currency. It was a special issue for a United Nations force serving in a combat zone. Denominations were 5 Øre, 10 Øre, 25 Øre, 1 Krone, 5 Kroner, 10 Kroner, and 50 Kroner.

See a sample 5 Kr note at www.papermoneyworld.net/Jutlandia 5 Kr.jpg

The Jutlandia was built as a combined cargo and passenger ship in Denmark in 1934 for The East Asiatic Company Ltd. During WW II, she was "trapped" in Danish waters and had to be laid up. She was not seized by the German occupation forces, since they did not have the diesel oil needed to sail it. The vessel was rebuilt after the war and resumed normal civil service, sailing from Denmark to the Far East and the USA.

After the North Korean attack on South Korea on 25Jun50, Denmark offered the United Nations assistance and the UN accepted a fully equipped Danish Hospital Ship. After some quick investigations, the Danes decided that the M/S Jutlandia was the most suitable ship available in a hurry. The ship was on its way to New York when this decision was made. There had been no time to inform the master, so he was rather surprised when arriving to New York seeing the quay full of photographers and journalists who had already got the news directly from the UN. The ship was rushed home and all possible staff worked day and night in November and December 1950 to transform it into a hospital ship.

On 23Jan51, they ran up the flags of UN, Denmark, and the Red Cross -- the three flags the ship was to fly for nearly three years. It was a civil ship run by the Danish Foreign Ministry under the UN command and sailing under the Red Cross. She left Denmark from the port of Copenhagen, where the Jutlandia Memorial, made in granite from South Korean mountains and supported by Korea's veterans, is now placed. The hospital, as well as the crew, were voluntary Danish personnel. See a picture of the ship at:

The ship was then probably the most modern hospital in Denmark and had wards with a total of 356 hospital beds (during normal service), 4 operating rooms, X-ray-, eye-, and dental clinics, laboratories, pharmacy and other specialized departments. The hospital had a staff of 91 persons: professors, doctors, specialists, nurses and assistants. The ship's crew totaled 97.

After arriving in Korea, Jutlandia was first stationed in Pusan as an evacuation hospital. In 1952, after the ship was fitted with a helicopter deck aft, it was transferred to the Bay of Inchon where it had to anchor in the roads with two American hospital ships. As the first allied hospital unit serving in Korea, the hospital treated 4,981 patients, mostly severely wounded soldiers from 24 different nations. Further, about 6,000-7,000 civilian Koreans were treated onboard Jutlandia or by the Danish hospital staff in most often very primitive wards and first aid stations ashore.

Sometime after the cease-fire on 27Jul53, Jutlandia returned home, filled with wounded soldiers, mostly Europeans. But before the ship left Korean waters, all the hospital equipment that could be spared was left behind as well as some doctors. The same was the case with the Norwegian MASH and the Swedish hospital department from Pusan. With this very much-needed help, the ground was laid for "The Scandinavian Educational Hospital" in Seoul, later to be taken over completely by Korea as the National Medical Center, NMC.

The 5 Kr note illustration is courtesy of Steen Hartmann, who has a very interesting web site on Danish history, to include military numismatics, can be visited at:

<http://www.residence.dk/>

In addition to the Jutlandia, there were three U.S. hospital ships: the USS Haven, USS Repose, and USS Consolation. According to a nurse on the Consolation, they used U.S. currency on board the ship and "little pieces of paper" called scrip (I assume she meant MPC), when they went ashore. Another gentleman says: "Thank you for your inquiry about pay on Hospital Ships. All hospital ships old and current have a disbursing officer on board and they pay the crew and patients military pay. While we were in Korea during the war we were paid in Scrip. Back in the 1950's $1.00 was worth 380 yen and the prices were cheap. The hospital ships had a geedunk stand that sold, candy, cigarettes, etc and we paid in scrip. The new hospital ships have a regular PX on board with many items for sale including the cigarettes and candy and pipe tobacco. I hope this answers your question." He goes on to say that he has no scrip left because he spent it on R&R in Japan. This suggests the US ships were using MPC Series 481.

It would be interesting to learn more about this niche for military numismatics

EDITORIAL

Hello All! A very interesting article indeed - kudos to Warner for that article. I remember when I bought my first piece of Jutlandia Hospital Ship Money: a 25 Ore note from a Canadian dealer for $5 US. Then I found a complete set of same for $49 from same dealer. From time to time this firm offers complete sets for sale. I do believe Dave Seelye has a set in stock as well.

On a Gram operations note: In the future, I would appreciate all Gram recipients to address personal mail & correspondence to Fred directly to him at FredSchwan@yahoo.com or fred@papermoneyworld.net.

Any Gram related mail, Advertisements, Wanted Ads, Features, Letters, whatever, please continue to send to: mpcgram@yahoo.com, or iwantmympc@aol.com.

This is being done to both simplify matters do I don't delete any of Fred's email by mistake, and so Fred's personal mail, stays personal.

MAIL CALL

Hi!

I have been collecting and dealing in coins, paper money, stamps, and related items 40 years. Using "black lights" and "UV lights" one can find "stamps" as well as "paper money" come in "experimental" as well as just a variety of papers. When using a "Black Light" on my MPC, I noticed that series #641 fractionals as well as "ALL OF" series #651 and some of the fractionals of series #692 come on "High Bright Paper!" In stamps, this can change the value and is considered a different variety. I also have a "lone" series #461 $10, 'not from the pack of 100 that was broken up in the 70-80's', that exhibits this quality! I have about 5-20 of most all notes in CU, that I used to compare, except the rarer issues. I noticed this paper variety on as many as half the notes in a given group from series #641 fractionals and a few of #692 fractionals I can't explain why I only have seen one "lone series #461 $10" on this "high bright paper" as no other notes exhibit this quality until the 600 series. Does anyone else collect or study these varieties?

Guy Araby!

FEATURED ARTICLE

More Personal Reminiscences

by Joe Boling

Going back to the thread I was on two weeks ago, in January 1969 I arrived back in the States from VN, assigned to the Adjutant General's school at Ft. Ben Harrison, Indiana. Here began my involvement with things like coin clubs and shows. I found that there was a show within 25 miles of Indianapolis almost every weekend of the year, and I began putting all my loose change aside every night so that on the weekend I would have some money to spend at a show. Don Foltz, the IBNS auctioneer, lived in Indy. I don't remember how I met him, but I did, and he recruited me to join the society in early 1970 (my original number was 808, one of those "8" events that kept me associated with the number). Several local coin dealers had paper money junk boxes (that was the only way they sold world paper--they did not have notes in holders or individually priced). They were more than happy to give a fledgling collector breaks on the already low prices for those notes. I began to accumulate notes of countries I had never lived in, as well as searching out notes to fill out the series I was already collecting. There were still no catalogs available for world notes, except for the very early military books from Toy and Toy/Meyer.

Speaking of T/M reminds me that I had bought my first notes of the Japanese puppet banks at a show in Houston on my way to VN. A collector (probably a vet) was trying to sell them to dealers there, but the pieces were in tatters, and he could find no buyers. I took them (and learned a lesson in show etiquette, as the security guard chased us out of the hall for trading on the floor). At that same show (after I came back in with my new rags stashed away), I was looking for MPC in the stock of the Roses. Mr. Rose (Harvey? I don't remember their names now) got irritated because he judged that I was not a serious buyer, and he declined to show me any more notes. (Remember my experience with Almanzar eight years later?) I don't think I bought anything from the Roses that day (or perhaps ever, after that unpleasant experience).

Back to Indy. When my household goods were delivered, one carton was missing--the one with my five Lighthouse binders of notes that I had bought in Germany, that had been with my wife while I was in VN (the notes I had bought in VN were already with me in Indy). I figured that I had been ripped off by a warehouseman in Houston. About two weeks later, I got a call at work from my wife: the van driver had gotten out to Kansas or Nebraska and found a carton in the van that did not belong to that family. He realized it should have been left in Indy, and he had dropped it off that day as he went back through heading east. Sure enough, it was my collection, completely unmolested. Happy day!

There was a monthly club meeting in west Indy (in a union hall near the Speedway). I remember Don Foltz finding a princess one-yen note there one night; I was green. Steve Sawyer bought a 179x US dollar for under $200 in an auction on another night (closer to $100, as I recall). It was a very nice dollar--the grade was high enough that we were examining the adjustment marks on it. I don't know if Steve is a gramster--I suspect not. Don died in 1996.

I was not yet building my "biographical collection," but I did find a nice UNC 1929-I $10 Indianapolis national in a local shop, and bought it. Speaking of the biographical collection, in searching for data on the Indy national, I stumbled over the record for the Hawaii $1 that I received from my step-grandfather, Harvey Holdeman, about 1948 (or 1953--he may have only showed it to me in 1948). He had carried it for years, and the condition shows it--poor. It's a completely uncollectible note, and has no graffiti tying it to Granddad, but I'll never get rid of it.

The department of the AG school where I worked was responsible for the Army's postal training; there was a mock APO set up for that purpose. The mock APO used the Gates-Lord Hall training money that has been mentioned in previous grams. They did not use the training MPC because APO clerks only deal with one kind of currency at a time, so there was no need to have both "green" and MPC in their windows. Finance clerk training, in the Finance School and in another building from the APO, DID use multiple kinds of currency, but I can't say whether it was green/MPC/local, or simply green and local. Few finance clerks would ever have green and MPC in their tills, so there was little incentive to train with both kinds of currency at once.

Next week we'll turn to LOGEX money--I find no record of having discussed it in depth in a gram column, and the same department was responsible for the AG school's contingent to LOGEX each year.

EDITORIAL

Another day, another dollar. This Gram will be going out late, because I had to put in a few extra hours at work, and our beloved Webmaster had to go out before I got home and won't be home until midnight. It was actually prepared at 17:30 EST, but it wasn't sent from server until much later. So, it's a Night Owl Gram..

To Joe: Whatever you did worked.

For all future sales listings: after dicussing the subject with the publisher, all sales ads must be accompanied by a price. It would be prefered that the gram not be you used to solicit offers privately. Your cooperation is appreciated.

MAIL CALL

In response to Guy Araby's letter:

"I can't explain why I only have seen one "lone series #461 $10" on this "high bright paper" as no other notes exhibit this quality until the 600 series."

Some accidents of circulation can change the paper's reaction to UV light, such as being washed in certain detergents. What condition is the bright 461 $10 in? It could also be a counterfeit prepared on non-standard paper.
Joe

Phil,

Appreciate all your time and efforts dedicated to the gram. I enjoy your editorials as well as your articles. I particularly liked your article SHOW REPORT - WESTPMEX, NEW YORK (Gram #596) about how you bartered and received your items at a saving of 25%. I've always struggled with challenging a dealer on grading, choosing, most often, instead to simply pass on items priced too high. Hopefully your article will come to mind next time I'm faced with such a decision. It appears as though it worked out well for both seller and buyer and that's what it's all about.

Dick Freyser

Mr. Fred

I have generally been through the layout of the book but have not read the whole book yet. Here are my initial impressions:

- * Informative - the book is full of information, pictures, and articles. This alone makes it a must-have for all MPC collectors and currency collector as well as dealers.
- * Layout - logically
- * Cost - a bargain at the price of $50
- * Not available in the Omaha Public Library System - how can this be? I checked and the OPLS does not have our book. What's with Omaha?
- * Color - lack of color makes it less attractive, perhaps the next version we can have color picture of every note, regular and replacement, in full color.
- * Can use more information on series 651 and 701
- * No discussion on chits and/or tokens. My understanding is that chits and tokens were used in Vietnam war for cafeteria types of service (food, drink, smoke, and the likes) but can not be used as MPC for purchase of goods.
- * Page 185 discusses the use of MPC in M*A*S*H. The time era for this TV show was after the WWII. The MPC was Series 611 $1. Was it used in Korea at that time?
- * The price list is great to have, and the note area is a great idea, but I would not, absolutely not, write anything in this book. It must be kept GEM UNC all the time.

Thanks for allowing me to become a part (very small part) of the legendary book. I am taking another trip to the homeland this summer, yes, another trip. What can I do you there? Best regards,

Trung T. Nguyen, P.E.

Hello Nguyen,

Thank you very much for your comments on the book. I am humbled. I agree about your public library (and far too many others around the country). You can help fix this by visiting or calling the library and specifically recommending this book and WWII Remembered. Libraries like recommendations from local patrons. Thank you for your help with the book and the good comments.

Fred

The Narssarssuaq Canteen Tokens

by Flemming Hansen

At the CPMX Lyn Knight auction, Lot 624 consisted of 4 Greenlandic tokens, whose history, I'll share with you here.

Even before the US actively entered WWII, the Ministry of Defense (US) had considerations about the best way to defend North America, and how supplies the easiest way could be sent to Europe. Greenland was a big part of these considerations, as an enemy with a foothold in Greenland, would be dangerously close the North-American mainland.

So with DK permission, "The South Greenland Research-Expedition" started out from Boston on March 17, 1941. The purpose was to find land for bases and airfields. After some search, it was realized that the only suitable places, were on the plains of the big glaciers. In Julianehåb (today: Qaqortoq) the expedition was advised to check the most inner part of the Tunugdliarfik fjord, by Greenlanders called Narssarssuaq, which means - The big plain - It was decided to use this place as the primary airfield, and construction started in June 1941.

In the fall of 1942 the first planes landed there and in April 1943 it was militarily operational. The official name for the airfield was "U.S. Army Air Base Narssarssuaq"  a name that was never used, instead was used the codename "Blue-West One". This designation was "invented" by the construction company that built the airfield (and other military installations in Greenland, each having their code.) In the beginning these codes were unofficial construction codes, later they became more or less official.

 Spelling of Narssassuaq later changed from k to q at the end of the name. Spelling with q is the correct spelling today.

When ready for use in April 1943, there was a landing strip of 5000 feet covered with metal mats, plus two smaller landing strips, and a string of buildings with different purposes, administration, hospital, storage, barracks, fire brigade etc. so it could function as a little town. From April 1943 to the end of WWII, about 950 men were stationed here, and it did play an important role in the war. But also after the war as transit airfield for transports back to America. It was busy with this till 1955.

It also played a role in the Korean War, as wounded soldiers from Korea was hospitalized here in a special building little away from the airfield with a capacity of 1000 beds. This hospital functioned for three years. Now demolished. American involvement in Narssassuaq ended in 1958, mainly because most transatlantic flights could now be done nonstop. And further military activity was handled from Thule Air Base.

So from Danish side it was considered, what to do now? After long thoughts, it was decided to close the airfield, except for a metrological station, with a crew of 10. It was the disaster of the cargo and passenger ship "Hans Hedtoft" in January 1959 at Kap Farvel (Southern tip of Greenland), that caused the reopening of the airfield. It was decided to start an ice warning service, and this included planes that were stationed in Narssassuaq. The ice reconnaissance started on November 30, 1959.

In another way the airfield regained importance as transit for civilian passengers to Greenland cities. This traffic boomed with the decline of ocean steamers and the rise of air traffic. Specially after 1965 when Greenland Air started helicopter services to the cities along the coast, a passenger congestion occurred at the airfield. There were housing facilities for transit passengers run by the ministry of Greenland through "Den Kongelige Grønlandske Handel" (The Royal Greenland Trade). Eating took place in a different building some distance away. The Canteen tokens were used here. Handed out at the housing facility and used at the eating place, "kantinen", as mentioned on the token.

The Arctic Hotel company was founded on May 8, 1967. Among the shareholders were SAS and Greenland Air. Part of the hotel is the old American officers mess. Till 1974, the hotel was only open from June to September and ONLY for tourists. In the fall of 1973 the hotel company made an agreement with the ministry for Greenland, which meant that a string of services like providing food and housing quarters for TRANSIT PASSENGERS, providing food for the airfield staff etc., which till the had been done by the ministry itself, through the Royal Greenland Trade, was transferred to the hotel company. This meant the end of use of the tokens.

Another series of similar tokens were in use in Søndre Strømfjord airfield further up the coast.

EDITORIAL

A nice article if I may so so myself. I remember when I first obtained my set of Greenland Military tokens a couple of years ago at the WESTPMEX show. I already wrote about them a while back, but maybe I'll re-run my letter at a later date.

MAIL CALL

Hi Gramsters & Joe!

In response to your comment about the "lone #461 $10" "High Bright paper". That was the first thing I checked. As a collector - dealer 40 years, I can tell the difference. The note is a "gem CU" Serial #A20931511A" position #17. My comparison notes are from the "pack" of 100 (pos.#33's) broken up! I own 4 pieces Choice CU/ centering is slightly narrow on the bottem margin.

'All' of the $10 #461's show "RED SERIAL NUMBERS" under the black light. This is a anti-counterfeiting device as used intentionally. If I recall, in Fred's New Book, there are no known counterfeits that exhibit the "red characteristic".

Also, the note "smells nice and musky"!! The way all really new notes smell! Unless they were in a perfumed drawer. Then they smell nice! No trace of chemicals or bleaching! Also you can hold a note in the palm of your hand . The note will contract from the heat given off in you hand. The note will curl up fast if it is "fresh".

So Yes , the note is original. Also has minor die variations that I have been taking notes on also. There are many slight die variations in many of the series like in #481 and others I am studying! There are more to be broken down! Thanks for your comment Joe!

FEATURED ARTICLE

The Last Thurski of April
by Larry Smulczenski

After Fred and I left Ottawa, we decided to make a quick run down to the Strasburg Stock, Bond and Currency Show. We arrived there Friday night and had a good time chatting with some of the folks we say in the hotel lobby. The Lancaster Host Resort and Conference Center is really a very impressive high-class hotel for this size town. But it seemed to be doing a lot of business including a number of conventions and meetings while we were there. We found Leo May after he came back from having dinner in one of those great all you can eat Pennsylvania Dutch places and we spent the next couple hours talking notes with him.

We got to the show on Saturday morning and I was surprised that the show was not in the hotel, but outside and down the hill in a huge adjacent metal building. I didn't think that the lighting was too good, but there was plenty of room. Definitely not the close quarters of the Historic Old Strasburg Inn that we came to appreciate. Anyway, I found Daryl Spelbring who had a new group of POW chits that he recently acquired. He let me go through and copy all the serial numbers as data for the POW chit book that I am working on. I was able to purchase about a half a dozen chits that I didn't have. One of them was a One Dollar chit from Jerome, Arkansas. That's the first dollar chit I have found for my collection. I guess there weren't a lot of German POW's running around with dollar chits in their pockets, however you will remember that last week I wrote that some of the Canadian camps issued Five Dollar chits. Gary Maltese had reported to me that he had a dollar chit, so I knew that that they were out there, but it is great to find one for your self. Daryl had some great MPC replacement notes for sale also. Saw a few of them that had only four numbers in the serial number, the rest being zero's. One even was a three digit serial number, with the rest zero's. Those of you that like that kind of stuff need to give Daryl a call, he may still have them. The Saturday crowd was sparse and the dealers spent a lot of the day going through one another's stock. My May Banknote Reporter just came in and I see that this show is going back to the cozy confines of the Historic Old Strasburg Inn.

As we drove toward Port Clinton on Sunday, we decided to go a little out of the way and stop by Greenville. Pennsylvania and see if we could learn anything about Camp Reynolds where there was a POW camp in 1944-45. Russ Daisley of Greenville and I had been emailing one another about the camp for the last couple of months. Russ had bought something from me off eBay and when I saw his address I thought he lived in a town of Greensburg, which is close to where I grew up. He said it wasn't and then it struck me that Greenville was the home of Camp Reynolds. We had only uncovered the chits from this location a couple of years ago. Russ then told me that he had actually lived in quarters on Camp Reynolds.

We arrived in Greenville around noon and stopped in a quaint little old fashioned diner and had lunch. Great place, super meal and for little money. One of those places that you can only find off the beaten path. I called Russ to see if we could meet with him, but unfortunately he was out of town. His brother, Tom however agreed to show us around. Tom also was interested in military history and took us around town and showed us the remains of the old Camp. We first went to the local VFW where there was a map of the Camp so we got our bearings. We then went to the remains of the base and saw a few buildings that were still standing. We are pretty sure we saw the location of the POW Camp itself as the map showed it up from the railroad tracks. Those tracks still remain and some of the spurs lead up to warehouses that sure look like they can be traced back to W.W.II. A company by the name of Damascus Tube Division occupies these warehouses as well as some other buildings on the former Camp Reynolds. The old base theater is also occupied by Damascus Tube. Tom was the perfect host and kept pointing out areas that he used to play in during his youth while they lived on the Camp after the War. The local newspaper printed a 50th anniversary issue remembering Camp Reynolds on June 22, 1992. Russ got me a copy of this paper and sent it to me. It has some great information in it.

This was a great ending to my three plus week visit up-North as the following morning, I was on an airplane winging my way back down-South.

EDITORIAL

Good evening Mister and Misses MPC, and all the ships at sea: Ahh, to be retired and travel the world (or at least the U.S.!) in search of notes and other goodies to add to our collections. Maybe I'll be able to do same one day. As having read Ski's article above, I am glad to see the show return to Strasburg Inn. Having been there, and having other interests in the town of Strasburg, it is more convenient for myself and closer to the steam locomotives I also appreciate. As you can see below, the High-Brite paper debate continues... I wonder what the cause is: Manufacturer? Environmental? UV Wavelength? When you guys figure it out, let us know. Until tomorrow Gramsters...

FEATURED ARTICLE

Oral History Interview with Bernard Bernstein

July 23, 1975

by Richard D. McKinzie

submitted by Fred Schwan

Dan Bell and I were having discussions with two officers from the War Department. One of them was General Arthur Carter. Major General Arthur Carter, who was one of the fiscal chiefs at the Pentagon. We had just a few meetings with them on the currency and on the rate of exchange questions. The Treasury view was that we wanted to see the U.S. dollar exchanged for 75 French francs.

On Friday afternoon, October 9, 1942, I remember the occasion so vividly--the War Department officers were in Dan Bell's office and the four of us were having a discussion. Toward the end of the meeting, General Carter put a cable on the table and handed it to Under Secretary Bell, and said, "This is a cable from General Eisenhower."

Dan Bell read the cable aloud. The cable said General Eisenhower wanted to have a Treasury man on his staff to assist on financial matters in connection with the invasion of North Africa. Dan Bell told Carter he would have to take it up with the Secretary. They left and Dan and I were sitting there and I said that I felt I was the person to be sent in response to the cable, that I was younger (I was married at the time, but I was much younger than Dan Bell), and I knew the work and I had been in on these discussions.

He said he would have to talk to the Secretary. This was late afternoon on Friday. A little while after I came in the next morning to my office Dan Bell phoned me, said that he had discussed the cable with the Secretary, and the Secretary felt that he could not spare me and that he wanted me to remain at the Treasury. I told Dan that I thought that was the wrong decision; the country is at war and General Eisenhower is leading our first invasion and is absolutely entitled to the fullest cooperation of the Treasury and I thought I was qualified to represent the Treasury in this field in view of what I have been doing. I also told Bell I wanted an opportunity to talk with the Secretary.

Dan said he would tell the Secretary. About an hour later my telephone rang and when the Secretary is calling you, or the Secretary's operator is calling you, there are three rings and you know it's the Secretary, or the Secretary's operator. I picked up the phone and the Secretary's operator said that I was to go to the Secretary's office.

There was the Secretary alone in his office, standing behind his desk. He said that he just came back from taking a walk around the White House grounds and that he knew from Dan that I wanted an opportunity to express my views directly to the Secretary. So I said the Treasury of course wants to cooperate with General Eisenhower; this is a crucial moment in American history; I know the work of the Treasury in this field; and I've been working on it; I'm young enough to serve overseas, and I think you ought to designate me. I also said I'd be doing the work of the Treasury, because what we were talking about was Treasury work. The Secretary agreed that in a real sense I would be carrying on work I had been doing in the Treasury.

Secretary Morgenthau called the War Department and said that I was the Treasury man to join General Eisenhower's staff. At the Friday afternoon meeting there had been a little talk with General Carter as to whether the Treasury designee would go in civilian clothes or uniform. Carter said the War Department would like to have him in uniform as a lieutenant colonel but he would be a Treasury designee. On Monday morning, October 12, 1942, I turned up at the War Department. By about 5 p.m. I was processed through the War Department, possibly one of the fastest examples of being commissioned in the history of the War Department, sworn in, and handed orders. The orders said I was to leave for England to report to General Eisenhower.

I went back to the Treasury, I had a friend, one of my colleagues there, prepare a will for me, and I gave a power of attorney to my wife. We had one child and another child was on the way. I began finishing off my work at the Treasury. On Tuesday morning I finished off a lot of my work. Meanwhile my wife and Charles Kades who at that time was a captain and a close friend of ours, helped my wife in getting things for me. I don't know whether you know Lewis & Thomas Saltz in Washington, that was the famous men's haberdashery store. I showed up there around 11 a.m. to get my uniforms and overcoat. There was quite a scene in the store. Colonel Foley was over there, a couple other colleagues and my pregnant wife was in tears a little bit. When I used to run into the Saltz brothers for years thereafter they used to remind me of that scene. I had an appointment for 1 o'clock that day at Union Station to meet a Colonel Foster, who had been designated by General Carter to accompany me to New York and brief me a little bit. Colonel Foster had asked me the night before if we could fly up. I didn't tell him that I had never flown on a plane before. I was flying over to England-to Ireland and to England, but I thought that I'd rather have the trip to New York by train. So I said if he didn't mind, I'd find it more relaxing if we could have the discussion on the train. We took the 1 o'clock train, we were sitting in the dining car, opposite each other, at a table, and I said, "You know, this is quite an experience for me, I've never had any military training whatsoever, never ROTC of any form, I don't even know how to salute." So, he saluted me, in the dining car. He said, "Now, you salute me back." I saluted. He said, "Now you've had your basic training."

My wife followed me to New York with all of the uniforms that were being adjusted and fixed at Lewis & Thomas Saltz, and with all kinds of pills that I could take on this flight. I was going over in a seaplane from LaGuardia to Ireland. I had been told at the War Department that Ireland was a neutral country and you can't wear any military equipment through there, and if they see it they will confiscate it. I took the instructions seriously. I packed up all of my military gear and I wore a regular civilian suit, except I carried a paper bag with my helmet in it. The instructions I had said that I had to bring over a helmet. When I got up to the airline counter to weigh in my baggage I had $80 worth of excess baggage and I had to strip a lot of it out to get myself down to only $40 of excess baggage.

Well, we flew that night in what we'd consider now almost nothing of a plane. There were hardly any seats except some canvas seats. There was one woman on the plane, who was the head of the American Red Cross. She was a very distinguished lady. Some of the men threw their overcoats on the floor and she slept on the coats on the floor of the plane.

We arrived in Foynes, Ireland.... To Be Continued

Commentary by Fred:

Friday I will be spending the day at the Central States Numismatic Association Convention in Columbus, Ohio. I was going to spend the weekend, but had a conflict so am now limiting myself to just Friday.

In the days before paper money shows (gad), Central States was a major event for paper money folks. I expect to find quite a bit of paper, but mostly that will be because it is so much more common these days for dealers to carry paper money along with their coins.

I certainly expect to see John and Nancy Wilson there and possibly even some Festers. If you are a Fester and you will be there, be sure to have your challenge coin.

I hope to find some goodies to report and certainly will try to make a show report long before my column next Friday.

Say, Phil is certainly doing a great job. I am sure that most if not all of you will agree. Well, the best way to show your feelings is to send in some material: article, letter, question, material for sale, or some of each. Fill the MPCGram mail box with good stuff.

MAIL CALL

Mr. Fred

Let's get this straight now. In accordance to Fred Schwan's new Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates, (series 641) 5¢ costs $8 UNC and 10¢ costs $10 UNC.

I made an internet bid for an UNC 5¢ note and an UNC 10¢ note, using the price guide, for the last weekend auction in Ottumwa, Iowa. Some one outbidded me and bought the pieces for more than twice the Schwan's price guide.

Was that bizarre? Try this, folks. On April 23, 2002 Robert Reynolds, an auctioneer in Omaha had two lots of MPC on the block. Block one was four Alliance notes of no significance whatsoever, and the condition was G/VG at its best. The lot went for $8. The second lot consisted of a 641 5¢, 481 50¢, 481 10¢. The 641 was kind of OK, good the very most. The 481's were so beaten up one will have to wonder if they were used as a rifle cleaner before. The lot went for $10.

Several possibilities that can cause this type of high-price bidding can be thought of. The first possibility is that Fred's price guide is out of whack, or such bidders know more than Fred does.

It can't be, or we all are in trouble. The second possibility is that these guys have no idea that the new Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates is available, and they do not check things out on eBay. The third possibility is that the price for this stuff is going to explode, and only those bidders know so.

The bidders in these two auctions can do much, much better on one of those dealers whose web sites are advertised in Fred's book. One of the dealers is selling Series 641 5¢ GEM UNC for $9.

Any thought? Shall we all hang on to our collection and enjoy the millions soon coming our way? One thing we can do to make this happen: get the cash-rich Japanese addicted to MPC. Take cameras for example, last weekend in the Omaha's camera show, prices for all M3 Leica went off the roof, and any M3 in decent shape was bought shortly after the show started. I found the reason for it: at one empty table slept away a Japanese guy, probably due to jet lag. Next to him? Several M3 Leica cameras and lenses.

M*A*S*H & MPC

by David Klinger

episode: "Give Koreans a Chance"
by H. C. Lechuk

The episode I'm discussing revolves around scrip, the currency being used by the military at the time of the war.

From time to time, the military would issue new scrip at a one-to-one exchange rate for the old scrip. It did this to control the black market use of the scrip. Only army personnel could exchange old bills for the new ones. The MASH unit (the 4077th), like other army units would occasionally use scrip to pay for services rendered by the local Korean civilians. The Koreans could, in turn, use the scrip to buy needed supplies. The change to new scrip could really screw the Koreans up. They had been paid for their work in old US military scrip. But, they were not allowed to exchange it for the new scrip. That meant that any old scrip they were currently holding would become useless. It would be as if all the money in your wallet became suddenly worthless.

One of the doctors in the MASH unit, resident bad guy, Dr. Charles Winchester, realizes the predicament the Koreans are in. He hatches a plan to buy up the scrip from the local Korean village at ten to one. He'll give them one dollar of new scrip for each ten dollars of old scrip. Then, he'll rush back to camp in time to exchange the old scrip acquired from the Koreans at one to one. Charles will make a 900% profit. He strong-arms a local Korean tailor to help him execute the scheme.

The tailor complains about his plight to two other doctors, the resident good guys, Dr. 'Hawkeye' Pierce and Dr. B.J. Hunnicutt. Hawkeye and B.J. decide to concoct a scheme to teach Charles a lesson. In the meantime, Hawkeye has a problem of his own. One of the soldiers in his care, a Private Boone, will be bedridden for the next little while and needs Pierce to exchange his $400 in old scrip for him. Hawkeye agrees but the money, placed in a small sack, is stolen. Private Boone doesn't believe Hawkeye. He thinks the doctor is giving him a load of crap. Boone thinks Hawkeye is a thief.

The day of scrip exchange arrives. Charles drives his jeep to the nearby Korean village and collects the old scrip from the villagers giving them 10% in new scrip. On his way back to camp, he's stopped by some MPs (military police). The road back has been officially blocked. Actually, Pierce and Hunnicutt have gotten one of their MP buddies to fake this. Charles is forced to run back to camp on foot. He fails to make the deadline; the camp is now sealed off to all personnel and Charles is stuck outside. Just inside the camp, Pierce offers to bail Charles out of his predicament, but for a steep price. He'll give Charles the same deal that Charles gave the Koreans. Not wanting to be stuck with $400 of useless old scrip, Charles agrees to the exchange and receives $40 in new scrip from Pierce. Charles has been ripped off the same way that he ripped off the Koreans. Pierce, legally inside the camp, happily exchanges the old scrip for $400 in new, crisp bills.

Pierce gives the $400 in new scrip to Private Boone to replace the money that was stolen. Everyone's happy and bad boy Charles has been taught a lesson. At least that's how I thought the first time I saw this episode in its first run more than ten years ago. When I saw the same episode as a rerun just a few weeks back, I was disturbed at the fact that everything was wrapped up nicely except for the Koreans who had still been ripped off.

To make matters worse, the tag (this is the last two minutes or so of the show that come on after the last commercial) further resolved things while ignoring the Koreans. When Private Boone's $400 was initially stolen, Father Mulcahy, the unit's chaplain, publicly decried the crime over the public address system for the camp. He called for the criminal to repent and return the money, anonymously if he wished. Mulcahy's words apparently were very moving for he found a bag left at his doorstep with the $400, already exchanged into brand new scrip. Logically, to wrap up the story, since Private Boone had gotten the Korean villagers' money, these funds should be given back to the Korean villagers who would effectively get a one to one exchange. Instead, Hawkeye advises Father Mulcahy to keep the money for his own charitable works.

Lets look at the net result of this episode. The Korean villagers lose 90 percent of their spending power. Father Mulcahy gets $400 for his work. Pierce loses $40 but he feels great because he came through for Private Boone. Charles comes out even but he's been taught a lesson about trying to rip someone off. Because the good Father will most likely spend his money on Korean orphans, the whole turn of events can be viewed as a monetary exchange from one Korean group to another. However, control of funds now rests with an American priest. We don't want to rip off you good Koreans, but we'd better control the money and decide where to spend it. Is that the message? Perhaps I'm pushing the point a bit far. But why did the writers of this MASH episode choose to end it this way? It would have been logical to just return the money to the villagers. Moreover, why didn't Hawkeye and B.J. just offer to exchange things fairly for the villagers if they were so concerned about morality in the first place. It seems that the writers were concerned that the morality of the episode worked out in a pleasing fashion for the Americans. The Koreans, they're just props anyway. Ain't they? What do you think?

Post Script:

The episode referred to was aired in the sixth season of M*A*S*H on 8 Nov, 1977. The title of the episode was "Change Day". I watched it again today. At no time during the episode was the scrip referred to as Military Payment Certificates or MPC. Also the stage money looked like regular US currency and not MPC.

At the start of the episode COL Potter announced that "Tomorrow at 1600 Army Money will be exchanged - Red for Blue". The next day Radar announced "bring your cash before it turns to trash".

In a sub plot in this episode, CPL Klinger decides the best way to get out of Korea is to apply to West Point. By the way, I am not related!

EDITORIAL

Regardless as to the morality of the above episode (I saw it recently, it was aired locally here in NY about a month ago), my concerns are the following:

- 1) It's only TV, and although I'm sure there were civilians paid in MPC in Korea during that war a/k/a "police action", I'm quite sure some literary license was taken with the episode in question. This was not a documentary.
- 2) More importantly, (from an MPC obsessive/compulsives view): why wasn't the "scrip exchange" correctly called Conversion Day? Get it right!
- 3) Wasn't there a military regulation stipulating a soldier can't exchange more than approximately 150% his regular pay? (or something to this effect) If so, how can Charles, Hawkeye, or anyone for that matter exchange $400 at a single conversion? I know in that era, Military Doctors didn't make that much....
- 4) I believe M*A*S*H was classified as a sit-com. (situation comedy, for all you non-couch potatoes) Although it did carry more than a few anti-war overtones, it basically was a comedy..

Since when are comedies written to be accurate? Do we question ethics on Seinfeld? Proper & safe tool usage on Home Improvement? Or how about the cowboy riding at full gallop, firing 57 times from a six-shooter, and yet he hits every Indian, (sorry: Native American) on the plain... No... we laugh. That's entertainment. Get the drift? It's only TV.

I'm sorry if I took this point too far... But I think when the time is right, we all need to take a reality check.

MAIL CALL

Now, in response to yesterdays letter from Trung, I have to say this: A few years ago, while I was still assembling my 94 piece set, I made a mention to Fred during a telephone conversation, that I was losing the same notes repeatedly... I would bid the price listed in 3rd Edition, plus a few bucks for good measure. Apparently, and quite obviously, there was marked increase in demand for these particular notes, and bidding would go much higher than listed.

Fred replied, don't be such a slave to book prices... Bid with your heart, not with the book. At first I challenged this thinking, saying what purpose of a price guide, if nobody will follow it.. Then I came around.. Book pricing? Who needs it... Sure, it's nice to have a price in a guide as a SUGGESTION, but not as the 11th Commandment.

If you also remember, back before the 4th Edition was published, I put a letter in the Gram, and made phone calls to solicit input from an assortment of collectors who purchased notes in a variety of ranges... unc only, any condition, multiple printings, and everything in between and what have you, to help price notes for the new book. Nobody, and I mean not a single soul, ever wrote or called to say, "this price needs to be reviewed" "I disagree" etc. I heard that people disagreed, but never was a single note or price specifically brought up.

I even went as far to suggest NO prices be listed in the 4th Edition, for several reasons:

- 1) No prices meant the book would remain "accurate" longer - facts remain unchanged: printing quantities, SN ranges, etc...(with the exception of the replacement tally) - New discoveries wouldn't be listed in a book already published, price list or no price list...

2) No disputes over pricing: what I paid, what you paid, who overpaid, who got a good deal.... etc

3) A lot of effort (and proofreading!) saved.

4) As more notes appear of a tougher issue, the market (hopefully) would self regulate. The collector would bid what they thought was fair, and if outbid, oh well. No more, "did you see the price he paid for that note??? He's nuts!"

5) Fred could take out his T,O,U,G,H manifesto on "what is it worth?" (page 186)

6) No price fixing to keep the value up on a note thought to be worth more 'cause someone paid a lot for the note.

Fred disagreed by stating, reference books without price guides don't sell as good as books with price guides. I won't drag it out, by saying I disagree with that philosophy, but bottom line is Fred is author AND publisher. It's his book, and he gets to do it his way.

I'm sure, I'll get some disagreements over this letter. So, my parting words: where were you when the book was being written? Now there is nothing you can do, but wonder which prices should have been reviewed. Which are accurate, which are not. You snooze, you lose. No more complaining. I did enough of that.

Phil

Hi Gramsters & Dave!

First, the point of my original letter, was to bring to "light" (blacklight) :) that there are TWO (2) distinctive types of paper used on MPC!! I think this is an important variety! Proof is Series #651! ALL notes (series #651) in "my" collection, are on "High Bright Paper" I have 2 complete sets plus have dozen $5 & $10 to compare. This is the "Key!" for it proves there are two kinds of "paper!". ALSO I am reporting my "FINDS" They are:

that some of my series #641 fractionals and one $1 and some of the fractionals of Series #692 ALSO are in "High Bright Paper" And of the 600+ notes I examined "in CU only", only (1) Series #461 $10 glows like a "neon sign" or like a series #651 $10. It is probably a "rare run" perhaps an experimental "roll of paper" or an "agent" in the "bleaching process" in making the paper, that is sensitive to "Black light". So Gramsters "Look and SEE!!" Report "YOUR High Brights" I've reported MINE!! Just think of the added complexities of this impact to a "COMPLETE" set of MPC!! Multiple Printings!, Replacements! High Bright Paper mixed in to this! Turns a note to "Rare?" if it is the only one! Uncharted territory! Thanks Again
Guy!

FEATURED ARTICLE

International Use of Military Payment Certificates

by Fred Schwan

You have heard me carry on in the past that United States Military Payment Certificates (MPC) should be of greater interest to collectors from around the world because MPC was used in nineteen countries.

Actually, the number is probably slightly higher than nineteen, but it is considerable number in any event. I want to expand my argument. Information on the actual use by personnel from other countries has been expanding. In the late 1970s we were able to confirm the use of MPC by Korean and Thai forces serving in Vietnam. That line of thinking confirmed that Australian and New Zealand forces in Vietnam also used MPC. In the case of the Thai and Korean forces, we now know that they used a system of coupons in addition to the MPC so their use is documented by numismatic evidence. We are still looking for some sort of numismatic relic for the Australians and New Zealanders. A few months ago Phil Goldstein confirmed and reported in MPCGram (free subscription MPCGram@papermoneyworld.net) that Canadian forces serving in Germany used MPC! Possibly that should have been an obvious assumption, it was not, but it was a wonderful bit of information.

That brought up the tantalizing question. Did Canadian and other forces use MPC in Korea during the war? Well, we can now confirm that Canadians DID use MPC in Korea. While that is wonderful information, it of course brings up the greater question of use by other United Nations forces. I will tell you right now, I do not know the answer! In one way or another more than twenty countries sent personnel to Korea. A list of participants appears in the accompanying table. The table also shows the number of personnel who served

It is likely that none of the countries paid their forces in Korean won. There are three other possibilities

- 1) paid in home currency,
- 2) paid in US MPC,
- 3) paid in a different military money.

The most interesting is the possibility that some other military money was used. During this period, Belgian and the Netherlands issued military money. These two issues (Armee Belge, and Ministerie Van Oorlog) have always been attributed to use in Germany. While it is likely that they were used there, it is also possible that these issues were used for pay in Korea.

Of course the biggest user of military money in Germany during this time other than the United States was the United Kingdom. UK forces used British Armed Forces Special Vouchers (BAFSV) in Germany, Austria, France, the Netherlands, Denmark, and Italy as well as Japan in a limited use and later in Egypt. Is it possible that BAFSV were used in Korea? British Armed Forces Special Vouchers by Theo van Elmpt is a classic and wonderful book. It is possibly the most detailed treatment of any paper money issue. It gives not a clue of BAFSV use in Korea. While it is still possible that BAFSV were used in Korea and van Elmpt did not have any information, I doubt it.

Until I thought of the following consideration, it was my guess that all of the forces from all (or most) of the countries were paid in MPC. In fact I had written that conclusion here. Then it occurred to me that in some of these cases, MPC was being used in the home country by the US forces serving there (see chart)! This seems to make it unlikely that MPC was used to pay Belgian, French, Greek, Dutch, English, and Filipino forces.

This conclusion is by no means certain, it is still possible that MPC was used by all of these forces, but more information is needed. Heck, I think that we must clarify it on a country by country basis. Of course that is the point of this article. We want and need confirmation of how the troops were paid in Korea for all of these countries.

Of course, no matter what the answer is, we will be greedy and want to find numismatic evidence of the use. To me this is an exciting area of research. Among other things it has the potential of introducing more collectors around the world to the wonderful world of MPC. With respect to a country's numismatic history, it is one thing having a foreign country use a limited currency within its own community and quite another to have a country actually paying its own soldiers' in that same. This was a wonderfully complex question to ponder; much more so than it seemed when I first started thinking about it.

SHOW REPORT

Central States Show Report

by Fred Schwan

The drive down with Larry Falater was pleasant as we engaged in the normal collector chat that diverts all attention and we paid the price with some unexpected, unintended, and unnecessary detours. Larry does not collect MPC or related materials (yet), but he is always polite and listens to the latest stories about developments and adventures.

Visits

Festers George Fitz, Marv Mericle, Marcus? I only saw two Festers at the event, George Fitzgerald and Marv Mericle. Both were extremely busy it seemed. George was helping someone at a table and was running all over the bourse floor working on deals of some kind. Marv is the new vice president of Central States so he was busy but mostly it was with politics I think. He celebrated his new office with a spiffy new pair of running shoes to go with his distinctive CSNS jacket. Neither of these guys seemed to have done much shopping at the event so I hoped to make up for their negligence. Unfortunately, they both had their challenge coins. Drat.

Other things Central States is one of the premier organizations for supporting numismatic exhibiting and there was a very strong slate of exhibits in Columbus. Every year when I do not exhibit at Central States, I vow that I will the next year. There were a number of exhibits of interest to Gramsters. Both Marv and Marcus Turner had their standard exhibits. Marv is accustomed to lavish praise for his MPC exhibit and it is wonderful. I left some saliva on the cases myself.

Marcus's exhibit is less lavish, but of particular interest to me. It is on the Edmund DuLac Free French issues for French Equatorial Africa. He focuses in on the 1000 franc phoenix rising note. This is a great note and a good exhibit. I have seen it before and was pleased to see that Marcus has upgraded the exhibit some. Indeed, it is now harder for me to even have some suggestions, but I will come up with some somehow! I never saw Marcus! I wonder if he did some heavy traveling and was not even there on Friday or possibly he got Marv to put the exhibit in for him. That is probably the answer. We should look forward to a report on the exhibit competition exhibit from Marcus among the other things that he reports.

Finds

There was a lot of MPC on the floor, well, in the display cases, but it was spread over the entire bourse floor. I spent the longest time looking at Tom Denly's large MPC inventory and exchanging stories with him, all of which was quite pleasant. I bought two minor replacements from him that I liked. One fit in my multi replacement collection, the other I just liked. He had another replacement that I really liked that was a significant upgrade for my replacement collection, but unfortunately, he had it priced correctly and I let it go, at least for the time being. Of course, it is probable that while I procrastinate on making a decision to buy it, someone else will and then I will really be upset. Two of the pieces that I liked the most were "funny" serial numbers. The one that I bought had six zeros! Unfortunately, they were not consecutive. Tom had picked this out as an interesting number and marked it as such. He mentioned it at about the same moment that I found it in his notes. It was modestly priced so I bought it.

The other "funny" number fell into about the same category. It was a note with serial number ending in 4611—two series numbers in three digits. If it had been a series 461 or 611, I would have been forced to buy it, but since it was not and it was not extremely cheap (or underpriced), I let it go for the next number freak. Lowell Horwedell had a nice group of MPC and a replacement that I thought at first was another for my multi replacement collection, but it was not. Lowell said that he wanted to attend the Fest this year, but that he had a conflict and will attempt to attend next year!

I picked up a lead on locating an Armed Forces Leave Bond that I will pursue on Monday. You can be sure that I will keep everyone informed on that.

EDITORIAL

There's a lot of data in the above feature article... Enough, that I thought it worthy to print out a copy and keep in the Catalog. Peculiar, how MPC Collectors are a small close knit group (compared to other areas of paper money) but yet in reality, has such widespread usage...19+ countries, plus ships, etc... I suppose the fact that only military personnel utilized it, it's knowledge by the general population went relatively unnoticed.

Please keep in mind the deadline of May 15, is rapidly approaching for the Scholarship and donations for this year. Please contact Marcus Turner if you have not already.

MAIL CALL

After reading the upcoming CAA auction list posted here yesterday, it struck me that a prophecy came true. I seem to recall a young, well established collector, with a very opinionated big mouth (ahem) saying for some time, that serial number data on the Series 651 fractionals supported the conclusion that more were out there aside from the "75" or so sets already known. After being hotly contested, disputed and told several times that "75" was all there was, we now have 111 (that's right: one hundred and eleven) Series 651 .50 cent fractional notes "magically" appear from nowhere all at once. I applaud whomever released these 111 notes at once, whether by choice or by lack of insight, as this action will avoid the suspicion, rumors and scuttlebutt of their existence, unlike the way the previous notes were released.

I now ask: Anyone care to revise their thinking yet? I just know someone out there, feeling a little stung by being wrong will now say, "oh, just the 50 cent notes won't make a difference or affect 4 note set prices." Perhaps. Now granted, all that remains to be seen is the other fractional denominations be dumped on the market. But I think I'm pretty confident that now these 111 show up, others will follow sooner or later, and I sure hope those of you who were led to believe there weren't anymore than the "75" out there, will opened both eyes and use their better judgment. I may be young, opinionated, even short tempered, but someone upstairs gave me a brain, and I intend to keep on using it. Can't help but to say, I told ya so.

OUTSTANDING job with the gram! I think we all appreciate the effort you have put into things recently. I look forward to more. I too will be attending the Central States show in Columbus this weekend, however will be there on Saturday (maybe Sunday). I spoke this morning with Marv Mericle (CSNS Vice President). It sounds like the show is going well. Both John & Nancy Wilson and Ed Rochette are reported as attending. He reported that there are over 150 cases in the exhibit area. It should be great. Unfortunately my adventures in the Netherlands have left me penniless... I wonder if anyone at the show takes MFC???

Hi Gramsters & Dave!

First, the point of my original letter, was to bring to "light" (blacklight) :) that there are TWO (2) distinctive types of paper used on MPC!! I think this is an important variety! Proof is Series #651! ALL notes (series #651) in "my" collection, are on "High Bright Paper" I have 2 complete sets plus have dozen $5 & $10 to compare. This is the "Key!" for it proves there are two kinds of "paper!". ALSO I am reporting my "FINDS" They are: that some of my series #641 fractionals and one $1 and some of the fractionals of Series #692 ALSO are in "High Bright Paper" And of the 600+ notes I examined "in CU only", only (1) Series #461 $10 glows like a "neon sign" or like a series #651 $10. It is probably a "rare run" perhaps an experimental "roll of paper" or an "agent" in the "bleaching process" in making the paper, that is sensitive to "Black light". So Gramsters "Look and SEE!!" Report "YOUR High Brights" I've reported MINE!! Just think of the added complexities of this impact to a "COMPLETE" set of MPC!! Multiple Printings!, Replacements! High Bright Paper mixed in to this! Turns a note to "Rare?" if it is the only one! Uncharted territory! Thanks Again

Guy!

The sale of MPC in the upcoming Currency Auctions of America-Heritage Spring 2002 Sale to be held on May 17-18 at the Chicago Invitational Paper Money Show is noted.

111 pieces of 651-50c notes? Ye gads! Whoever buys them, let me know if there are any position 8 pieces (of course, if they are consecutive, they will all be from a single position).

Joe

Central States Show

by Marcus Turner

It looks like I arrived at the show just in time to miss Fred. My experience was limited to Saturday only due to that little thing called work. This was my first "road-trip experience" at the Central States Show. In years past I had managed to catch the show when it was held in Indianapolis (probably twice in the last 15 years or so). I would have liked to exhibit last year but the show was in Indianapolis at the same time I was at the show in the Netherlands. To keep with tradition, this year, I went with my Dad, and to start a new tradition my 6-year old daughter Katie also made the trek. It was busy from the minute we hit the door. My daughter was anxious to get started on the treasure hunt that they had set up for the kids. I am accustomed to the YN auction concept, so the treasure hunt activity for kids was a different experience. I actually enjoyed it and my daughter learned a lot. They even included questions on paper money!

You could tell that Fred had been at the show the day before, because all of the good MPC had been sold. I was however able to find plenty of Gramsters. I immediately made a bee-line for Marv Mericle. He did me a HUGE favor in setting up my exhibit. Once again, having to hold down a job sure puts a hamper attending and exhibiting at shows! Thanks for getting me set up Marv! He was easy to spot in the crowd given that all of the CSNS officers/governors wear gold jackets. Marv had two noncompetitive exhibits set up. One was his COMPLETE exhibit of all CHOICE CU MPC. It is a spectacular exhibit. His second was entitled "The 41 Cent Tour" which was an explanation of the history of our pocket change. Both were very well done. It was also great to visit with John & Nancy Wilson. I recognized their exhibit of Bulgarian Proof notes which was also in category. Other "Gramsters" in attendance were George Fitzgerald, Lowell Horwedell, Tom Denly, Tim Kyzivat and Wendell Wolka.

As Fred mentioned, I did have my exhibit of French Equatorial Africa 1000 Franc Notes at the show. This was by far the best exhibiting (and most competitive) that I have seen anywhere to date! I managed to take second place, while Wendell took first place in the Paper Money Category. Wendell had an absolutely spectacular exhibit of obsolete Ohio banknotes. He was clearly my personal favorite to take best of show honors. Since I did not stay until Sunday morning, I do not know who won that award. Perhaps Marv Mericle will give us a follow up on the Sunday morning awards breakfast and the remainder of the show. I was also pleased to find that there were a couple of individuals interested in applying for a scholarship to the Military Money Seminar this June (SHAMELESS PLUG: PLEASE GET YOUR APPLICATIONS IN BY MAY 15TH).

Overall the show was OUTSTANDING. Hats off to CSNS President Ray Lockwood, Vice President Marv Mericle, Exhibit Chairman Fran Lockwood, and the rest of the CSNS leadership for putting on such a great show!

Marcus was kind enough to send an updated list of donors to the scholarship. Are you on it? If not...WHY NOT? Deadline is rapidly approaching. I think everyone who has taken the time and donated to the scholarship so far deserves a big thank you! The Fest Auction was comprised of a lot of donations, and really helped boost up the scholarship fund.

To John and Nancy Wilson: Do you have a show schedule for gram yet? It's looking a little sparse.. shows in 2002 are good enough for now. I'll start listing 2003 shows around September.

Doug,

Several grams ago, there was a link to the web site to receive a certificate from U.S. Gov. for Cold War service. Of course, I lost it during some computer problems I was having.

Do you still have record of this, and if so, could you please run it in the gram one more time? Thanks,
Jack Hunter

Dear fellow gramsters,
The quality of any price guide or catalog is a direct reflection of the current contributors and the market analyst/editor. Getting everyone "in the know" in any particular series to contribute additional information/ pricing suggestions has always been an ongoing challenge. Any criticism received after a price guide's release should be taken as constructive criticism and the matter should be investigated promptly and the results revealed to the original souce and in our case to the "pack" of interested gramsters. This gives any or all interested parties the feeling that the source of the price guide is dedicated to the accuracy of his or her product.

I've been in this arena of publishing for over 28 years now and I can say for a fact that getting accurate market valuations in certain series or for certain items can be like pulling wisdom teeth with rubber extractors, - pardon the pun. Best wishes,
Colin R. Bruce II

LOGEX money
by Joseph Boling

While I was stationed at Fort Harrison the first time (1969-70), I was assigned to the Command and Staff Department of the AG School. That department was responsible for the officer basic and advanced courses, as well as many enlisted courses. Each year the Army Reserve operated a training exercise at Fort Lee, Virginia, called Logistical Exercise, or LOGEX. To fill out certain positions in the staffing of the exercise, officers from the advanced course and faculty members were sent also.

One feature of LOGEX was training reserve APO and finance personnel. Part of the finance training was a C-day. Each person attending LOGEX received one piece of LOGEX money in his/her initial orientation packet (some years those pieces had a notice stapled to them reminding the soldier to hang onto that piece of training money, because it would be needed during the exercise). At some point during the week, a C-day would be declared and all the pre-issued notes would be exchanged for a new series.

In the early years LOGEX money was large (approximate dimensions of the pre-1928 US notes). In later years, it was reduced to small-size note dimensions. I never encountered any hoards of LOGEX notes; mine were collected one at a time, but mostly around Fort Harrison (I don't specifically remember getting any from other hobby sources, dealers, distant collectors). Following is a list of the LOGEX notes in my collection. First is the date that appears on the note, if any; then a description; then the pseudo-serial number that appears someplace on the note (constant for all pieces). See pp182-3 of MPC-4 for illustrations of two of the small types.

EDITORIAL

This Gram is heading out a little late, so I'll keep this editor short and sweet... Once again, Joe has outdone himself with a superb article on a obscure item of interest to MPC collectors. I know they are in the book, but very few collectors ever discuss them.

As per the article in the Gram a few days ago on Hospital Ship Money, there is listed below in the PX for sale section, is a set of Jutlandia Hospital Ship Notes for anyone interested..

A few comments for the gram. Thirty-five years ago today (4/30/67) I arrived late in the evening at Da Nang Airbase in the RVN to serve with the 1st Marine Air Wing. (Ironically that eight years later to the day the RVN surrendered to the communists, don't think my arrival precipitated that?) On May 1st we checked in and I had my first exposure to "monopoly money" series 641 MPC when we converted all our greenbacks and coins to MPC. Never went through a "C" day during my 13 month tour. Celebrated my 19th and almost my 20th birthday over there (missed it by 6 days!) It doesn't seem like that long ago! Guess I'm older than I think! Wish I knew how to recognize a replacement note while I was there. Wonder how many I handled and spent, not knowing any better! Happy MPC collecting, Larry Gibbs

P.S. Regarding the 651 50c hoard that just appeared. Wonder how many more are out there and how many more 691 and 701 notes are squirreled away for future flooding. I suspect this market is being manipulated, and has been for quite awhile!

FEATURED ARTICLE

Series 611

by Philip M. Goldstein

Series 611

Ordered: 04 October 1961

Issued: 06 January 1964

Withdrawn: 28 April 1969

Printer: BEP

Used in: Cyprus, Japan, Korea & Libya

Block Letters: Regular Notes: H₁₂₃₄₅₆₇₈H

Replacement Notes: H₁₂₃₄₅₆₇₈

Vignettes, Painters and Engravers:

Face

Fractionals	Liberty:	painter: Charles Chickering	engraver: Arthur W. Dintaman
$1	Tiara:	painter: Charles Chickering	engraver: Mathew D. Fenton
$5		painter: Charles Chickering	engraver: Charles A. Brooks
$10			engraver: Mathew D. Fenton

Back

$10 Commerce: engravers: John Eissler & Richard M. Bower

The $10 denomination of Series 611 is the first issue to duplicate a vignette from an earlier series (except Series 461 & 471) The vignettes on back "Commerce" is taken from the face of Series 481 fractional notes.

Replacement Summary:

5¢ - 127	10¢ - 146	25¢ - 11	50¢ - 1
$1 - 181	$5 - 11	$10 - 19

Complete bundles of 5 and 10 cent replacements were distributed among collectors making these the most common uncirculated replacements. A bundle of $1 replacements was saved and remained intact. It's exact whereabouts has not been reported in about 20 years.

EDITORIAL

Sorry Gramsters. I intended to have a very nice Series 611 article featured in todays Gram, as it is Gram 611, but both my intended authors let me down. I had to create something in a rush, and the above is the result of my efforts. Make no mistake, is is a consolidation of information from Fred's book, and my Website. There is also a nice selection of Series 611 notes for sale below in the For Sale Section.

The next Gram Series match will be 641 on May 31, and you just know who will be doing that one, AND you can be real confident I won't be forgetting it!

=====

MAIL CALL

Guy,

I can't report the status of the paper in my 651 notes because that is the only series for which as yet I have not one position 8 note. Come on, all you sellers, who has a position 8 piece in series 651 for me?

Joe

* * * * *

Hi Phil,

I have appreciated your comments in the Gram on the 651 fractionals. Also, the data on your web page is thought provoking indeed. Thanks for publishing the data for the MPC Community.

On your comments - Yes, I know of a number of about 4 sets for sale in the $3,000 range; but which have been unsold for a period of time. It will be interesting to see how the Heritage auction goes. Some nice stuff on there. Hopefully I won't be bidding against you!! Those lots have to be from a major dealer or collectors estate. Any ideas? Take care,

Tom

FEATURED ARTICLE

Great Britian P.O.W.
by Larry Smulczenski
Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â I wrote about our exciting visit to the Bank of Canada and some of the things we saw there a couple of weeks ago. One of the things I didn't mention was a British POW note that has a story all of its own.Â The note was a well circulated War Department issue for Prisoners of War interned in camps in England.Â It was the fairly common three pence value and graded only about VG.Â Fred and I first noticed that it had four validation stamps on the back.Â World War II Remembered makes the statement that these notes were supposed to be collected every three months and validated for continued use.Â The picture in the book shows the back of a similar note that has a lot of stamps and you can make out a couple of the dates that follow this pattern, but you still need to use your imagination.Â The dates on the Bank of Canada example were clear enough for us to easily see that they were nicely stamped three months apart.Â
Â Â Â Â Â The neat part of this note, however was the letter that came with it.Â It was a letter from the donor of the note giving a little of the history behind the timeframe that the note was in use at this particular camp.Â I am quoting the letter verbatim, but deleting family names.Â It was written by a Canadian citizen who currently lives in Ottawa.

Â Â Â Â Â "I obtained this note in 1947.Â The Camp is identified only by number on the note itself, (note--Camp 236) but it was situated on the outskirts of the village of Lauder, in Berwickshire, southeast Scotland."
Â Â Â Â Â "WWII had been over for some time at that point
, but there were still many German prisoners who had not yet been repatriated and were confined to the camps.Â Although confined, they were given a certain amount of freedom and could, if invited , enter the village to visit, or occasionally to do odd jobs for the villagers.Â They were , for instance, employed during the massive winter snows of 1946-1947 in clearing roads for traffic.Â That part of Scotland was, however, cut off for several weeks during that winter."

Â Â Â Â Â "At one point, the Camp was so short of food the prisoners (and the guards) were eating dog biscuits.Â I remember sitting in the Camp office one evening (at the age of eleven), chewing on a dog biscuit with them when the Captain jumped up yelling
'The Russians are here! The Russians are here!'
I was panicked for a few moments as I saw trucks pulling into the compound, then realized he was saying 'The rations are here!'
Their food supplies had arrived.Â
Dog biscuits, by the way, are reasonably palatable, but very hard on the teeth."

Â Â Â Â Â "The prisoners were not supposed to have real money, but were frequently given small sums by the villagers for their services.Â The guards were supposed to confiscate such payment, but being of a reasonable turn of mind, would post a notice to the effect that 'In accordance with regulation so-and-so, there will be a surprise search of the Camp on Tuesday evening.'"

"I cannot say which of the prisoners supplied this note.
 My family and I were on good terms with four and I had long talks with a fifth, who was very interesting, but not particularly likable."
 "The four were Gustave K, the Camp Barber, in civilian life an opera singer from Hamburg, and scion of the House of Knabe Pianos.
 He tried (and failed) to teach me to sing.
 Heinrich L, a small, gnarled, middle-aged steelworker from the Ruhr.
 Matheus L, Heinrich's son, captured with him on the Russian Front.
 Albert O, a toymaker from Bavaria.
 He carved wooden toys for me."

"The fifth was Albert D.
 Albert D, unlike the others, had been an officer in the navy, specifically on U-boat duty.
 He was a true Nazi, who would wear his officer's uniform on Sundays (the others all wore camp garb).
 For me, he was interesting because he and his brother had been science students before the war, and he had a lot of stories of experimenting with making nitroglycerin and other explosives in the attic of his family home.
 Perhaps that's why I wound up as an Armament Officer in the RCAF."

I thought this letter gave a neat little pedigree to a fairly common, well-circulated note.

Here is the article that was to appear in Gram 611. Apparently, there was a technological glitch, and I never received the article. Enjoy it's belated publishing:

Series 611 Gram
 By Fred Schwan

I am preparing this report on May Day. It seems a little ironic to me because this series served during the height of the Cold War. Of course it did not start out that way.

Series 611 was the first series produced entirely by the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. The decision to do that seems to have been in reaction to the problem that the Bureau had had with Tudor Press in the manufacturing of Series 541 then the contract dispute when Series 591 was ordered. Hereafter, the Bureau produced all MPC. It goes without saying that I think that every series is interesting, but this series certainly is on many counts.

It was used for a very long time (five years!), but in a limited number of countries (Cyprus, Japan, Korea, Libya). This long period of use was a hint that its need was reduced and it was converted to greenback in Japan on April 28, 1969. On that date it was converted to Series 651 in the other countries. I believe that Mike Cummings was in Japan when this conversion took place. The designs are very nice across the board. The $5 and $10 are particularly popular among collectors. One example of this comes to mind. The $5 is Mike Cumming's favorite note which is why he selected it to be in his advertisement on the back of the new MPC book.
 The two highest denominations are also scarce and rare in strictly uncirculated condition. This is a little bit surprising because a few collectors had begun to pay attention to MPC by 1969, heck by 1964 they had started. Possibly because of the very long period of use, not many uncs were available at the end when collectors might have wanted to keep some.

~~~~~ I remember when I bought the uncirculated set that is in my collection. I cannot tell you the date like Joe Boling can, but I remember that it was in 1973 just after I had gotten serious about MPC collecting. Somehow I found a dealer somewhere who offered me an uncirculated set. He had obtained it from a soldier who had brought it home. I thought that the price was outrageous and anguished about it for a few days before sending a check. When it arrived, I loved it, but was still concerned about the price. A little bonus reduced that concern some. The five or ten cent note just happened to be a replacement! That was my first replacement!

~~~~~ Oh, you want to know the price? Well, because of all of the anguish that I expended, I remember how much it was: $95 (for the set). I can hear you screaming, but think about this. The only catalog that listed MPC at the time priced this uncirculated set at under $30!! The replacements are very interesting (there I go again, stating the obvious). The 25c, 50c, $5 and $10 replacements are all scarce or rare. Only one 50c replacement is reported yet entire packs of 5c, 10c, and $1 replacements were saved! Yes, packs of 100. The packs of the fractionals have been distributed. To add some intrigue, the entire pack of 100 $1 replacements is missing!

~~~~~ A collector had the pack and proudly displayed it on several occasions. Unfortunately, she died in about 1980 and the whereabouts of the pack are unknown. It may come on the market at any moment, or remain hidden for decades (or more). There is more. The collector obtained the bundle and had saved it because she was a fan of the movie character James Bond and the serial numbers of these replacements started with 007! Yes, that is true. In the late 1970s she told me that she was amazed because a dealer made her a standing offer of $1000 for the bundle.

~~~~~ I have mentioned low prices several times. Now for the other end of the spectrum. The legendary and fabulous inverted back note is from this series ($5). If you have not done so, you should read the history of this note in the new MPC book. When that note sold a few years ago, it set several world records (at $8800): highest price paid publicly for any MPC. It is still the highest price ever paid (publicly) for a circulated MPC.

~~~~~ In the second edition of the MPC catalog, I advised collectors to hold out for uncirculated notes. While that advise might still be good, it is much harder than it was in the 1980s~and of course more expensive. Overall the series is difficult to locate in uncirculated condition, but several denominations are under appreciated. Specifically the 25c and 50c notes are very difficult to locate in top condition and are not even common in circulated grades. While the $5 is recognized as a condition rarity, I think that the $10 is still under valued. If you have any comments, recollections, opinions, or other thoughts on Series 611, please send them to the Gram.

===== EDITORIAL

Our beloved webmaster will be unavailable for a couple of days, and the gram may not be what we have come to expect... I've been informed the colors and pictures may not come through due to the programming we have to use to send it without Doug's intervention. We ask you to be patient, until his return, when we can get back to normal operations.

I am starting to receive some emails from Gram recipients, that the email reply address to mpcgram@papermoneyworld.net does not work. We are aware of this. As I have stated in some previous Grams, please send letters, articles and replies to:

Excerpt: After about a year and a half, David Klinger finally identified this dam which appears on the back of a $20 Military Payment Certificate (MPC). The question was, where was the dam? The dam had been erroneously identified as "Hoover Dam," but as you can see, this is most definitely not that famous structure. Click on the image to see a large version. What it looks like on the "MPC." After a substantial number of search attempts, Mr. Klinger discovered from Larry Stephens, the Executive Director of the United States Society on Dams, that the vignette represents the Theodore Roosevelt Dam on the Salt River near Globe, AZ. It was built by the Bureau of Reclamation and completed in 1911.

The Roosevelt Dam. was started in 1903. Mr. Klinger writes, "It was a masonry dam, or as the engineers call it a "rubble-masonry, arch-gravity dam". This just means that it was made of dolomite blocks, rather than poured concrete. It's unique cyclopean-masonry, thick arch design earned it a listing on the National Registry of Historic Places. The original name of the dam was simply Salt River Dam #1. When it was dedicated in 1911 Teddy Roosevelt was there and gave the keynote speech. I have several pictures of that. The name wasn't changed to Theodore Roosevelt Dam until 1959. By the way, it is only about 75 miles N-E of Phoenix." "Back to the dam. In 1911 this was the largest masonry dam in the world. In the 1980s the dam was renovated under the Safety of Dams program. The original masonry dam was encased in poured concrete and raised in height by 70'. That change wasn't completed until 1996. So the renovation took much longer than the original construction and cost much more! So what's new?"

Great MPC in Chicago II

By Fred Schwan

Currency Auctions of America (CAA) is selling an important group of MPC at its May show in Chicago. We have known about this for at least a few weeks. A short notice appeared in the Bank Note Reporter and a few days ago in the Gram.

The listings for the auction appeared Monday on the Heritage (parent of CAA) website (www.heritagecoin.com/auctions). To say that I was surprised is an understatement. This is far more than a group. It is a collection and a good one at that. I am quite sure that the material was submitted by a small group of people rather than a single collector, but it is nonetheless a very nice collection!

Basically, we knew that the sale was going to include a large group of Series 651 50c pieces (111!) and two fabulous specimen sets. We (I) did not know that a high-grade regular issue set and over 30 replacements would also be included! Wow.

I spent Monday evening studying the replacements. Most have been reported and are in the inventory list in the new MPC book, but a few were not reported and a few others were missing data such as position number and condition. Therefore it was good (and fun) to be able to fill in some of those holes in the survey. Actually (beware, this is a plug) we like to have reports of notes that are in the survey for purposes of confirmation. Unfortunately when we started the survey, we did not keep the date of each report. We keep that information now and we also keep the dates when each replacement has been verified by an independent report.

There was a little humor in the replacement catalog. One lot includes a circulated Series 541 5 and 10c replacement. The illustrations of these notes are overlapped. All of this make sense because the notes are certainly not rare. The humor is that the 5 cent overlaps the 10 cent so that the serial number of the latter does not show. That is all that matters and it is covered! What a hoot. While this sounds like a criticism, and I guess it is, overall the cataloging is very well done.

There are no great rarities in the replacements, but with over thirty different there must be some good ones. The best one is probably the Series 611 $10. I could hardly believe it when the survey showed 19 reported. This replacement appears much less frequently than that report would indicate. I expect strong competition for this replacement. Heck, I expect good competition on most of the reps.

On the whole, the regular issue collection is better than the May notes (no the 591 $10 that was the surprise star of the May sale is not uncirculated as it was there). This is a very nice collection.

Frankly, I have not looked at most of these pieces yet because it is too slow to study them on line. I am really looking forward to the printed catalog!

The 651 fractionals certainly are an amazing. For someone who lived through the times when we just assumed that no 651 fractionals existed, it is amazing just to see them. Initially, the report was that all 111 pieces would be in one lot. Well, that was not done. They appear in several lots with from one to ten or so pieces per lot.

Here is what the catalog says about the very first lot of 651 50 cent certificates:

Series 651 50c Gem New. This is the lowest serial-number note from this incredible offering of 111 pieces. The serial number of this note ends in -699, and it is the only note from its pack (the "600 pack"). The great majority of the MPC notes in this run are from the 700 pack, and the highest number from the entire group ends in -861. Estimating these notes is a challenge, as their appearance on the market will clearly change the existing price-structure. Up to this point, with only a handful of 651 50c notes known, they traded at about $500 for well-circulated examples, and realized upwards of $1000 for pristine pieces. Clearly, these desirable MPC notes will fall short of those prices. And the experts that we have spoken to predict that the new price will be somewhere around $300. We'll be conservative and venture our guesstimate for singles at . . . Est. 250-up.

The real highlight of the sale is two lots of specimen notes. They are complete sets of Series 641 and 661.
These sets were reported indirectly many years ago, but were not confirmed until a few months ago. From that first report, we infer that these two sets have not changed hands in at least two decades. These sets are interesting for many reasons besides the obvious.
First and foremost, they are not mounted in a booklet and appear to never have been so mounted. However, they have been mounted somewhere, possibly a scrapbook, because they all have glue stains.
Obviously, these are two interesting items.
On the one hand it is amazing that such an important collection would come onto the market so soon after the Leo May sale, but on the other hand it is not surprising. After all, success breeds imitation. Once the May/Knight sale was finished it was altogether likely that more MPC would show up in the market and probably at auction. It is likely that there will also be more in other sales soon!
I expect that there will be lots more about this sale in the Gram in the next few weeks and of course after the sale too! I will be at the sale and will not only render a report, I will try to coordinate a Gram Extra to go out within a few minutes of the close of the MPC section.

draft yesterday for me to send, but it did not go out correctly as you certainly noticed. I was and am at a loss to how to send the Gram out. This morning when I sent 612 out, I elected to eliminate some of the standing features that lost their format in transmission to me. Hopefully, you at least receive the bulk of the important editorial material today and tomorrow we will be back to the old system.

-----
Dear Gram,
I was interested to read the review of the M*A*S*H episode about the conversion. I have seen the conversion episode once, I think. The description hardly sounds familiar, but then my memory is not what it used to be.
My point today is that the episode is the result of a keen MPC collector! Edd (yes, two Ds) Page submitted the story idea to the producers. Furthermore he is acknowledged at the end in the scrolling credits. I believe that he was also paid something like $200 for the idea AND for lending the show a 611 $1 for use as a model.
Edd also received a few of the MASH dollars and one is illustrated on page 185 of the MPC book where Edd is again given credit.
Is there any MPC topic about which I do not have a story?

Thanks for a great issue of the Gram!
Fred

Missing Pseudo MPC Vietnam Notes

by Nick Schrier

Several years ago, I was shopping in the Atlanta Lakewood Antique show for silverware as well as MPC when I spotted what looked like series 541 $5 notes. Looking over the picture frame, they were in several denominations and as I recall, 5/10/25/50 (not sure of all these) cents and $1, $5, $10.

Somebody's souvenir collection from Operation Turnkey, circa 1966, the building of one of two airfields in Vietnam by US contractors with some help from the US Air Force civil engineers.

The effort had to be virtually independent of all other military activity so as to not divert resources and affect the other war effort and major buildup. These were used on the base in the club, commissary and other areas but not downtown. The printed usage conditions were very similar to those of regular US MPC.

MPC was in use during this time frame in Vietnam, of course, but it appears this was separate money printed for use at this base. Morrison Knudson (from my home town of Boise, Idaho) was involved in this effort. So most, if not all, of the workers were civilian contractors.

This picture frame had the notes scotched to a card board backing. I bot the set for $25 and later, left the flea market to visit the downtown pawn shops for silverware.

I had a "GD" Japanese stupid trash car with locking knobs that popped up when the door was shut even though they were in the down position when I closed the door!!! damn car!!! damn car!!! Returning to the car about an hour later, the picture frame that was on the front seat was MISSING!!!!!!
No silverware MISSING (it was on the floor), just the Tuy Hoa notes.

I looked around and the bums and drunkards that frequented the back fenced area had left. Bad area but usually they left people alone. So I was SOL!!!

I checked across the street in a market that had some antique shops in the basement but no luck. About three months later, I was again in Atlanta and checked across the street and sure enough some thief had sold the frame to a dealer who in turn had sold it somebody else. GD BUMS!!!!!!
GD THIEVES!!!!!!

I filed a Police report but no luck. I even wrote the Atlanta coin club No LUCK Area is now fenced and they can't get in.

So for three hours I had some very special pseudo MPC notes.
These were mentioned in BNR a few years ago.

If anybody knows anybody in Atlanta who might know of these I would appreciate hearing about them.
Not a lot out there!!

EDITORIAL

Ok gramsters, this should do it. I expect to be back on a regular schedule of getting the gram out. As summer approaches and other parts of my life demand attention, the Gram may go out around 10-11 p.m. EST, but be assured, technical and server access problems aside, it should go out.

If anyone is getting doubled grams, multiple mailings, or you should stop getting Grams altogether, I STRONGLY recommend you contact Doug directly.. It will save time and confusion... You may contact him at:
doug@papermoneyworld.net.

Fest Attendees! Please note: Exactly 300 days remain until Fest IV. Approximately 10 months. Geez, where is the time going? I'm already looking forward to it...Are you?

MAIL CALL

Dear Gramsters,

I am now in Ho Chi Minh City and have started going through numismatic material. I have pushed the MPC off to later when I can concentrate on each one, but I have come across one replacement that I do not need and is available here for US$30. It is a Series 692 .10Cents Plate 54 with serial E00424495. If anyone wants it, I will buy it and bring it back in early June with me. Please send me an email at Howard@SEAsianTreasury.com

EXHIBIT JUDGES PROGRAM SCHEDULED FOR NEW YORK

To ensure the availability of qualified judges who support high standards of exhibit competition, the American Numismatic Association (ANA) sponsors the Judges' Familiarization and Certification Program. Those who satisfactorily complete the training are certified as ANA judges. Exhibitors who wish to learn more about the judging process also are invited to participate. ANA Chief Judge Joseph Boling will supervise this year's program, offered in conjunction with the ANA Worlds Fair of Money® at the Marriott Marquis Hotel in New York City, July 31-August 4. The first segment, beginning at 10:30 a.m. on Wednesday, July 31, is a judging practicum. After rating convention exhibits, participants submit their practice evaluations to program staff for review on Friday, August 2, at 12 noon. At the program's final session, scheduled for 4 p.m. on Saturday, August 3, participants receive completed evaluations and notification of results. Those wishing to attend the Judges' Familiarization and Certification Program at the ANA convention in New York should contact Joseph Boling at P.O. Box 4718, Federal Way, WA 98063-4718; telephone 253/839-5199; fax 253/839-5185; or e-mail joeboling@aol.com.

FEATURED ARTICLE

USS Thomas A. Edison - Continued
by David Klinger

Just as I thought I had everything sorted out related to the front design of the series 681 fractionals I received the following information from another "man on top of the sail"! What follows came from LT Girard T. Lew USN:

From Gary Lew; LT; Gold; 63-65: This is an altered image of the preceding picture. True, this is Edison GOLD when CAPT Dedrick commanded. The CAPT is standing on the "Conning Tower". The guy standing by the colors is ME! Observe that the colors are flying from the masthead light; the usual location for the colors on the surface was from a flagstaff at the rear of the sail. The flagstaff had broken and the flag was being flown from the masthead light. We had to be ready to "dip" the colors to respond to honors from a passing ship. I was a LTJG working on my sub qualifications at the time. The CAPT had invited me up to observe and, after the flagstaff snapped, had me stand on top of the sail to "dip" the colors as required. My memory says that the picture was taken by CAPT Young (the Blue Crew CO) from the tender's gig as he came out to meet us on our return from patrol. CAPT D. distributed this picture (the one you labeled Firth of Clyde circa 1963) to many members of the crew. I still have mine. It also showed up, printed in reverse, on the cover of "Navy" magazine. I still have a copy of it.

So, even though it is the CO who "always" stands on top of the sail when leaving and entering port, in this case there were special circumstances which put LTJG Lew on top and CAPT Dedrick in the number two position just below Lew. It was also the Gold crew returning from it's first patrol (not leaving for). This fixes the time of the photo as May 1963. On the back of the photo which Captain Young took it reads : "Printed by James Findlay & Sons, Ltd, Glasgow Scotland".

EDITORIAL

It appears that there was a communication mix up resulting in the sending of two Gram 614's yesterday: one from me, one from Fred. Consider one a bonus for being a faithful reader.

Fred mentioned to me a few days back, he doesn't particularly like it when I don't have much to say, and have a short editorial. I usually have plenty to say (most of you know that already, and I'm very rarely at a loss for words) and I'm sure sometimes like most of the rest of us, I just can't think of anything to comment about. Typers block?? Just how many times can you say "good article by so and so"? I think you know what I mean. Any of you who are out there in Gramland, and sends in an article, has taken the time out of their schedule to put their thoughts and knowledge on paper (well OK, email) and everyone's article is of the highest quality.

Believe me, it's appreciated... It gets very tough on my part to try and fill in the blank feature days with SOMETHING to talk about. So if I don't happen to say a repetitive "job well done", "good article" or "nice feature" don't take it personally. :o)

MAIL CALL

Fred,
Perhaps you don't want to be disturbed, but I wanted to let you know that the last 2-3 Grams I have received were in the correct format for me and appeared all the width of ONE monitor screen for me. I have been corresponding with Doug Bell about my problem of multiscreen width Grams for many months now and whatever you're doing (right OR wrong) has been a Godsend for me! You didn't mention when the Chicago show is of CAA. What are (were) the dates and location? Thanks very much,
Sarge

Sixty (60) Vietnam transitional notes from the same pack. The front shows "Republic of Socialist Vietnam," the denomination (2 dong's), and the communist emblem of the country. The back shows the "Ham Rong" bridge and pagoda, boat, number 2, and "National Bank of Vietnam". Those notes are from the time era when the country was ruled by a military totalitarian regime.

All for $37, including shipping.

FEATURED ARTICLE

MPC Collection on the Block

by Fred Schwan

Currency Auctions of America (CAA) is selling an important group of MPC at its May show in Chicago. We have known about this for at least a few weeks. A short notice appeared in the Bank Note Reporter and a few days ago in the Gram.

The listings for the auction appeared Monday on the Heritage (parent of CAA) website: www.heritagecoin.com/auctions. To say that I was surprised is an understatement. This is far more than a group. It is a collection - and a good one at that. I am quite sure that the material was submitted by a small group of people rather than a single collector, but it is nonetheless a very nice collection!

Basically, we knew that the sale was going to include a large group of Series 651 50c pieces (111!) and two fabulous specimen sets. We (I) did not know that a high-grade regular issue set and over 30 replacements would also be included - Wow!

I spent Monday evening studying the replacements. Most have been reported and are in the inventory list in the new MPC book, but a few were not reported and a few others were missing data such as position number and condition. Therefore it was good (and fun) to be able to fill in some of those holes in the survey. Actually (beware, this is a plug) we like to have reports of notes that are in the survey for purposes of confirmation. Unfortunately, when we started the survey, we did not keep the date of each report. We keep that information now and we also keep the dates when each replacement has been verified by an independent report.

There was a little humor in the replacement catalog. One lot includes a circulated Series 541 5 and 10c replacement. The illustrations of these notes are overlapped. All of this make sense because the notes are certainly not rare. The humor is that the 5 cent overlaps the 10 cent so that the serial number of the latter does not show. That is all that matters and it is covered! What a hoot. While this sounds like a criticism, and I guess it is, overall the cataloging is very well done.

There are no great rarities in the replacements, but with over thirty different there must be some good ones. The best one is probably the Series 611 $10. I could hardly believe it when the survey showed 19 reported. This replacement appears much less frequently than that report would indicate. I expect strong competition for this replacement. Heck, I expect good competition on most of the reps.

On the whole, the regular issue collection is better than the May notes (no the 591 $10 that was the surprise star of the May sale is not uncirculated as it was there). This is a very nice collection. Frankly, I have not looked at most of these pieces yet because it is too slow to study them on line. I am really looking forward to the printed catalog! The 651 fractionals certainly are an amazing. For someone who lived through the times when we just assumed that no 651 fractionals existed, it is amazing just to see them. Initially, the report was that all 111 pieces would be in one lot. Well, that was not done. They appear in several lots with from one to ten or so pieces per lot. Here is what the catalog says about the very first lot of 651 50 cent certificates:

"Series 651 50c Gem New. This is the lowest serial-number note from this incredible offering of 111 pieces. The serial number of this note ends in -699, and it is the only note from its pack (the "600 pack"). The great majority of the MPC notes in this run are from the 700 pack, and the highest number from the entire group ends in -861.

Estimating these notes is a challenge, as their appearance on the market will clearly change the existing price-structure. Up to this point, with only a handful of 651 50c notes known, they traded at about $500 for well-circulated examples, and realized upwards of $1000 for pristine pieces. Clearly, these desirable MPC notes will fall short of those prices. And the experts that we have spoken to predict that the new price will be somewhere around $300. We'll be conservative and venture our guesstimate for singles at . . . Est. 250-up."

The real highlight of the sale is two lots of specimen notes. They are complete sets of Series 641 and 661. These sets were reported indirectly many years ago, but were not confirmed until a few months ago. From that first report, we infer that these two sets have not changed hands in at least two decades. These sets are interesting for many reasons besides the obvious.

First and foremost, they are not mounted in a booklet and appear to never have been so mounted. However, they have been mounted somewhere, possibly a scrapbook, because they all have glue stains. Obviously, these are two interesting items. On the one hand it is amazing that such an important "collection" would come onto the market so soon after the Leo May sale, but on the other hand it is not surprising. After all, success breeds imitation. Once the May/Knight sale was finished it was altogether likely that more MPC would show up in the market and probably at auction. It is likely that there will also be more in other sales soon!

I expect that there will be lots more about this sale in the Gram in the next few weeks and of course after the sale too! I will be at the sale and will not only render a report, I will try to coordinate a Gram Extra to go out within a few minutes of the close of the MPC section.

ANA REPRESENTATIVE PROGRAM IS GETTING A FACE LIFT

The American Numismatic Association (ANA) Representative Program is being revamped to nearly double the number of regional coordinators who provide the ANA with a closer connection with its nearly 500 member clubs. The ANA Board of Governors approved the restructuring at its meetings in Jacksonville in March and directed Governor Patricia Finner, who chairs the program, and ANA Volunteer Administrator Rachel Irish to work with the current 16 regional coordinators to revise the program. "The Board and the headquarters staff is very supportive of the Representative Program," says ANA President John W. Wilson. "We have a great group of people who work hard to promote the Association and the numismatic hobby. "Governor Finner says, "We anticipate that with this restructuring, we can improve the lines of communication between the Board and headquarters staff, and the regional coordinators, district delegates and club representatives.

I have been working with Rachel Irish to survey the regional coordinators to assess their needs and seek ways to help them better serve the ANA. "Under the revised mission statement, the ANA Representative Program "is to work directly with collectors and clubs to promote and expand the numismatic experience through the services and programs offered by the Association. "MOREANA REPS. Page 2 The ANA currently has 16 regional coordinators, including one to assist young numismatists and one to serve as a representative on the Internet. When the revision is completed this summer, there could be as many as 29 regional coordinators, working with Scott and Lisa Loos of North Bend, Washington, who have been appointed by President Wilson to serve as national coordinators.

Scott Loos, a self-employed accountant by trade, works as a full-time coin dealer, specializing in medieval and world coinage. A collector for more than 20 years, he is a life member of the ANA and is active in local, regional and national coin clubs. He has served as president of the Pacific Northwest Numismatic Association (PNNA); past president, treasurer and newsletter editor of the Inland Empire Coin Club; and treasurer of the Conder Token Collector Club. He also is a member of the Seattle, Tacoma-Lakewood and University Coin Clubs. Loos has served in the ANA Representative Program at the club, district and regional levels, and received the ANA's Terry Armstrong Outstanding Regional Coordinator Award in 2000.

Lisa Loos, an account representative for Microsoft, is a collector of Portuguese coinage and has worked with her husband as a coin dealer. She is a member of several local clubs and anew director of PNNA. She joined the ANA in 1991 and has been co-coordinator for Region 7, which covers Alaska, Idaho, Oregon and Washington. Finner says the Board of Governors is examining ways to provide additional funding to the Representative Program, and Wilson notes that regional coordinators will be able to present appreciation awards to district and club representatives who demonstrate dedicated work for the ANA and the program.

For more information about the ANA Representative Program, contact Rachel Irish at 818 N. Cascade Ave., Colorado Springs, CO 80903-3279; telephone 719/632-2646; fax (719) 634-4085; or E-mail volunteer@money.org.

MAIL CALL

Hi Gramsters!

I subscribe to the "Green Sheet". Since the Lynn Knight Auction, and Fred's (our Guru!) new book, one would think that and occasional update on "prices" would be appropriate! There are notes listed that I will pay (and many others) up to 5-10 times BID! The prices are so "all over the place" it's useless. The #591 $10 sold at $6300+ and I know of one that just sold for more!! Also many replacemnts that sold in new for 4-5 times current bids!! Like the #641 .50 cent, barely new, $1955, the #661 25c lot #114 @ $2588+ additional commission!!!. When will MPC get the "RESPECT" from the "mainstream" bozo's. It's "okay!" that the collectors who truly "know" the current levels can occasionally take advantage of the lower printed prices. But these prices are a "joke!" Get with the program and revise the antiquated pricing!!!! Venting!

Hi Gramsters!

On 4-01-02 I submitted information.... It was that "I had purchased a group of #611 $1 with a "Yellow (actually 'GOLD') band" / wrapper. Well after examining the current Heritage auction, I realized that the band on the #661 $1 is BLUE! SO, that leaves only the $10 and the $20 to confrim!! At the time, I submitted the above information. I suggested to "confirm" with David Seeyle as he had offered a bundle of #641 $1 for sale. Well now this $1 "color/ BLUE" should be confirmable now, for SURE. My band, came with '5' #611 $1 but "no" expressed surity that, that band was the band for that bundle. So until someone confirms a Series #661 -692 $20 "Wrapper" the yellow Band remains a question? Which bundle does it belong to, the $10, or the $20. SEE Fred's Book Page #41. Update! Till next time.

Sixty (60) Vietnam transitional notes from the same pack. The front shows "Republic of Socialist Vietnam," the denomination (2 dong's), and the communist emblem of the country. The back shows the "Ham Rong" bridge and pagoda, boat, number 2, and "National Bank of Vietnam". Those notes are from the time era when the country was ruled by a military totalitarian regime.

All for $37, including shipping.

Page 220, #884/2r - Series 641 .50 Replacements

On page 284, it is broken down into 2 printings. That's correct, BUT, on page 220 he lists only (1) printing reported. It should "list" both first and second printings.

Guy Araby (date listed 04 APRIL 2002)

Page 287, Series 661 Series Summary, 25 cent note: the "list" shows "#CU as 10(7) . It should read, 8(7). As only 8 are known in CU. Just recount P.289.

Guy Araby (date listed 08 APRIL 2002)

Page 398, Series #541 $10 on "UNC." price is $2500, on P.214 the UNC. price is $3500. Also the rest of the prices don't match all the way to "VG" on this issue. They should be the same price.

FEATURED ARTICLE

Show Report and an AMC Mark Counterfeit

by Joseph Boling

This past weekend was the Pacific Northwest Numismatic Association annual convention in Tukwila, a Seattle suburb. As an officer of the PNNA, I was heavily involved--much more than I would normally be at a convention of this type. Because I had to be there all weekend, I had time on Friday to make the rounds of the dealers, and as treasurer of the PNNA I also handled (after the fact) all of the cash that came in at registration. Lets talk about the cash first.

Recall that last year I observed that all the $20 notes except one were of the new design; I had not realized that the new design had displaced the old so thoroughly. This year I checked all the income for Saturday and Sunday (I did not have time to examine the Friday receipts before depositing them Saturday morning). With a $2/day, $5/weekend entry fee, we took in lots of dollar bills. All were in the following series in the indicated quantities: 1995 / 89 pieces; 1999 / 202 pieces; 2001 / 3 pieces. This works out to the following percentages: 30/69/1. These were the first examples of the 2001 series that I have seen; they have very distinctive signatures. I am surprised that there are so many 1995 notes still out. The dollar bill is supposed to have a circulation life of eighteen months or less-- I would expect the 1995 notes to be much further retired than is evident.

In the $5 notes, we had twelve of series 1995 (the old design) and nine of series 1999 (57%). In $10 notes, only one of series 1995 and three of series 1999. A word about $10 notes; I have had my bank looking for pre-1995 pieces for many weeks. In all that time, the tellers have found only a single 1993 note. All the others have been 1995 or later. I am surprised at how completely the 1995 series dominates the old design pieces (which seem to be running at a higher rate than the 25% in our tiny PNNA sample). In $20 notes, we took in thirty-one 1996 pieces and sixteen 1999 notes (34%) - every piece is in the new design. There was a single $50, series 1996. On the hard currency side, there were ten Sacagawea dollars, one Susie B, and two Ike dollars! I bought all those to use in my daily shopping (I never carry dollar notes any more--I carry metallic dollars and $2 bills (when I can get them) and arrange my tenders so that I get paper change only in $5 and higher denominations).

Enough of the civilian side; now for a military piece. On Bill Henderson's latest list, he had a 100 mark AMC counterfeit. Due to the crush of affairs in the past three weeks, I had let the list sit on my desk, read but not ordered from. I was sure that he would have sold the piece by the time I saw him Friday. Not so; not only did he still have it, but he had brought the list stock to the show. I was able to acquire the fake and a genuine to go with it. Now for the interesting stuff. Recall that the Soviet printed AMC marks can be visually separated quickly (without checking for the Forbes printer's mark) by checking the serial numbers for a 3+6 configuration--three digits somewhat misaligned with the final six digits. The three are usually composed of a dash and two numerals, because the sample notes that the Soviets received with their printing elements were specimens made from replacements, which Forbes indicated with a leading dash. The Soviets apparently concluded that all serial numbers were to start with a dash. Only when their numbering reached -99,999,999 in a denomination (without the commas) did they convert the dash to a numeral "1" and keep on numbering (they did not start at zero, so they actually did not produce more than 100 million pieces of any denomination).

The counterfeit that I bought from Bill does not have the Forbes mark, which would indicate that a Soviet-printed piece was used as the model (the plate is crude, but there is not even a blob where the script "f" would be). The serial number, in addition to being ragged overall, shows a distinct 3+6 form. But, the number is 037821825, an impossible number for a Soviet production; they never used a leading zero. The plate is not a photographic reproduction of an original; my conclusion is that the counterfeiters created a new plate from scratch, omitted the Forbes mark when they came to it, and had the same problem that the Soviets had with serial numbering--no nine-wheel machines. They had to set up two machines next to each other. (An alternative would be to print the 037 as part of the main face plate, using a six-wheel serial numbering machine next to those initial digits, but that is not what they did on this note--all digits are letterpress over the black face plate.)

Does anyone else have a 100 mark AMC fake? If so, what is the serial number?

MAIL CALL

I received a scholarship application from a docent at the Pueblo Aircraft Museum for the "Military Numismatics" class. She writes "The Museum owns more than ten thousand military artifacts (including WW II military script and foreign currency) from World War II, Korea, Vietnam, and the Cold War as well as from WW I and the Gulf War."

I have two questions, or comments: Would your group like to sponsor her for the class? (just tuition as she lives close) and might this be a great field trip for the class???

Also, what happened to the Gram? I have not received one in a month.

Fred,

Nice way to gloss over the 651 .50 cent situation. Change the price structure? $250 each? Are you mad? Do you honestly believe that he only took .50 cent notes? Come on, Phil had the right idea all along on his website. Are you guys totally blind or what! Wake up and smell the hoard!

EDITORIAL

It appears by Gail's letter above, some people are still suffering from glitches caused by the electrical spike several weeks ago to the Gram server. Anyone still receiving multiple grams? no grams? fookey grams? Contact Doug directly at: doug@papermoneyworld.net

So it seems, more people are becoming suspicious about the 651 fractional notes... Fishy circumstances leave too many unanswered questions, which no one cares to answer honestly. Class, the word of the day is: Caution. We know have the following people lined up for articles for the following Gram / Series Matches:

FEATURED ARTICLE

Australian Use of MPC
by Dave Klinger

Dear Editor,
I sent an e-mail to the Australian MOD (History Unit) to try and get an answer to Fred's question about use of MPC during the Korean War by other nations. I didn't get an answer to the direct question, but I'll share the reply anyway.
David Klinger

Sir,
First of all, congratulations on winning this week's obscure question competition. That is not a complaint, you just managed one we had never thought of. I have not been able to find a definitive answer.

The British Commonwealth Occupation Force (BCOF) in Japan used British Armed Forces Vouchers and troops were also paid in Japanese currency. The pictorial history of BCOF compiled by Australian Veterans has a picture of a "chit" for purchasing goods at the US PX or the snack bar at the Ernie Pile Theatre, Tokio. This is a small ticket printed "Good for Five Cents in Trade at Tokio PX or Ernie Pile Snack Bar : 8th Army Printing Plant Boon jude. In 1950 the withdrawal of BCOF from Japan was halted and the HQ evolved into the base for Commonwealth forces in Korea. I can find no reference to MPC in the Australian Official History or another veteran produced book, "Korea Remembered". However, as both focus mainly on operations this may not prove anything.

You might like to refer your question to the Korea and South East Asia Forces Association of Australia. The National Secretary is Mr Peter Smith on: psmithers@telstra.easymail.com.au I am sorry I could not be of more assistance.

Yours sincerely,
Bill Houston
LTCOL
Army History Unit

LTCOL Houston,
Thanks for your reply to my question . Your information is very useful, since I did not know about the use of British Forces Special Vouchers by Commonwealth Forces during that time. Also the "chit" info was new to me. I sent the questionon to Mr. Smith as you suggested. Thanks again, Respectfully

MAIL CALL

Dear Esteemed Editor,
I have been in Ho Chi Minh City (Saigon) for a couple of weeks now and have gone through the stock of three dealers. All three combined, I have seen only about 300 MPC from 611 to 692. This is the lowest stock I have seen here in ten years! Is this an indication that the flow of MPC from Viet Nam has dried up? There might be a former house of ill repute or a bar's "trunk" that might pop up in the future, but I think the people bringing in one to ten notes to the dealers is about done. FYI.

Gramsters:
Our 2002 Spring Mailbid catalog (closing May 24) is up on our website at Rosenblumcoins.com. It is available in both HTML (fully illustrated) and PDF (no images) formats. There are numerous lots that should appeal to gramsters including 3 MPC notes, a Kume Jima chit from occupied Japan and concentration camp notes and tokens. Most material will be available for viewing at our bourse table at the Denver show May 16-19. Please contact us if you need further information. 2- After it seemed like the problems with me receiving the MPC Gram were cleared up, we haven't received a copy since Friday April 26th. Best

EDITORIAL

Once again poor customer service takes its toll on the innocent. This time my ISP company has placed a "temporary" block on my account.. No explanation given, but it is darn sure not non payment. I just paid 6 months in advance. (Like I usually do with them) Since billing dept. closed at 4:30 pm, and I just got home, nothing can be done til morning. But the repair dept. is open... and they have no access to billing. I HATE TECHNOLOGY and BANKERS HOURS!!!! This Gram is going out via a long distance call through AOL, so I'm keeping short and sweet. TTYL tomorrow. (Hopefully)

HOT CONTACT LIST - DEALER & RESOURCE LIST

Below is the BNR Press Hot Contact List. This list serves several functions. Obviously it is an outreach by the dealers listed for your business. Most of them buy and sell MPC. Others organize shows or publish periodicals, or furnish information dedicated to this field. They have supported the new Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates with their advertising.

They deserve your support and patronage!

FEATURED ARTICLE

Incinerated Notes

by Larry Smulczewski

A couple of neat hobby related incidents happened to me this past week that I would like to share with you all. I will relate one now and save the other for next week. Last Sunday, my next door neighbor decided to have a pot luck type neighborhood gathering. She invited the folks up and down the street to bring a dish and what ever you wanted to drink and come by to enjoy a get-together with friends. About thirty couples came, so there was plenty of food to share. I was enjoying an exchange with two Air Force retirees when the subject of Viet Nam came up. It always does, so naturally I had to interject my interest in MPC. They both remembered using the "stuff" but neither had brought any home. However, this one fellow named Jim says, "Let me tell you a story."

He said it was a couple of months after Tet and he was stationed in Saigon. He claimed to be an old Captain at the time when the Colonel called him into his office and said that he was being detailed to the Army for a special mission. It was classified, and the Army would do all work and all Jim needed to do was observe. Seems that the Army unit was short-handed for officers and had asked the Air Force to provide an officer for this detail. Jim was hesitant as he really didn't relish beating the bushes with the Army. He reported as ordered and was briefed on his duties which was to accompany an Army platoon led by a lieutenant which was to drive northwest to the outskirts of Saigon and destroy several dozens of boxes of paper in a Bessemer Converter that was owned by an old Frenchman at his plant. The Bessemer Converter was Jim's recollection. Since I grew up in Pittsburgh, and saw these mighty furnaces lighting up the nighttime sky, I doubted that there were any like that in Viet Nam. Probably just a decent size furnace, since there were even very few of them in South Viet Nam.

Anyway, the dawn began to break for me as it probably has for many of you. I had to ask, "What month was this, Jim?" He answered, "Hell, I don't know. It was in late 1968." Yes, you probably guessed, Jim was a destruction officer for Series 641 MPC as the changeover from Series 641 to Series 661 occurred on 21 October 1968. The convoy arrived at the plant and it took a little while for the old gent to light the furnace and get it blazing. The Army troops began carrying the boxes to the furnace and wanted to pitch them in intact. Jim claims to have ordered them to break open the boxes and pitch the packs of bills into the fire. This took a lot more time, and caused some grumbling among the troops, but Jim realized that stacks of paper just charred around the edges rather than being totally consumed even in a furnace. When the boxes had been emptied, Jim claims that he asked to inspect the ashes in the in the bottom of the furnace. He said that everyone was amazed that even though the furnace was putting out an intense heat, there were packs of notes that had passed through the grates and were lying in the ashes almost intact. Maybe a bit seared around the edges, but still an almost complete note. Jim had the Army sift through the ashes and pull out any remaining notes and burn them in another fire that was started. But can you understand why we sometimes encounter a piece of MPC that has a trace of a burn on it. Could be that it was headed for destruction and somehow evaded the fire in the furnace.

I just had to ask Jim if he was sure that he hadn't saved just a couple of the notes as souvenirs. He stoutly proclaimed that he and the lieutenant certified all the contents of the boxes were destroyed and that they were. Oh well, I tried. But isn't it interesting how these stories pop up.

DID YOU KNOW:

That yesterday the 8th of May in 1945 was VE day in Europe and that today in 1945 the ceremony to ratify the German surrender occurred in Berlin. This was less than a month after President Roosevelt had died and President Truman while making the announcement wished that Roosevelt had survived to enjoy the occasion.

EDITORIAL

Attention Gramsters:

Apparently several days ago, I published a letter that was not meant to be published. Fred brought it to my attention, and it was through no fault of my own. Please understand, anything submitted to MPCGram@yahoo.com without any instructions as to the disposition of the letter, will be considered for publication.

Once again, if it for Fred's eyes only, either send it to Fred direct a FredSchwan@yahoo.com or please put "NOT FOR PUBLICATION" in the subject line. This will avoid any future complications / publication. I like to think I do a darn good job running the gram efficiently and when little problems like this crop up, I get the "publisher" breathing down my neck. These problems can be solved by a simple measure of communication

Below is the BNR Press Hot Contact List. This list serves several functions. Obviously it is an outreach by the dealers listed for your business. Most of them buy and sell MPC. Others organize shows or publish periodicals, or furnish information dedicated to this field. They have supported the new Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates with their advertising.

They deserve your support and patronage!

Oral History Interview with BERNARD BERNSTEIN - Part V

July 23, 1975

by Richard D. McKinzie

Submitted by Fred Schwan [comments in square brackets]

I went down to Cuba where Secretary Morgenthau was with his wife. His wife was ill. These of course were pre-Castro days. I reported to the Secretary on the whole situation in North Africa. I gave a number of talks at the War Department and at the Civil Affairs School at Charlottesville, Virginia.

General Carter ran a dinner at the Metropolitan Club in Washington. He had invited a number of generals and colonels. I was also invited to the dinner. I thought I was just going to be another guest at the dinner. There was a little dais and I was one of four or five people asked to sit on the dais. It was an enjoyable dinner and I was having a relaxed time. All of a sudden I heard my name being mentioned as the guest who's going to make the speech of the evening. I stood up and talked for about an hour about our experiences, particularly as it affected finance and economics, but I also discussed the Darlan episode and the justifications for it, and the problems that we were facing in dealing with the French. Then for another hour I answered questions. The officers at the dinner were largely in General Carter's fiscal division. They were mostly professional men from private life. They had not as yet served overseas. They were hungry to learn from someone who had been overseas what they themselves might face.

I spoke for about two hours and I hadn't been told prior to my being introduced that I was going to be the speaker. But I had previously given a talk like that at the War Department. I remember running into General Huebner a few years later. He had been at one of the talks and he mentioned it. In the spring of 1943 I went back to North Africa and very quickly was assigned to the unit that was commanded by a British major general, General Rennell, that was to do the military government planning for the invasion of Sicily. Our headquarters were at a ski resort at Chrea to the east of Algiers. The British were very effective in integrating the British and Americans, and the senior officers ate at General Rennell's mess. We got to be very good friends with the British. I shared a chalet with two British colonels. The British batman used to bring in tea in the morning before we were up. The tea sometimes was strong enough that I said it was almost as strong as wine.

We were at Chrea on July 4, 1943. That was going to be a quiet day around the headquarters and I thought I'd go down to Algiers and see some of my old friends there, both in the Army and in the Treasury Department; also some of the Economic Warfare Board crowd who were in Algiers. I just stopped in to General [Frank J.] McSherry's office to say I was going into Algiers for the day, and to my surprise he said, "Well, all right, but be back here by 4 o'clock." General McSherry had never previously said anything like that to me. I was a senior officer and there was a relaxed relationship at headquarters. I said, "Yes, General."

I got back by 4 o'clock and I was washing up in my chalet when a soldier came in and said that General McSherry wanted me at 4:30 out in front of the main headquarters building in full uniform. I completed my washing and dressing and appeared at the clearing in front of the headquarters building. There were all of the other American officers standing there and we lined up for a march. No one seemed to know what was up. Off we marched for about half a mile and we came around a turn in the road and there was a big clearing, a big field, and all the British officers were lined up and saluting US. They were giving us a 4th of July surprise party. Each British officer escorted his American opposite number. It was far and away the best 4th of July party I have ever attended. [Since this interview was first recorded in July 1975 I was on the Forrestal in New York harbor on July 4, 1976. The Bicentennial celebration that day was surely the greatest.]

For military government for Sicily we did far more extensive and detailed planning than we had done in connection with the North African invasion. A considerable number of personnel were brought into the Army for military government in Sicily. These men had professional careers as bankers, lawyers, economists, and so on, and they were sorted out to the various units of military government depending on their background of training and experience. At Chrea we ran a multifaceted program. We were doing the planning, we were assigning personnel to various units, we were training the personnel generally on military government matters. Our own finance division people we were training specifically on the finance program.

The invasion of Sicily began on July 10, 1943. American and British military government finance officers went in with the invasion troops. One of the important tasks was to see that the Allied forces had adequate supplies of Allied Military Lira for their own uses and also to assure that Italian financial institutions continued to function normally. Large stocks of such military currency had been printed by the Treasury in Washington and shipped and flown to North Africa where I received such currency and distributed some to the invasion forces. Another American and I in separate planes flew in additional supplies of Allied Military Lira, arriving at the airfield near Agrigento not long after the enemy had been expelled from the area. A depot at an Italian bank in Agrigento was established by the Allied Military Financial Agency (A.M.F.A.) for the stocks of Allied Military Lira until Palermo was captured by General Patton's forces after which the currency depot under the control of AMFA was transferred to a bank in Palermo.

Then General Rennell and the whole senior staff came over to Siracusa where we set up our headquarters and began the military government of Sicily. Fortunately the Italians became quite cooperative. The important role for military government was to act in a manner to reduce any burden on our military forces, to have things go as normally as possible, meanwhile weeding out Fascists and troublemakers. The Finance Division saw to it that the banks functioned, that Italian taxes were collected, that Sicilian civil servants who were working were paid, etc. We established a rate of exchange between the Allied Military Lira and the dollar and the pound sterling so that a man knew how much he was entitled to get for his dollar or pound sterling.

General [George S.] Patton was proceeding extraordinarily well on the left side; the British were having more tough going on the right hand side of the island. The Germans had the help of a mountain in staving off the British a bit. Finally, the Allied forces occupied the whole island and we moved the headquarters of military government to Palermo. From Palermo the Allied Military Government functioned through the Italian Government officials in Sicily to see that normal government activities were carried out. As I said before, known and significant Fascists and troublemakers were weeded out at the instigation of our military government. When the finance division was functioning effectively I was transferred back out of Palermo to North Africa because we were doing the military government planning for the invasion of the mainland of Sicily, and we had the headquarters . . .

MCKINZIE: Of Italy, sir?

BERNSTEIN: Oh, the mainland of Italy, yes, thank you. We had a headquarters group in Algeria at a town called, oddly enough, Tizi Ouzou. Again we had a British-American staff to do the military government planning.

At this point, there was a possibility of my going back to the United States because General Carter wanted to set up a finance school to train finance officers for military government and civil affairs work and he wanted me as director of the school. I was willing to do that, if that was what the Pentagon wanted. But Colonel Edward Foley was coming over into the area and Ed Foley wanted me in the area when he was coming over. We were roommates there in Tizi Ouzou. We continued the military government planning for mainland Italy along the lines we had worked out for Sicily. After the invasion began of the Italian mainland we set up our military government in a town called Brindisi. Ed Foley and I dealt with the Italian finance minister, a person by the name of Guido Jung who, although he was Jewish, was still an official of the Badoglio government which had also been set up in Brindisi.

In addition to talking about finance I talked with Jung about the problems of the Jewish population of Italy. He commented on the great difference in the attitude, even of the Italian Government, let alone of the Italian people toward the Jews as compared with the Nazi attitude. He recognized that nevertheless the Jews in Italy suffered a lot of hardships and a lot of losses and deaths and so on.

Once the King broke away from Mussolini and set up the Badoglio government, set up his own government with Marshal [Pietro] Badoglio as the head of the government, we again had a friendly government to deal with and again subject to eliminating the bad elements, we found that we could leave it to these officials to run the country. We'd keep an eye on what they were doing to assure that it (a) didn't interfere with the movement of our troops, and (b) eliminated the worst aspects of Fascism, and that people were being dealt with on a fair basis. And that was essentially the role our military government played as we moved slowly up Italy. When we reached Naples that was the furthest north that I went. At the beginning of 1944 I received orders transferring me back to London to the headquarters that General Eisenhower was to head up at SHAEF. I traveled by way of North Africa, to London.

When I reached Marrakesh, the weather over England was so bad that for four days no planes were flying in. So I had a four-day holiday at Marrakesh at the famous Mamoonia Hotel. Let me tell you, a more lush hotel I've never experienced in my life. There were a couple of other American officers there. On one of the days there was a parade of the French-North African troops. The parade was reviewed by Prime Minister Churchill and by General Charles de Gaulle. There were the two standing side by side. I was on the other side of the street. It was quite a scene.

When finally the weather over Britain cleared - I was always in touch with the American airport--our bombers were coming through there and were being flown up to England--I was given a seat on the floor of a bomber, underneath a bomber sergeant who handled one of the plane's machine guns. I sat on the parachute that had been given to me at Marrakesh. We flew from Marrakesh to Great Britain. As we were about to land the wheels of the plane would not come down. We spent an hour flying around. Finally the wheels came down and we landed at Wales. I took a train to London. I began working on military government for the invasion of Western Europe. Of course, that began taking on much larger scope. On the one hand we were training and planning--we were getting prepared for invasion of friendly countries, France, Belgium, Holland, and Norway. On the other hand, we were getting ready for invasion of Germany, where we knew we were going to be in enemy country.

Sixty (60) Vietnam transitional notes from the same pack. The front shows "Republic of Socialist Vietnam," the denomination (2 dong's), and the communist emblem of the country. The back shows the "Ham Rong" bridge and pagoda, boat, number 2, and "National Bank of Vietnam". Those notes are from the time era when the country was ruled by a military totalitarian regime.

All for $37, including shipping.

FEATURED ARTICLE

Military payment scrip in Japan

by David Klinger

What follows is an excerpt from "Agreement regarding the Status of the United Nations Forces in Japan" (update of 19 Feb 1954, to a previous version dated 28 Apr 1952):

ARTICLE XI

1. In paragraph 1 the term "facilities" shall include facilities and areas made available for use by the United Nations forces in accordance with the provisions of paragraph 2 of Article V.
2. Military payment scrip as referred to in this Article means United States Military Payment Certificates and British Armed Forces Special Vouchers.
3. In principle the forces of the British Commonwealth (except Canadian forces), as well as members of the said forces and of the civilian components thereof, and their dependents, are authorized to use British Armed Forces Special Vouchers and all other United Nations forces including Canadian forces as well as members of the said forces and of the civilian components thereof, and their dependents are authorized to use United States Military Payment Certificates within the facilities and areas in use respectively by them. Exceptions to this principle will be authorized only to the extent necessary to the effective accomplishment of their mission. Regulations pertaining to the use of United States Military Payment Certificates and British Armed Forces Special Vouchers shall be reported to the Government of Japan through the Joint Board.
4. The monthly reports rendered by the military authorities of the United States of America to the Ministry of Finance of Japan concerning the conversion of United States Military Payment Certificates into yen shall include those conversions by the United Nations forces as well as members of such forces and of the civilian components, and their dependents.

While the UN Status of Forces Agreement defines what was authorized in Japan related to MPC and BAFSV, during and shortly after the Korean War, it doesn't answer who actually used these scrip. So, a lot of research still needs to be done. Also, it does seem logical that the same rules for UN Forces in Japan would apply for UN Forces in Korea during the same time period. But then, logic doesn't always work either.

FEATURED ARTICLE

Odds & Ends

by Joseph Boling

This week I'll be commenting on items that have appeared in the past ten or so grams--which I have just read tonight, having about 400 emails backed up over the PNNA convention weekend and since.

In Fred's analysis of series 611 in gram 612, he mentions that it is one of the harder series to collect (particularly in high grade). I am finding that it is of middling difficulty as I acquire position-8 notes. I have three pieces so far, of seven possible. There are three series from which I have fewer pieces, and two others of which I have three pieces also. This means that it is tied for sixth in collecting difficulty in my narrow experience.

The oral history item with Bernard Bernstein deals with Admiral Darlan and the capture of Algiers. Three or so years ago I was reading fall 1945 issues of the Seattle Times (on microfiche), looking for information about a certain local camp emission (the subject of a future column). I found the papers loaded with headlines about Darlan's trial for treason (as a Vichy collaborator--he was convicted).

Nick Schrier mentioned an antiques mall in Atlanta (where he bought and lost the frame of Operation Turnkey scrip). That sounds like the place where Bill Churchwell's wife was selling her artwork. I have one of her pieces, prepared in ancient style using glue and ground dyed silkworm cocoons. Churchwell was a military note collector and catalogue collaborator. He died several years ago.

Dave Klinger corresponded with the Australian MOD history office. He indicated he had not known that BAFSVs had been used in Japan. Dave, you're not spending enough time in bed with World War II Remembered (SB). We mentioned it at the top of the first and second series listings, and of course the Force T issues were exclusively for Japan (which I did not know when I was building my Japan-related collection, else I would have been pursuing them--by the time I learned, it was too late to get those varieties at any price). The SCAPINs mentioned in SB (Supreme Commander Allied Powers Instructions to the Japanese Government) also cover the use of Australian coinage as small change by the BCOF troops. And of course there are the theater-ticket style BCOF chits that are listed in SB, in yen denominations.

As for the occupation era chits mentioned by the Australian MOD: I have sen/yen denominated chits for the Yokohama Snack Bar and the Tokyo PX/Hattori Building, all printed by Eighth U.S. Army Printing Plant/Boonjudo. By the time my chits mention the Ernie Pyle Snack Bar, they are in cents (still in the same format, but now with the numbers 1641 and 1642 appended to the imprint--I don't know what those represent). I'll have at least some of these at the ANA seminar in July, Dave, if you want to see them.

All the yen-denominated items probably pre-date the use of both MPC and BAFSV, because until the military currencies were introduced, there was no vehicle for use of dollar/sterling emissions. Troops were being paid in yen (mostly AMC yen, which they could spend downtown or in the military facilities).

HOT CONTACT LIST - DEALER & RESOURCE LIST

Below is the BNR Press Hot Contact List. This list serves several functions. Obviously it is an outreach by the dealers listed for your business. Most of them buy and sell MPC. Others organize shows or publish periodicals, or furnish information dedicated to this field. They have supported the new Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates with their advertising.

They deserve your support and patronage!

MAIL CALL

Dear Editor,

Joe Boling pointed out correctly that S/B mentions the use of BAFSV by British Forces in Japan, which I did know about. What I was trying to determine in response to Fred's question was - what did the UN countries, other than US and Britain use during the Korean War? What appears to be the case is that all Commonwealth countries, except Canada, used BAFSV, and all others were authorized to use MPC. I find no mention of that fact in S/B.

EDITORIAL

Well, another day, and no feature article. I'm telling you, if we don't start getting some material, the Gram is going to fall flat on its face. Of course it's not far from that now.

Here I gave you on schedule releases of the Gram, (unfortunately the server was spiked during my tenure, and the address book suffered), color Grams, embedded images, timely publication of your material, expedited your problems, gave you working links, and a host of other improvements. Almost all of you responded with good responses and encouragement.

But I can't make up features, stories, and articles too! Unfortunately, I have not the experiences Fred has, nor the longevity in the area, so I rely heavily on the rest of you for contributions of material, and you are letting me down. No: you are letting the community down!!

This is pitiful, I guess if my efficient operation isn't wanted, we can always get Fred back! Send in some articles!!!

FEATURED ARTICLE

by Larry Smulczenski

This is the other story that I promised last week. It has to do with an auction lot I saw on eBay. Offered was a one cent chit from a prisoner of war camp at White Sulphur Springs in West Virginia. The chit itself was normal size for a POW chit but was well circulated and had blue print on what looked like a tan card stock. There was a large red two overprint on the left hand side with a red serial number of 77510B. This really interested me as neither Campbell or Donn listed a POW chit from White Sulphur Springs, West Virginia. When I saw it, the price was already in the mid-fifty dollar range and I knew winning this was not going to be easy. I threw in a bid of slightly over sixty dollars to test the water, but the screen came back with an immediate "You have been outbid by another bidder" reply. This told me that the current high bidder was a serious player and I had competition for this lot. The auction had days to run so I decided to just sit back and watch it. I knew that good friend Dave Seelye would be sitting at his office desk with his computer tuned to eBay and there was no chance for me to buy this item for a decent price. We were talking about serious money and there were going to be at least three players.

I decided to see what I could find out about White Sulphur Springs and see if I could confirm a POW camp being there. Using White Sulphur Springs as a keyword was no help. All I got was that it was a popular resort area in the southeastern part of West Virginia. There were however references to a hotel there by the name of The Greenbrier. Somewhere in the deep dark recesses of my mind that name was familiar and I vaguely remembered a World War II novel by W. E. B. Griffin that had a Navy pilot who escaped the Japanese in the Philippines, joined a guerrilla group and finally was brought back to the states. I remember him being sent to the Greenbrier for psychiatric evaluation and R&R after his return. Keying on Greenbrier, I found that this was a very elegant hotel that the State Department took over soon after Pearl Harbor for the purpose of housing Axis diplomats and their families until they could be exchanged for American diplomats in Axis nations. Admiral Nomura, the former Japanese Ambassador to the U.S. and Special Envoy Saburo Kurusu resided there. These are the two that had been negotiating with Secretary of State Cordell Hull right up to the Japanese attack and on December 7th, 1941 handed Hull Japan's declaration of war. When these diplomats were repatriated through neutral nations, the hotel was taken over by the Army for use as a General Hospital. It was renamed Ashford General Hospital in September 1942 and treated war wounded. ---Bingo--- Now this was significant because Donn does list Ashford General Hospital as the only main POW camp in West Virginia. He states that the camp opened around June of 1943 and closed in May of 1946 holding 679 prisoners.

The final positive proof came when I found an article on a website written by a German POW named Gerhard Schneider who was a paratrooper captured in North Africa. He stated that after being transported to the U.S. in a troop ship, they "...were moved to Camp Ashford General Hospital in White Sulphur Springs, West Virginia. The camp was about 2 km from the station on the outskirts of town. The camp was situated in a wonderful scenic, mountainous landscape. It was surrounded by a double fence, 3 meters apart. Four watchtowers, manned with machine guns and two searchlights, guarded the camp. The huts were built, gable ends facing, on both sides of the street. Each one accommodated 50 men. A separate "kitchen hut" with dining hall served each kompanie(sic) of 250 men, another hut provided washing and toilet facilities. A canteen was available for everybody. Another hut was used for entertainment. Several other similar huts were reserved for the sick, a workshop and the Camp Red Cross representatives."

"...the U.S. Army acquired the famous 'Greenbrier Hotel' and used it as a military hospital. For the next 2 1/2 years, this establishment became my place of work. I was the only POW among five Americans working in the basement catering department of this huge building complex. ...the chef trusted me and my acquired skills,... There were over 3000 patients in the hospital as well as personnel. It was like a small town. Supplies of every kind had to enter the hospital and be delivered to the kitchen. Other POW were also working at the hospital. Among other places, in the butchery and bakery, in lifts, lavatory and the laundry."

I was convinced and more determined than ever to add this piece to my collection. As the end of auction approached, I decided on a strategy and arrived at price that I was willing to pay. The bid had not moved from the value that it was at when I was outbid a couple of days ago, but I felt sure there would be some last minute snipping. The phone rang about 15 minutes before the end of the auction. It was Fred. I filled him in on the story and asked what he would bid. He gave me a number and I informed him that I was still about 10 percent above that. Not much of a margin, but it was getting close to end of auction. I entered my bid, crossed my fingers and watched the screen. As the red type said "Auction has ended", I breathed a sigh of relief as I saw my name was still there, one bidding increment ahead of Dave Seelye. As I knew, it didn't come cheap, but to me it was a great prize--a new discovery piece.

Three days later, I get an envelope in the mail. David Seelye had been advertising in his pricelist that I was researching POW chits for a book and was interested in any and all that are in collections. (By the way, I'm still interested in any POW chits that Gram readers have in their collections. Email or write to me.) The letter was from one of David's customers, had two POW chits in his collection. Only two, but he scanned them for me. One was from Houlton, Maine and you can surely guess where the second one was from. Yes, your right, White Sulphur Springs, West Virginia. Over 30 years have passed since Donn wrote his book and in that time these chits were not reported, yet in one week, two of them turn up. By the way, my informants chit is on a light pink cardstock. There is a good chance that mine is a color changeling (bleached). I'm not positive since they are different serial numbers, but that big "2" overprint is there. But this was an amazing coincidence to me.

As a post script, to the above story, let me tell you that the Greenbrier was returned to its former owners in June of 1946. In the late 1950's a new wing was added to the hotel, but it was considerable more than what it appeared. Beneath the new wing was constructed a large, and very secret bomb shelter which was enough to hold the entire Congress of the United States. The Federal Government had a plan at that time that in the event of an atomic attack, the Greenbrier Hotel would become the temporary home of Congress. On 9/11, there were some rumblings that should there be other attacks that Congress would move to some remote location. Could it be?

SHOW REPORT

Initial Auction Report by Fred Schwan I am on the road heading home from Chicago because there did not seem to be too much more damage that I could do and even a transfusion would not rescue my check book. I left the auction room about 30 minutes ago. I found this truck stop with internet access and figured that I should place an initial report on the CAA Chicago auction. The prices below are from memory only and do not include the buyer's fee (15%!!! ouch). At 20 cents per minute, this report will not be too detailed, but I hope that it will give you a feel for the event. Maybe it is just me, but MPC seemed to be maintaining a strong place on the paper money stage. I arrived too late on Thursday night to do any viewing so I had to cram it in on Friday morning before the unusual 1 pm kick off of the MPC auction. Harold Kroll and I shared a room and lots of lies on Thursday night, but we were still able to make the 9am start of viewing. He had a big advantage over me having viewed lots on Thursday. I was anxious to see many notes especially some of the replacements that were not illustrated in the catalog, and I was rewarded with some unexpected goodies in the unillustrated lots. Hopefully, I will remember to discuss some of the later. Of course the big news in the auction was the group of 111 Series 651 50 cent notes, but it was not even necessary to look at them. The other big news was the two specimen sets--Series 641 and 661. Not only was it necessary and desirable to look at these, but it was also necessary because they were described in the catalog as having glue damage. The catalog was correct but a bit understated. The glue on both sets was much worse than I had anticipated. In the case of the 661 50c it had bled through so bad that I believe the colors on the face are permanently hurt. I had planned to buy both sets or at least be a strong contender. The condition made it more difficult for me to be excited. You can be sure that Harold and I discussed these sets at length. That had actually started the night before, but we could be serious after seeing the notes. I did not know what to do and to be honest, I had not decided what to do about them even when the auctioneer opened the 641 specimen set for bids. As I said, there were several interesting, if subtle items. An unillustrated (and nice unc) Series 471 5c had serial number 275. I immediately had visions of paying the serial number in dollars for this piece. As it turned out, Harold bought it for a little less than that in a confused situation when neither of us knew who the high bidder was! The 651 all seem to have sold and averaged something over $100 per note. The first single sold for something like $325. The groups then sold for about the $100. The big news item was a gem 692 $10 that sold in heated bidding for, are you ready, $2400 (remember, before the juice). None of the replacement went crazy, but all of them seemed to have found good homes. I bought several for my multiple printing replacement collection and am most pleased with them. In retrospect, I am most disappointed at some that I let go. The 641 specimen set opened at something like $4000 and the auctioneer started to count it down at that level. He and most everyone in the room laughed as I had to fumble to find my number. >From there it went up to $7750 where I prevailed. I do not remember where the 661 set opened, but it was only in the $6000 range, but went all the way to $12,000 before it was sold to a book bidder. I had (have) mixed emotions about this one! I have lots more to tell. I hope that I can remember the things when I get home to write another report!

MAIL CALL

Dear Gramsters,

It did not take long after the delivery of last night's gram until the email started flowing in. Let me set the record straight. I am NOT the guy mentioned in Guido's letter in Gram 622.

I have no dispute with Guido or the IBNS.
That guy is Michael Turner. I am Marcus Turner.
He is from Germany. I am from the USA.

I am not, or have ever been (or will probably never be) the European Secretary of the IBNS. STOP THE MADNESS!!!!!! Unfortunately I am quite used to explaining this situation. I sure hope it ends soon...

EDITORIAL

If it's not one thing, it's another. I didn't get home early enough Thursday to get a Gram out in time (came in at 2 am from working on my trucks wiring) and today was both my birthday, and racing and if thats not enough, I'm sick with some bug or another. So.... I found myself short on time no matter what I was doing.
To Larry: sorry your article is late, but better late than never.

Cherry Picking?

by Nick Schrier

My experience: Over a year ago, I was in a coin and gold/silver buy shop and after buying a bit of sterling silverware, I asked about MPC. They had the usual assortment in the case priced for too much money and I asked about anything else. When the box of unsorted was brought out, I looked through and found nothing unusual. Then I looked again and about fell over. Of course, I immediately pointed out to the owner that I wanted only the Series 472 .25 cent replacement note and how much did he want for this very rare quarter in XF!!!!

No such way!!! NFW!!! I went through the lot again looking for anything else that may have been unusual and finally picked out about 15 decoys of the 20 or so notes fine or less notes (mostly Viet nam era as I am a vet), and asked for a price. He said price it myself. Of course, I said thousands!!!!!! Nah, I just hit him with $23!!!! Well, I got it and could not believe my good luck. And this is a store that does eBay!!!!

Of course, he had paid nichts for the lot which then came to me for the big bucks!!!! Knowledge is $$$$$$!!!! I could have lost the lot by spending too much time with the lot. There is a balance between too little and too much time and interest that has to be struck and that varies with each owner. You need to be smart, calculating, intelligent, knowledgeable, poker faced, interested, restrained, friendly like a snake, sometimes dumb, but above all ~~~LUCKY!!! Herb Cohen's book would help. You Can Negotiate Anything.

I had used a good technique which I had then forgotten about in March of this year with a National Bank Note Intercourse, PA $5 bank note that I lost the buy on. You spook people with a high offer. Just grab it and go. Take the trash also!!! The Intercourse note was stuck in a vault in a jewelry store which the son had inherited. He had no idea of the value. However, once they think it is worth something, no cherry picking!!!

Maybe I will get it later on.

Next time: The story of the Atlanta GA Stoopid Major Gen's widow who "dumped" her husbands foot locker for "get it off" my hands $250!!!!

BOOK REVIEW

by Jim Downey

A few weeks ago in the Gram there was a mention of a new book regarding WWII prisoner of war camps in Wisconsin called Stalag Wisconsin. I believe it was just a notice that the book was published. I have read it and attached is my review of it.

|            |                                                                    |

Stalag Wisconsin is a narrative history of the prisoner-of-war (PW<sup>1</sup>) camps that were located in Wisconsin during WWII. The book is broken into two parts: (1) a brief overview of the PW camp system, and (2) short histories and narratives from the one base camp (Camp McCoy) and the 38 satellite Wisconsin PW camps.

It is not an in-depth history of the camps, but a general survey. The author's research revealed that the records of the branch camps were destroyed in the 1950s. Most of the information found in the book was gathered from newspaper articles and personal interviews with prisoners, guards and members of the local communities and their families. The stories depict life in the camps as well as the community reaction to and interaction with their unexpected

-- and sometimes unwelcome - neighbors. The accounts are typical of those that are well known about the PW camps in the United States including informal and lax security, visits with American relatives, bungled escapes that end in taverns, etc. It is an easy and entertaining read. I tackled its 270 pages in a single weekend.

It seems that there is a paucity of information regarding PW camps in the US during WWII. In my limited travels, I have encountered only one other book on PW camps in the United States. That was a history of the camp at Ft. Gordon, GA that was written by the post historian in the 1970s, which I found at the post library and consists of an edition of 1. It is likely that other installations have similar histories and it may be worthwhile to scour the military libraries or correspond with the command historians to locate these resources. Despite its limited scope, Stalag Wisconsin fills a definite need in preserving the history of one of the lesser-known aspects of the war. I highly recommend it. The following are a few highlights of the book and its numismatic references.

Camp McCoy was the only base PW camp in Wisconsin. It housed all of the Japanese, Korean and other Asian PWs held by the US for the duration of the war as well as up to 5,000 Germans. The other 38 camps were satellite camps that temporarily housed German PWs from Fort Sheridan, IL who were shipped to Wisconsin to provide agricultural labor during the harvest and canning seasons. These satellite camps housed approximately 13,000 prisoners between 1944 and 1946.

The US government received $.50 per hour for the labor of each PW hired out. It cost the government $.35 per day to house each PW. One of the few primary documents cited by the author is an accounting of the amounts paid to the treasury for the PW labor from each camp as of September 1945. The farmers and canneries paid over $1,000,000.00 for PW labor from the Wisconsin camps alone! This was quite a windfall for the treasury.

PWs received $.80 per day for their labor and an additional $.10 per day for personal needs. They were paid in canteen coupons and were able to bank their wages. When PWs were repatriated they were paid the balance of their accounts in treasury checks which could be cashed by US personnel in their home country. (WWII Remembered shows an example of these checks on page 396).

Canteen coupons are mentioned a couple of times in Stalag Wisconsin and there is one cartoon drawn by a PW that depicts them. The cartoon shows a PW with a disgusted look on his face holding a container of milk in one hand and an open coupon book in the other that has only two coupons remaining. The English translation of the caption reads: "I don't need a million . . . I only need five cents for milk." There is enough detail in the drawing to identify that the coupons are consistent with those used in PW camps.

Of the Wisconsin camps, WWII Remembered only identifies Camp McCoy and Camp Billy Mitchell in Milwaukee as having issued their own coupons. As previously identified, Camp McCoy was a base camp that existed throughout the war. Camp Billy Mitchell was the largest of the Ft. Sheridan satellite camps in Wisconsin and remained from January 1945 until April 1946. Because of the size and permanent nature of these camps it is likely that they were the only camps to issue their own coupons. While all of the satellite camps had canteens, most of them housed only a few hundred PWs and were only active for the few short months of the harvest and canning seasons each year. It is probable that the satellite camps used coupons for Ft. Sheridan.

I acquired a few sheets of maverick canteen coupons a few months ago. They blank coupon checks with "P.O.W. Canteen" stamped on them without a location. I got them from the daughter of a gentleman who was an MP at the PW camp at Ft. Sheridan. I had assumed they were printed as a quick substitute for the Ft. Sheridan coupons but I imagine it is equally possible that they were printed for use in the satellite camps. (All of this is conjecture, of course, as it is also possible that these coupons are modern fabrications as this sort of overprint would be easy to duplicate. I trust my source, however, as she was a client of mine from Illinois who related to me the stories he told her about his time at Ft. Sheridan.)

1: PW is the current abbreviation used by the United States Army for prisoner-of-war. Under the heading of PW there are two subheadings: EPW (enemy prisoner-of-war) and APW (allied prisoner-of-war). In the modern United States Army lexicon a POW is a personally-owned-weapon.

Though not much material, I did get to GRAMS 623, one dated 5/15/2002 at 10:48 p. m. and the other dated 10/16 in the a.m., the one I'm responding to.

Don't get discouraged. We appreciate what your doing. I may offer something, but I'm afraid is in the offing.

Dear Editor,

Joe Boling pointed out correctly that S/B mentions the use of BAFSV by British Forces in Japan, which I did know about. What I was trying to determine in response to Fred's question was - what did the UN countries, other than US and Britain use during the Korean War? What appears to be the case is that all Commonwealth countries, except Canada, used BAFSV, and all others were authorized to use MPC. I find no mention of that fact in S/B.

Greetings,

I have two complete unissued booklets of chits printed in a vertical format two wide by nine deep. The outer deep red cover is printed in this style three times so there are three intact booklets with a value of 1 pound each:

Serial No.....
Officers' Mess        ::        9 Warwick
£1
If found, please return to:
.....

Inside are full pages of 18 chits for 1/, 6d, 6d, 3d, 3d, 2d, 2d, 2d, 1d, 1d, 1d, 1/2d and 1/2d printed in various colors for each value with "OFFICERS" MESS" above and "9 WARWICK" below the value.

These came with a mixed lot of military items from a Dublin auction recently. Anybody have any idea as to what war and whomever issued them and for where? Cheers,

Colin R. Bruce II

Cherry Picking?

by Nick Schrier

My experience: Over a year ago, I was in a coin and gold/silver buy shop and after buying a bit of sterling silverware, I asked about MPC. They had the usual assortment in the case priced for too much money and I asked about anything else. When the box of unsorted was brought out, I looked through and found nothing unusual. Then I looked again and about fell over. Of course, I immediately pointed out to the owner that I wanted only the Series 472 .25 cent replacement note and how much did he want for this very rare quarter in XF!!!!

No such way!!! NFW!!! I went through the lot again looking for anything else that may have been unusual and finally picked out about 15 decoys of the 20 or so notes fine or less notes (mostly Viet nam era as I am a vet), and asked for a price. He said price it myself. Of course, I said thousands!!!!!! Nah, I just hit him with $23!!!! Well, I got it and could not believe my good luck. And this is a store that does eBay!!!!

Of course, he had paid nichts for the lot which then came to me for the big bucks!!!! Knowledge is $$$$$$!!!! I could have lost the lot by spending too much time with the lot. There is a balance between too little and too much time and interest that has to be struck and that varies with each owner. You need to be smart, calculating, intelligent, knowledgeable, poker faced, interested, restrained, friendly like a snake, sometimes dumb, but above all ~~~LUCKY!!! Herb Cohen's book would help. You Can Negotiate Anything.

I had used a good technique which I had then forgotten about in March of this year with a National Bank Note Intercourse, PA $5 bank note that I lost the buy on. You spook people with a high offer. Just grab it and go. Take the trash also!!! The Intercourse note was stuck in a vault in a jewelry store which the son had inherited. He had no idea of the value. However, once they think it is worth something, no cherry picking!!!

Maybe I will get it later on.

Next time: The story of the Atlanta GA Stoopid Major Gen's widow who "dumped" her husbands foot locker for "get it off" my hands $250!!!!

BOOK REVIEW

by Jim Downey

A few weeks ago in the Gram there was a mention of a new book regarding WWII prisoner of war camps in Wisconsin called Stalag Wisconsin. I believe it was just a notice that the book was published. I have read it and attached is my review of it.

|            |                                                                    |

| TITLE:     | STALAG WISCONSIN - Inside WWII prisoner-of-war camps |
| AUTHOR:    | Betty Cowley                                                       |
| PUBLISHER: | Badger Books, P.O. Box 192, Oregon, WI 53575                       |

Stalag Wisconsin is a narrative history of the prisoner-of-war (PW<sup>1</sup>) camps that were located in Wisconsin during WWII. The book is broken into two parts: (1) a brief overview of the PW camp system, and (2) short histories and narratives from the one base camp (Camp McCoy) and the 38 satellite Wisconsin PW camps.

It is not an in-depth history of the camps, but a general survey. The author's research revealed that the records of the branch camps were destroyed in the 1950s. Most of the information found in the book was gathered from newspaper articles and personal interviews with prisoners, guards and members of the local communities and their families. The stories depict life in the camps as well as the community reaction to and interaction with their unexpected

-- and sometimes unwelcome - neighbors. The accounts are typical of those that are well known about the PW camps in the United States including informal and lax security, visits with American relatives, bungled escapes that end in taverns, etc. It is an easy and entertaining read. I tackled its 270 pages in a single weekend.

It seems that there is a paucity of information regarding PW camps in the US during WWII. In my limited travels, I have encountered only one other book on PW camps in the United States. That was a history of the camp at Ft. Gordon, GA that was written by the post historian in the 1970s, which I found at the post library and consists of an edition of 1. It is likely that other installations have similar histories and it may be worthwhile to scour the military libraries or correspond with the command historians to locate these resources. Despite its limited scope, Stalag Wisconsin fills a definite need in preserving the history of one of the lesser-known aspects of the war. I highly recommend it. The following are a few highlights of the book and its numismatic references.

Camp McCoy was the only base PW camp in Wisconsin. It housed all of the Japanese, Korean and other Asian PWs held by the US for the duration of the war as well as up to 5,000 Germans. The other 38 camps were satellite camps that temporarily housed German PWs from Fort Sheridan, IL who were shipped to Wisconsin to provide agricultural labor during the harvest and canning seasons. These satellite camps housed approximately 13,000 prisoners between 1944 and 1946.

The US government received $.50 per hour for the labor of each PW hired out. It cost the government $.35 per day to house each PW. One of the few primary documents cited by the author is an accounting of the amounts paid to the treasury for the PW labor from each camp as of September 1945. The farmers and canneries paid over $1,000,000.00 for PW labor from the Wisconsin camps alone! This was quite a windfall for the treasury.

PWs received $.80 per day for their labor and an additional $.10 per day for personal needs. They were paid in canteen coupons and were able to bank their wages. When PWs were repatriated they were paid the balance of their accounts in treasury checks which could be cashed by US personnel in their home country. (WWII Remembered shows an example of these checks on page 396).

Canteen coupons are mentioned a couple of times in Stalag Wisconsin and there is one cartoon drawn by a PW that depicts them. The cartoon shows a PW with a disgusted look on his face holding a container of milk in one hand and an open coupon book in the other that has only two coupons remaining. The English translation of the caption reads: "I don't need a million . . . I only need five cents for milk." There is enough detail in the drawing to identify that the coupons are consistent with those used in PW camps.

Of the Wisconsin camps, WWII Remembered only identifies Camp McCoy and Camp Billy Mitchell in Milwaukee as having issued their own coupons. As previously identified, Camp McCoy was a base camp that existed throughout the war. Camp Billy Mitchell was the largest of the Ft. Sheridan satellite camps in Wisconsin and remained from January 1945 until April 1946. Because of the size and permanent nature of these camps it is likely that they were the only camps to issue their own coupons. While all of the satellite camps had canteens, most of them housed only a few hundred PWs and were only active for the few short months of the harvest and canning seasons each year. It is probable that the satellite camps used coupons for Ft. Sheridan.

I acquired a few sheets of maverick canteen coupons a few months ago. They blank coupon checks with "P.O.W. Canteen" stamped on them without a location. I got them from the daughter of a gentleman who was an MP at the PW camp at Ft. Sheridan. I had assumed they were printed as a quick substitute for the Ft. Sheridan coupons but I imagine it is equally possible that they were printed for use in the satellite camps. (All of this is conjecture, of course, as it is also possible that these coupons are modern fabrications as this sort of overprint would be easy to duplicate. I trust my source, however, as she was a client of mine from Illinois who related to me the stories he told her about his time at Ft. Sheridan.)

1: PW is the current abbreviation used by the United States Army for prisoner-of-war. Under the heading of PW there are two subheadings: EPW (enemy prisoner-of-war) and APW (allied prisoner-of-war). In the modern United States Army lexicon a POW is a personally-owned-weapon.

Though not much material, I did get to GRAMS 623, one dated 5/15/2002 at 10:48 p. m. and the other dated 10/16 in the a.m., the one I'm responding to.

Don't get discouraged. We appreciate what your doing. I may offer something, but I'm afraid is in the offing.

Dear Editor,

Joe Boling pointed out correctly that S/B mentions the use of BAFSV by British Forces in Japan, which I did know about. What I was trying to determine in response to Fred's question was - what did the UN countries, other than US and Britain use during the Korean War? What appears to be the case is that all Commonwealth countries, except Canada, used BAFSV, and all others were authorized to use MPC. I find no mention of that fact in S/B.

Greetings,

I have two complete unissued booklets of chits printed in a vertical format two wide by nine deep. The outer deep red cover is printed in this style three times so there are three intact booklets with a value of 1 pound each:

Serial No.....
Officers' Mess        ::        9 Warwick
£1
If found, please return to:
.....

Inside are full pages of 18 chits for 1/, 6d, 6d, 3d, 3d, 2d, 2d, 2d, 1d, 1d, 1d, 1/2d and 1/2d printed in various colors for each value with "OFFICERS" MESS" above and "9 WARWICK" below the value.

These came with a mixed lot of military items from a Dublin auction recently. Anybody have any idea as to what war and whomever issued them and for where? Cheers,

Colin R. Bruce II

Start Number is incorrect. It appears as:
(start) D14784001D (end) D14784000D
Correct start number should be: D09408001D
PK6 (date listed: 03 APRIL 2002)

Page 214, #855/r2 - Series 541 $1 Replacements,
Ending serial number is incorrect
Correct number is F1112000
(date listed: 02 APRIL 2002)

Page 220, #884/2r - Series 641 .50 Replacements
On page 284, it is broken down into 2 printings. That's correct, BUT, on page 220 he lists only (1) printing reported. It should "list" both first and second printings.
Guy Araby (date listed 04 APRIL 2002)

Page 287, Series 661 Series Summary, 25 cent note: the "list" shows "#CU as 10(7) . It should read, 8(7). As only 8 are known in CU. Just recount P.289.
Guy Araby (date listed 08 APRIL 2002)

Page 398, Series #541 $10 on "UNC." price is $2500, on P.214 the UNC. price is $3500. Also the rest of the prices don't match all the way to "VG" on this issue. They should be the same price.

Widows Who Don't Know/Don't Care!! or A Small Horde of MPC

by Nick Schrier

About 10 years ago, I was in Atlanta for the big flea markets and as usual, was also looking for MPC. I called one shop on a Friday and the owner said he would have some Sat morning. I called that morning and went right over and about fell over. About 80 common notes most of which were xf plus including some crispies. BUT, four were Replacements and three were crispy!!!! The $20 and nickel notes were series 681 which I had used in Vietnam, the rest 641 or so. All the notes were fairly common, no great serial numbers but in great condition. Face was around $450 and I started with an offer of $575. He wanted $1100!!!!

Of course this was too much as he had no idea of value or grading until earlier in the morning when someone had faxed him a green sheet copy. He had not read the fine print on replacements though. We jockeyed back and forth and I finally stopped at $700. Not enough for him. So I thought, why let this be a futile effort and told him of my Vietnam experiences. I said "Let me buy something out of the deal and of course I picked the 4 replacements and 5 decoy notes"! I was not about to make his upcoming trip to Biloxi to gamble a happy one (a common coin dealers cure)!! Well, I paid the $110 for the lot and could not believe my good luck!!!

Well, the story gets better as to how he acquired the notes. A retired Army Major General had just died and his widow had a take it all away yard sale!! All of his medals, memorabilia, papers, God knows what else were in the well traveled camo trunk and she just dumped the LOT FOR $250!!!! A picker bought the trunk and dispersed the contents quickly. The MPC went to the coin store and that's how I had found about it. Boy, was she DUMB and STOOPIID. Just get rid of it, get it out of here!! How many times have you heard of things like this happening? It was not grief, just laziness on her part per the coin shop owner.

Knowledge is everything and take your time.

I hope she eats burgers for a long time.

MAIL CALL

I am in the market for some of the chits or a chit-book that was used at the Airman's club, Anderson A.F.B., Guam in 1959 & 1960 . Lord knows why I did not save at least one of things. I couldn't have been THAT thirsty !!!!!!! Any help from you or your friends will be greatly appreciated. C YA in Memphis! Thanks,
Bob

EDITORIAL

Hey Nick! If the widow was smarter you wouldn't have gotten your bargain. Never look a gift horse in the mouth, or in our case, think twice about an unknowledgable dealers shortcomings!

Even though tomorrow is Tuesday and we have a column scheduled, we are still short on material... Send in some stories!

HOT CONTACT LIST - DEALER & RESOURCE LIST

Below is the BNR Press Hot Contact List. This list serves several functions. Obviously it is an outreach by the dealers listed for your business. Most of them buy and sell MPC. Others organize shows or publish periodicals, or furnish information dedicated to this field. They have supported the new Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates with their advertising.

They deserve your support and patronage!

MPC CATALOG CORRECTIONS & ENHANCEMENTS

Page 18, Bottom - Users of Military Payment Certificates

Check marks were omitted from production copies of books. Please check off the following:

Australia: 641, 661, 681, 692
 Canada: 461 through and including 591
 Korea: 641, 661, 681, 692
 New Zealand: 641, 661, 681, 692
 Thailand: 641, 661, 681, 692
 United States: All

(date listed: 02 APRIL 2002)

Page 201, Bottom Right - Very last sentence on this page

Two serial numbers listed for the second printing of

Series 472 .50 cent notes. The first serial number listed is obviously in error as a nine digit number: C040351392C

Correct Serial Number is: C04035139C

D Freyser (date listed 10 April 2002)

Page 207, #833/4 - Series 481 .25 4th Printing (table listing serial number breakdowns) line 5

Start Number is incorrect. It appears as:

(start) D14784001D (end) D14784000D

Correct start number should be: D09408001D

Page 214, #855/r2 - Series 541 $1 Replacements,

Ending serial number is incorrect

Correct number is F1112000

(date listed: 02 APRIL 2002)

Page 220, #884/2r - Series 641 .50 Replacements

On page 284, it is broken down into 2 printings. That's correct, BUT, on page 220 he lists only (1) printing reported. It should "list" both first and second printings.

Guy Araby (date listed 04 APRIL 2002)

Page 287, Series 661 Series Summary, 25 cent note: the "list" shows "#CU as 10(7) . It should read, 8(7). As only 8 are known in CU. Just recount P.289.

Guy Araby (date listed 08 APRIL 2002)

Page 398, Series #541 $10 on "UNC." price is $2500, on P.214 the UNC. price is $3500. Also the rest of the prices

don't match all the way to "VG" on this issue. They should be the same price.

FEATURED ARTICLE

A local Seattle issue celebrating victory in WWII

by Joseph Boling

Soon after retiring to Seattle I paid a visit to Bill Henderson in nearby Puyallup (pronounced "pew-wallop" for those of you who have always wondered). Among stacks of items I bought that day was an interesting note in the size of a small-size US note, black on one side, green on the other. The black side, in a note-looking design of lettering and scrollwork, says U.S. ARMY RECREATIONAL CAMP in an arch across the top. In the center is a large numeral 5, with JEFFERSON PARK above and SEATTLE, WASHINGTON below. In the bottom frame BUCKS, and then Redeemable by merchandise during our victory fair only! in small print below "bucks." In the left field is a navy crest (eagle and shield over crossed anchors); in the right field an Army hat insignia crest. Counters 5 in the upper corners contrast to FIVE in the lower corners. There is one serial number, above the army crest; in this case "No 00002," which added to my interest in the piece.

The other side, in green has exactly the same frame, with the arched major inscription, BUCKS at the bottom, and the convertibility clause below that. In the center is a portrait of Uncle Sam; above that in small letters Jefferson Park Seattle, Washington spread across under the major inscription. In the left field is the seal of the city of Seattle, with This Certificate is Tender/for Merchandise Only above. In the right field, FIVE/in merchandise. No serial number, no signatures on this side. Were the colors reversed, we would have no problem assigning this as the face side, but since the other side is black and has the serial number, it looks more like a face; it's a tossup.

So, who issued this, when, for what? I didn't know. Local TAMS members know about the issue, and say that they are not worth a lot (but are rarely seen). One traded in a CAA auction several years ago for about $50. For several years I showed my SN #2 piece in my personal exhibit at the Puyallup Fair (a 17-day event at which the PNNA has a staffed table for all hours that the fair is open), hoping that someone who knew the piece would stop and talk to me about it (I still show it every year, now accompanied by a 10 bucks note).

Finally, in 1996 someone did stop. He said that he had a few of these pieces at home. He had received them after the war (late 1945) while he was a kid with a paper route on Fort Lewis; a soldier/customer had given them to him to use as play money. He had done so for a while, and then they ended up in a cigar box (of course!), where they still were. He knew nothing about how they had been used when they were issued. I made an appointment to go see them.

This is what he had in his hoard:

5 bucks - all with SN: 00261, 00557, 00907, 01043, 01702, 01770, 02041, 03373

10 bucks w/SN: 01509, 01635, 02181

10 bucks, 3 pcs w/o SN

10 bucks, 2 pcs w/o SN but w/ stamped signature on the black side, bottom right; the signature seems to be Ralph J. Sitts [Setts, Selts, Gitts, Getts, Gelts]

Although denser or lighter printing variations exist among notes, there is no correlation to the presence or lack of SN. All paper seems to be the same, cream wove bond w/out watermark. Some 5 buck pieces have a defective "BY" in green side lower legend (part of the bottom of each character is missing). Note the high serial numbers (and the fact that separate blocks of numbers were apparently not used for the different denominations); this was not a puny emission.

I bought three pieces from him for $100 and retained two others to put in the 1997 CPMX auction (one of each denomination). However, CAA said they wanted a minimum total consignment of $1000, so the two pieces went to the NW TAMS auction in Vancouver, Wash in August 1997. I don't recall what they brought, as the realization check was passed directly to the owner without going through my accounts, and I did not note the amount in his correspondence file. However, I recall that it was less than I had paid (less than $33.33 per note).

OK, back to the when and where. Jefferson Park still exists; it is primarily a golf course on the ridge of Beacon Hill in Seattle between the old Public Health hospital (now corporate HQ for Amazon.com) and the VA hospital. I visited and talked to the staff; they knew nothing of any recreational camp in 1945.

I went to the UW library and dug into the Seattle Times on microfiche. I found the following (in addition to the many articles on Admiral Darlan that I mentioned last week):

6 Sept 1945 Seattle Times, p17--Army/Navy recreational camp with a capacity of 1000 beds, but 1200 were accommodated on the previous Saturday night. Camp commander Capt Haywood A. Moncrief Jr. [The camp's purpose was to provide overnight accommodations for soldiers and sailors on pass in Seattle, so they would not have to return to camp or ship in the evening.]

18 October 1945 Seattle Times, p2--camp, under the administrative control of Fort Douglas, scheduled to close on 1 November. Various Seattle service organizations object to the early closure, and ask that it remain open for several more months. No further mention noted through 31 October.

I don't recall why I stopped looking right at 31 October; probably ran out of time that day (it took quite a while to look through a week's worth of papers on fiche). Of course, I started searching immediately after VJ day looking for something about the "victory fair" that is cited on the notes; no mention of that was ever found, as either a military or a city function.

In my opinion, the denominations represent a nickel and a dime. $5 or $10 was far too high a denomination for such scrip in 1945.

As far as I know, the fellow who had them in 1997 still has them. Anyone want me to contact him again?

HOT CONTACT LIST - DEALER & RESOURCE LIST

Below is the BNR Press Hot Contact List. This list serves several functions. Obviously it is an outreach by the dealers listed for your business. Most of them buy and sell MPC. Others organize shows or publish periodicals, or furnish information dedicated to this field. They have supported the new Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates with their advertising.

They deserve your support and patronage!

Page 220, #884/2r - Series 641 .50 Replacements
On page 284, it is broken down into 2 printings. That's correct, BUT, on page 220 he lists only (1) printing reported. It should "list" both first and second printings.
Guy Araby (date listed 04 APRIL 2002)

Page 287, Series 661 Series Summary, 25 cent note: the "list" shows "#CU as 10(7) . It should read, 8(7). As only 8 are known in CU. Just recount P.289.
Guy Araby (date listed 08 APRIL 2002)

Page 398, Series #541 $10 on "UNC." price is $2500, on P.214 the UNC. price is $3500. Also the rest of the prices
don't match all the way to "VG" on this issue. They should be the same price.

FEATURED ARTICLE

by Bruce Potter

Recently I attended the ONA coin show in Oklahoma City. I didn't find any big treasures, but I there were 6 or 7 dealers who had some MPC notes. Only saw one note I was interested in but it was priced to high for me and the owner wasn't interested in bickering over prices. So I guess he still has it!! The dealers there were really great in sharing their experiences and knowledge especially with "new" or younger collectors....no matter what the field of collection covered. That's one thing special about "gifted" dealers.....their patience, help, and friendship in helping to entice a younger/new collector into the hobby. I tip my hat to the all the people who volunteered their time and labor in organizing and running the coin show. NOW.....a short story to pass on to others.....

I was bulls///// (oops!!!) was conversing with another veteran today and he was sharing some information with me that I thought was interesting. He was a Corpsman (Medic?) in the Navy and was stationed for awhile at Guantanamo Bay "Camp". This was around 1968. He stated that there are two airstrips there. The "Camp" is on the SE corner of Cuba. Any aircraft landing at the airstrip must fly east of the eastcoast circle around to the southcoast and then make their approach from the south side and fly a tight flight pattern in order to fly and land on U.S. base there. The larger landing strip is on the west side of the camp and that is where the planes normally land and take-of....not much room for errors. He said occasionally planes making an approach to land were actually fired upon by small arms fire of Cuban troops outside the wired perimeter. The other airstrip is to the east side of the base camp. I believe he said that helicopters used to land there. He believes that small strip is where the "captive" guerillas from Afghanistan are currently being held.

(Back to 1968 era).....he stated that it was normal for Cubans to be hired and brought onto the base to do various labor and tasks. He stated that these individuals were outstanding workers and very dedicated in their assigned tasks. I asked about the type pay they used there. He stated that the U.S. troops were paid in U.S. money and MPC notes were not used there.

He further stated that "Cuban/Castro" rules stated that the "hired" Cubans COULD NOT enter the U.S. base with any Cuban possessions on them. Therefore, special facilities had to be provided for the "Cuban" workers where they could disrobe and leave their clothes (and possessions) behind (I imagine in lockers) and then travel to (via hallways?) to a facility on the U.S. side of the perimeter where they were handed matching work uniforms for them to wear. Once, dressed in the "worksuits", they were then bussed to various parts of the base to conduct their work tasks. When they left the U.S. base.....I believe this process was reversed. Anyway....on payday....the Cuban troops were paid their salary with a U.S. paycheck. They were then taken to a facility where their paycheck was cashed and converted into U.S. cash. They had to keep their paycheck for return to Cuban territory.

Apparently, when they returned to their homes, they had to convert their money into Cuban Pesos (?). Apparently they gave their U.S. money (along with the Check stub) to banking officials. This way the Cuban officials knew exactly how much money they had earned. The "officials" reduced their wages with a special "Cuban tax" which was 60% of their pay. However, the Cuban workers were still happy with only 40% of their pay. Apparently, the 40% pay was still way above the normal/average wages in Cuba. (This story is via my memory of our conversations so some discrepancies are possible.)

Fred:

I just finished perusing my copy of the new MPC catalog and I have one question. In the section on military banking facilities there is a picture of a check for the MBC at Wheeling Air Base in Libya in the amount of $.76. Since US current was prohibited in theater, how could this check be paid out in MPC since there was no $.01 denomination?
Regards,

EDITORIAL

Hello Gramsters! Good news for those of you who need a key note to add to your set. I am offering some of my key notes for sale below in the for sale section, and before I list on eBay. Consider this a special preview offer for Gramsters, as I need to raise funds for a recent purchase & your help would be very much appreciated. You will note, I have put my Series 541 $5 up for sale... At this time, I am unaware of any other for sale. Here's your chance to fill that hole.

Readers: Still need articles for Grams.

FEATURED ARTICLE

POW Camps

by Larry Smulczenski

In response to my request for information on POW camps, Tom Koch of Seattle sent me a very interesting newspaper article published this year in the Seattle Times. This article had to do with a riot that occurred at Fort Lawton, Washington between black American soldiers and Italian internees. It featured the case of a black American, Samuel Snow of Leesburg Florida who was involved in the riot. Sam received his draft notice at the age of 19 and saw this as a chance to get ahead. He became an Army dockworker, and was shipped to Fort Lawton in Seattle.

When Italy surrendered in 1943, Italian prisoners weren't allowed to return home, but if they chose to swear allegiance to the U.S., their lot in life improved dramatically. They wore blue armbands and came and went pretty much as the pleased. They went to ballgames and took trips to Mount Rainier. They courted local girls who found them exotic and charming. Many were invited into the homes of local families for Sunday dinner.

The preferential treatment of Italians on the base created tensions with both white and black enlisted men. A day before the riot, a group of white soldiers shoved some Italians for crowding them at the post's market. Black servicemen accustomed to segregated quarters and white commanding officers, bristled that former enemies enjoyed freedoms they could only imagine. The Italian soldiers were given the run of the camp, welcomed in the markets and mess halls. Off base, the Italians went into establishments that legally excluded blacks. The black troops complained about being assigned the worst jobs around the fort.

On the evening of August 14, 1944, Snow was in his barracks, putting his name on his uniform. On another floor, a group of men played craps while others milled around. The black troops were being shipped out the next day, and rumor had it that the men were going to haul equipment across mountains leading to the invasion of Japan. Around 11 p.m., four black soldiers walked by the camp entrance, passing three Italians along the way. Words were exchanged and one of the soldiers stepped toward the Italians. An Italian prisoner threw a punch leveling the soldier. His buddies carried him, unconscious, back to the barracks. Witnesses said a black corporal blew a whistle and hundreds of men tumbled from their barracks and headed to the Italian area for revenge. Some of the soldiers tore down a wooden fence along the way and took picket posts as weapons. They hurled rocks at the Italian barracks and chased internees under buildings and into the woods. Four white officers and 20 Italians were injured as black soldiers swarmed through the Italian area. The next day, the body of an Italian Private was discovered hanging from a cable on the fort obstacle course.

After the corporal's whistle, Snow says he came out of his barracks to see what was going on and followed the crowd to the Italian area. He was knocked unconscious, probably by a thrown rock, and woke up in the hospital. He says he never intended to harm anyone, and he never saw what hit him, but he signed a statement admitting that he was "fixing for a fight". After a short investigation, 40 men were charged with rioting, three others who allegedly directed the attack were charged with murder.

Leon Jaworski, of Watergate fame, was the prosecutor. In the end, 28 defendants were convicted of rioting. Two of the three men charged with murder were convicted of manslaughter, while the third was convicted of rioting. Sentences ranged from one to 15 years. Samuel Snow served a year in the stockade picking up garbage and cigarette butts around Fort Lawton, finally dishonorably discharged and sent home to Leesburg. Because of the dishonorable discharge he was ineligible for the GI Bill and he couldn't pay for an education or training. He landed a job as a janitor at a Methodist church and worked there for more than two decades although he never attended services there because blacks were not allowed as parishioners. With the help of his congressman, Snow got his discharge upgraded so that could receive health benefits and other benefits. He proudly notes that he has been married for 52 years and has put his two children through college. He owns orange groves in Leesburg and some clapboard rental homes, which he plans to pass on to his children. Sam Snow is the only remaining survivor of the 43 soldiers court-martialed for the 1943 riot at Fort Lawton, Washington.

We currently know of no POW or Internment camp chits that were issued at Fort Lawton. It seems highly probable that they were with the number of internees and the freedom that they enjoyed mentioned in this article. Maybe one will be uncovered in the future just like the White Sulphur Springs chit that we talked about last week.

DID YOU KNOW-- That on this date in 1941, the British cruiser Suffolk sighted the German battleship Bismarck. The entire British Atlantic fleet was mobilized to chase the German ship. The Bismarck was eventually caught and sunk.

BOOK REVIEW

The Engraver's Line by Gene Hessler

100 Copies Only--NLG Award Winning Book with signed engravings

One hundred numbered copies of The Engraver's Line have been prepared by the author. This original version of the NLG award-winning book, and a supplement, includes five engraved insertions, four signed by the engravers. The engravers represented differ from those who signed their work in the sold-out special edition when this book was first published.

One of the signatures, on a sheet with postage stamps attached that he engraved, is that of Edward R. Felver, the engraver of The Bouquet and the B52A Bomber ($20 MPC backs, Schwan 908 & 918).

In addition, and while supply lasts, those who purchase any edition, regular or special, will receive an additional sheet of engravings created at American Bank Note Company. These will be mailed separately and can be sent only to an address in the U.S.

The author will be at the BNR Press table at the Memphis International Paper Money Show to sign books.

As line engraving is being replaced by mechanical and computer-imaging methods, The Engraver's Line pays homage to artists from an era that has all but disappeared. This encyclopedia of paper money and postage stamp art and biographies was first released in 1993, including a special edition with signed engravings. Recently, different engravers suggested that the author prepare a second special edition. The result, 100 copies of the original edition with signed engravings for those who appreciate the art of security engraving.

The Engraver's Line, with 444 pages and over 500 illustrations, is the first major composite listing of designers and engravers of bank notes and postage stamps.

Some of the most beautiful bank notes were designed and engraved by major American artists like F.O.C. Darley, Asher B. Durand, Walter Shirlaw and Kenyon Cox. However, their paper money art is seldom mentioned in art studies even though these designs were seen and handled by more people than those who saw the work of these artists in art galleries and museums.

What some have said about The Engraver's Line:

"(The Engraver's Line) will become a standard reference like Mr. Hessler's other works." Barbara Mueller, The Essay Proof Journal.

"It has been a valuable addition to our reference collection because it is unique. It includes biographies of artists, illustrators, engravers and printers that are not found in any other reference source." S. Frechette, Art Division of the St. Louis Public Library

"This comprehensive work on engraving is essential for anyone studying the history of engraving.... Numerous illustrations make clear the painstaking detail involved in each engraving. I found the book to be comprehensive and well-researched." A.J. Horton, Manager Art and Music Dept., Cincinnati Public Library

Special edition with engravings $145; regular edition $85. For each book, add $5 for postage and insurance. Send check or money order to: Gene Hessler, PO Box 31144, Cincinnati, OH 45231. For a copy of the supplement only, send $5. Outside the U.S. add $15 (check on a U.S. bank or instrument payable in U.S. funds) for postage and registration.

Requests for a specific numbered copy will be honored, if possible, but cannot be guaranteed. Specify if you wish the book to be signed by the author and to whom.

MAIL CALL

In response to Jim Downeys' letter in Gram 629:

I'm sure many people have replied with the answer by now but I'll respond just in case. I assume Libya was like other MPC countries (my personal experience was in Korea) and no US currency was in use EXCEPT for one cent pieces. The persons cashing the check would have gotten a 50 cent and 25 cent MPC and a good old US one cent copper coin.

The MPC GRAM has been moved to a different server and I need feed back on the performance of the new server. There have been many gram subscribers that haven't received the gram for some odd reason. I would like to point those gram subscribers to the web site where you can receive back issueswww.papermoneyworld.net/grams/index.html

I highly recommend the above book to MPC Collectors, as there is quite a lot of info contained about the various vignettes on MPC Notes. I have to admit, after MPC Catalog and WW2 remembered, I found it a necessity to purchase it.

(date listed: 02 APRIL 2002)

Two serial numbers listed for the second printing of

Series 472 .50 cent notes. The first serial number listed is obviously in error as a nine digit number: C040351392C

Correct Serial Number is: C04035139C

D Freyser (date listed 10 April 2002)

Start Number is incorrect. It appears as:

(start) D14784001D (end) D14784000D

Correct start number should be: D09408001D
PK6 (date listed: 03 APRIL 2002)

Page 214, #855/r2 - Series 541 $1 Replacements,
Ending serial number is incorrect
Correct number is F1112000
(date listed: 02 APRIL 2002)

Page 220, #884/2r - Series 641 .50 Replacements
On page 284, it is broken down into 2 printings. That's correct, BUT, on page 220 he lists only (1) printing reported. It should "list" both first and second printings.
Guy Araby (date listed 04 APRIL 2002)

Page 287, Series 661 Series Summary, 25 cent note: the "list" shows "#CU as 10(7) . It should read, 8(7). As only 8 are known in CU. Just recount P.289.
Guy Araby (date listed 08 APRIL 2002)

Page 398, Series #541 $10 on "UNC." price is $2500, on P.214 the UNC. price is $3500. Also the rest of the prices don't match all the way to "VG" on this issue. They should be the same price.

Oral History Interview with BERNARD BERNSTEIN Part VI

July 23, 1975

by Richard D. McKinzie

submitted by Fred Schwan [comments in square brackets]

We had some of the French with us. I personally made available office space in my group of offices, for a French treasury official, Guindey, whom I had known from North Africa. There also was in London at the time as part of General de Gaulle's staff, Herve Alphand. Alphand was an Inspecteur des Finances at the French Treasury and had been the financial attache´ at the French Embassy in Washington. I had known him from Washington days. We worked some with the French but mostly civil affairs and military government planning was between the British and ourselves.

My British opposite number was a British brigadier, Michael Babington Smith who was a well-known British banker, and the nephew of the then Earl of Elgin. Babington Smith and I worked quite well together. We dealt also with the British Treasury and War Office people and with U.S. Treasury personnel at the American Embassy in London. We also dealt with finance officials of Belgium, Luxembourg, Holland and Norway. The main difficulty we had was with de Gaulle.

The decision had been made at the top governmental level that we would in connection with the invasion of France use a currency which was printed at the U.S. Treasury, which we were treating as supplemental francs. The normal French franc was issued by the Bank of France. The supplemental franc didn't say who issued it, it just said, "Issued in France." It had on one side the French flag and the words in French "Égalité Liberté Fraternité," and on the other side the number of francs, whatever number it was. We had a proclamation saying that this currency was legal tender in France.

SHAEF headquarters hadn't taken the currency problem up directly with de Gaulle, until the last day or two, a couple of days before the invasion. I think there was a great deal of fear, especially on the American side, that de Gaulle and the Free French leaked too much. Maintaining security on this thing was crucial, of crucial importance at that time.

A clever cover plan had been worked out, especially by the British, to convince the Germans that the invasion of Normandy was just a feint and that the real invasion was going to be at Calais. This cover plan was so effective that that's what Hitler was expecting. He was waiting for the main invasion to come in at Calais and he did not move some of his troops into Normandy as quickly as he might otherwise have done.

In any event, we at the SHAEF headquarters, in accordance with instructions, didn't clear this currency matter with the French. We had understood that at the Government level in Washington there had been appropriate clearance with the French. We didn't know what were the discussions in Washington. All of a sudden de Gaulle heard that we were going to issue franc currency in France without his authorization. Shortly after the invasion began he made a violent attack on the supplemental franc currency and called it--whatever the French equivalent is--counterfeit money.

Well, this was occurring at the very time of the invasion of France. A very big disturbance was created at SHAEF headquarters and General Marshall was drawn into the problem. I remember reading in a book about General Marshall that he was very bitter about de Gaulle for threatening the effectiveness of the invasion. In view of President Roosevelt's policy respecting France and de Gaulle the decision about the currency to be used was up to the President.

Our policy had been to say this was currency which we were issuing, we would deal later with the redemption question and what countries were obligated for what amount, and so on. But this heated discussion went on. I remember one day being called into General Smith's office while he was dictating a cable to Washington on the currency question.

I suggested to him that he was saying something a little contrary to the policy that had come to us from Washington. He said he would take care of that. I could see that he and General Eisenhower were trying to work out something of an accommodation with de Gaulle, because General Eisenhower wanted the full cooperation of de Gaulle and the French resistance group and wanted no interference with the invasion. Gradually an arrangement was worked out that the supplemental currency would be treated as though it was issued by the National Committee that was under the control of de Gaulle.

You will recall at the time President Roosevelt was very anxious to have, what we would say today "all his options left open." He didn't want to have de Gaulle in a position where he could force himself on France. The President wanted the French to make their own decision as to who was going to be their leader and what form of government they were going to have and so on. But de Gaulle was maneuvering against the President's policy.

General de Gaulle had considerable success. By the time Paris was liberated on August 25, 1944 he was pretty well recognized as the provisional government of France. I was sent forward to Paris to deal with financial matters. I came from London to General Eisenhower's advance headquarters in Normandy at a town called Grenville and then drove up to Paris arriving during the night of September 1, 1944. September 1, 1944 was not only one week after Paris was liberated but was five years to the day since my wife and I had to leave Paris on September 1, 1939 when war broke out.

I worked with the French Treasury and Bank of France officials arranging for monies to be made available to the American military forces. Gradually franc currency issued by the Bank of France was substituted for the supplemental franc currency. Credit arrangements were set up and records kept of how much franc currency was made available to the Americans, how much we used for supplies, and so on.

In the fall of 1944 the President of the Bank of France and other high officials of the Bank of France gave a luncheon in my honor at the Bank of France. In 1945 I was one of six officers of SHAEF G-5 awarded a Legion of Honor by the French Provisional Government. The French Provisional Government took over the control of France. We had a staff of civil affairs personnel stationed in Paris.

I had on the finance side, first a Major Philip Allen, who was the son-in-law of Clarence Dillon and the brother-in-law of Douglas Dillon. I remember that first week I was in Paris talking to Phil Allen at great length and trying to persuade him to stay on in Paris on this assignment. He wanted to do more active military service. He ultimately got himself transferred. I replaced Allen with an officer by the name of Colonel John Harriman. Harriman was a cousin, I think, of Averell Harriman. I put Colonel Harriman in as our senior financial man in Paris. Essentially the position just involved a kind of watching and reporting back if there were any problems that might affect the security of the Allied military forces. But of course the French at that point were just as interested as the Americans and the British in the successful movement of the Allied armies that was going on across France.

We also had small civil affairs staffs in Belgium and Holland and Norway. I think Norway was mostly handled by the British. I dealt, for instance, with the Belgian Minister of Finance, Camille Gutt. The Belgians had decided to call in all their outstanding currency because much of it was in the hands of Germans and in the hands of collaborators. The Belgians felt they could only get adequate control by calling in all the outstanding currency and issuing a new currency. We had an interest in seeing that the interests of the Allied military forces were protected and the Belgians were very cooperative with us on the matter.

The 2002 ANA "Military Numismatics" class is going to be the best one yet! Currently, we have 8 students signed up -- all eager to learn about the Numismatics of World War II, including MPC's, paper money, bonds, coins and medals. There are still a couple of slots open -- so it's not too late to make plans to attend the ANA Summer Seminar. See <http://www.money.org/sumsem2002.html> for more information.

Dear Editor

I was reading the Department of the Army 57th Signal Company Information Letter to Incoming Personnel dated 21 October 1969. The Company Headquarters were at Long Binh, S. Vietnam with six logistic support units located in Can Tho, Tan Son Nhat (Saigon's Airport), Qui Nhon, Nha Trang, and Phu Bai.

The information letter addressed in Section 7 the use of "MACV ration cards." Here is the extraction from the letter:

7. MACV ration cards are issued to all individuals. The following restrictions apply:

- a. Cards are not transferable.
- b. Sections of the card may not be removed from the central portions. Any card without the original four sections intact is void.
- c. Exchange merchandise may not be transferred by sale, gift, exchange, or loan except as provided in the appropriate directives.
- d. Cards may not be sold, bartered, or placed in pawn. Only one card per individual is authorized.

Phil Goldstein wrote in great details about the currency control cards but this was some thing entirely different, since it contained removable "sections" as addressed in 7.b. Does any one have any scans, pictures, description, etc. of such item? Were ration cards the same as currency control cards? The big question is "does any one have one for sale?"

Best regards,

Trung T. Nguyen, P.E.

EDITORIAL

I have come across the MACV Ration Cards from time to time in my travels, and own a couple. They seem to have been issued for the sales control of commodities such as tobacco for a 12 month period, and the one time purchase of radios, tape recorders, cameras, electric fans, record players (remember those?), typewriters, etc. (Can you imagine humping a typewriter into the bush? I guess it was for the REMF's...) even a REFRIGERATOR! What I find most intriguing, is the way the electronics are "controlled": they are listed as:

camera (still) - camera (movie) - radio $20 & under - radio $30 & under - tape recorder $75 & under - tape recorder over $75 and so on.

The Ration Cards are formally known as MACV Form 333 and the two I own were printed on 1 Apr 68.

1948 Currency Reform (Germany)

(The following appeared in the July 26, 1948 edition of Pravda and is translated from the Russian.)

submitted by Jim Downey

'General Clay's Marks'

From Pravda's special correspondent in Berlin Exactly a week ago, the high commander of the American occupied troops, General Clay, and the high commander of English troops, General Robertson, announced in writing to Soviet Union Marshal Sokolsky that separate monetary reform will not be extended to Western sectors of Berlin.

Today on the streets of the Western sectors of the German capital, it was easy to learn the value of their official declarations.

The English and American occupation authorities are circulating a new currency, fabricated in the United States. Germans already nicknamed them "General Clay's Marks." It became known recently that four days before Clay and Robertson's declaration, "General Clay's Marks" were secretly brought into Berlin in bags on planes.

Already, the divisive actions by the authorities of the Western occupation zones have made life extraordinarily painful in Berlin. I drove through empty streets of the Western regions of the German capital. Everywhere, stores, pharmacies, shops were closed. From conversations with inhabitants of the city I was able to deduce what kind of measures were taken to attempt to tie them to "General Clay's Marks." All the inhabitants of the Western sectors are obliged to have stamps in their passports certifying receipt of those Marks. The occupying authorities warned that people who do not have stamps in their passports in the following month will not get their ration cards.

But this is not all; the governments of the Western countries are seeking, in all possible ways, to prohibit the process of exchanging the old currency bills to the new money from the Soviet zone and the Greater Berlin region. This exchange is being carried out in defense of the interests of the German inhabitants, who lose out as a result of the flow of worthless money from Western Germany.

In the Soviet sector of occupied Berlin, about 1,300 exchange points are open, which could be used by all city dwellers without exception. However, Western sector police were ordered to destroy all posters that announced the terms of exchanging the old currency bills for the new ones -- Reichsmarks and Rentmarks with specially glued coupons -- and that displayed the location of exchange points in the Soviet sector of occupied Berlin. Policemen carefully tore those posters off the walls and arrested the employees of the advertising company that was appointed to display them.

It has come to such a point that on Thursday, English patrols tried to stop pedestrians who were walking to the exchange points. In order to intimidate inhabitants of the Western sectors of Berlin and at the same time prevent them from obtaining the new currency of the Soviet zone, American occupational authorities send their armored cars to the city streets. ... The desire of the rulers of the Western countries to cause financial and economic chaos in the capital of Germany is met by serious anger from Berlin's working people.

Just recently, delegations from Berlin's major factories appeared at City Council, urging the introduction in Berlin of the currency that is already available in the Soviet zone. Delegates sneaked into the council's meeting room, handed out more than 40 resolutions of protest against the introduction of "General Clay's Marks" in the Western sectors of Berlin, and demanded that the council should declare single currency reform for all Berlin.

Near the council building, a spontaneous demonstration arose in which thousands of Berlin's workers took part. Delegates of factories and businesses waited until late evening for the council's statement. It is hard to report how deeply they were angered when they learned that factions of Social Democrat and bourgeois parties, bowing to Western occupying countries, passed a decision demanding that the occupying authorities admit as official currency in Berlin not only the new money of the Soviet occupation zone but also "General Clay's Marks."

Today on Potsdamerstrasse in the American sector, I had a chance to see how police, fulfilling the requests of American authorities, violently treated those who act in defense of single currency reform, in defense of the unity of Germany. I saw how they dispersed a group of pedestrians who took the liberty to say a few uncomplimentary words about the separate reform undertaken in the Western occupation zones. This is how the German policemen, who hurried in an American car to "the scene of crime," acted:

They twisted the hands of people they arrested, beat them and threw them into the car. Among the arrested was a young girl, nearly a teen-ager, a newspaper salesman, and even a cameraman who came to photograph the incredible scene of intimidation of innocent people. The news about tough treatment of working people is coming from the Western zones of occupied Germany. For example in Nuernberg, at the City Council, a crowd of 2,000 assembled and waited a few hours for a currency exchange. Police started to disperse the crowd. The operation was commanded by the police chief of Nuremberg. A few wounded people in critical condition were taken to a hospital.

The facts are telling that the currency separation, carried out by order of the rulers of the Western countries, has sharpened the already difficult situation in Bizonia. Bavarian state parliament member Max Drexel had to admit that as a result of the separate reform, the number of unemployed in Western Germany rose to 6 million or 7 million. In Hamburg, businesses laid off more than 2,000 people during first three days after the introduction of the separate currency reform. Within the next month, further layoffs of about 20,000 people are expected.

In Nuernberg, (sic) the "Konrad" factory, which manufactured carbon electrodes, is closed. Here, and in other major cities of Western Germany, construction work has ceased, home-building has ceased -- the city councilors do not have the financial means to pay the workers. To minimize the catastrophic size of unemployment, the Bavarian labor minister has directed that working hours be cut in half.

The situation of Western Germany's inhabitants remains hopeless. Some time ago, the press in the Western occupation zones reported the arrival of a load of textile goods from the U.S.A. as an unusual "American blessing." Soon, some details became clear. Those goods were destined to western Africa, but it turned out to be of poor quality and did not find any buyers.

Then brave American entrepreneurs redirected those goods from African colonies to a European one -- Bizonia. So, after the separate currency reform, textiles rejected by modest Africans appeared in Bizonia. Western German economists foresee an increase in economic tensions. This is already clear because prices started to climb just after currency reform. In Munich, for example, the price of butter and cigarettes doubled in four days. Similar news is coming from Frankfurt. Not only are prices of mass consumption goods rising. Also of concern is the price of coal: it may rise, and if it does, it will be a significant increase. Prices for briquettes will rise by 35 percent, and prices for brown coal by 50 percent. It should also be mentioned that economic chaos, which had sharpened in Bizonia after the introduction of separate reform, hit hardest for mid-sized and small businesses, which lack capital. As a result of separate currency reform, their owners had to close or sell to bigger industrialists, which is putting the concentration of capital in the hands of big German monopolists in the West. Simultaneously acting through covert agents, American concerns are even more actively purchasing factories and businesses they find interesting.

This is the role played by "General Clay's Marks" in Western Germany. American monopolists would like to use the same weapon in the region of Greater Berlin, which also appeared to be part of the Soviet occupation zone in terms of economics. The democratic society of Berlin is expressing its belief that, regardless of all the maneuvers of those who would divide Berlin, in the end the currency of Berlin will be the money of the Soviet zone.

EDITORIAL

The above article on the West German Currency Reform of 1948, is an interesting read. Not so much for the numismatic standpoint, but the propaganda. Since the Cold War has ended, I feel that the majority of the general population has conveniently forgotten the measures both sides took to belittle the opposite side. The above article is a classic case. In conclusion, after reading the article submitted by Jim Downey, I only had one thought. We, the United States of America, with all our faults, foibles, and embarrassing political situations did not crumble into a selection of separate states and countries bickering over territories and governments.

We won the Cold War. Thanks to the countless veterans who sacrificed their lives. Remember them, come tomorrow: Memorial Day. A day that many view as a "day off" to go shopping, visiting yard sales and flea markets.. lighting up the bar-b-que... In the local towns by me, the posts of the VFW, DAR, American Legion, all come together to march up Main Street, in full uniform, rain or shine. May I suggest a little drive to a small town, and watch the veterans? That my fellow readers, is what Memorial Day is all about. And that I believe is what won the Cold War.

Page 220, #884/2r - Series 641 .50 Replacements

On page 284, it is broken down into 2 printings. That's correct, BUT, on page 220 he lists only (1) printing reported. It should "list" both first and second printings.

Guy Araby (date listed 04 APRIL 2002)

Page 287, Series 661 Series Summary, 25 cent note: the "list" shows "#CU as 10(7) . It should read, 8(7). As only 8 are known in CU. Just recount P.289.

Guy Araby (date listed 08 APRIL 2002)

Page 398, Series #541 $10 on "UNC." price is $2500, on P.214 the UNC. price is $3500. Also the rest of the prices don't match all the way to "VG" on this issue. They should be the same price.

FEATURED ARTICLE

by Jim Downey

I was doing some research on-line recently and stumbled across a webpage titled Australian Treaty Series. The address is <http://www.austlii.edu.au/au/other/dfat/treaties/>. It houses the complete text of every treaty to which Australia was a party since 1900. I looked for comparable sites for the United States and the other major countries, but found none. Treaties deposited with the United Nations are available on-line but only through a paid subscription service. US treaties can be found in print in the Treaties and International Agreement Series (TIAS). Unfortunately, the complete TIAS is usually found only in the libraries of major universities and law schools.

I found a number of treaties on the Australian site that made reference to military currency. These included various treaties of peace at the end of WWII and Status of Forces Agreements. Below is the relevant text from the treaties I found.

I. WWII Peace Treaties

A. AUSTRIA (15 May 1955)

The Government of Austria shall assume full responsibility for Allied military currency of denominations of five schillings and under issued in Austria by the Allied Military Authorities, including all such currency in circulation at the coming into force of the present Treaty. Notes issued by the Allied Military Authorities of denominations higher than five schillings shall be destroyed and no claims may be made in this connection against any of the Allied or Associated Powers.

B. ITALY (10 February 1947)

The Italian Government shall assume full responsibility for all Allied military currency issued in Italy by the Allied military authorities, including all such currency in circulation at the coming into force of the present Treaty.

C. HUNGARY (10 February 1947)

The Hungarian Government shall assume full responsibility for all Allied Military currency issued in Hungary by the Allied military authorities, including all such currency in circulation at the coming into force of the present Treaty.

D. ROMANIA (10 February 1945)

The Romanian Government shall assume full responsibility for all Allied military currency issued in Romania by the Allied military authorities including all such currency in circulation at the coming into force of the present Treaty.

[It is interesting to note the difference in the treaty for Austria that limits the Austrian government's responsibility to those notes of five schillings and smaller. I assume this is due to the late date of this treaty (1955). WWII Remembered indicates the Austrian AMC was issued until 30 December 1945 for 10-1000 schilling notes and 24 December 1947 for the lower denominations. The Austrian National Bank began issuing notes 29 May 1945. The smallest notes issued were 5 schilling notes of 1945 and 1951. Austria did issue coins up to 2 schillings during this period. My presumption is that by 1955 the notes of the Austrian National Bank had effectively replaced AMC as the circulating medium and repudiating AMC at this point would not have an effect on the economy; however, it is possible that the smaller notes remained in circulation due to the absence of notes of similar denominations being issued by the Austrian National Bank. (For what it is worth while I am on the subject of Austrian AMC, there is a scene in Orson Wells' adaptation of Graham Greene's novel The Third Man, which takes place in post-war Vienna, in which Joseph Cotten's character tries to buy a drink in a local bar with AMC, but the bar won't accept "army money.")

Although Italian currency circulated side-by-side with AMC, WWII Remembered indicates that Italian AMC remained valid until 30 June 1951. There was undoubtedly a vast quantity of AMC lire still in circulation in 1947 such that repudiation of it at that time would have had a negative effect on the Italian economy.

The Hungarian and Romanian treaties are interesting since we do not usually categorize the Soviet occupation issues for these countries as AMC. Nevertheless, the treaties certainly identify them as such. I also reviewed the treaties with Japan, Finland and Bulgaria. None of these treaties made reference to currency.]

Status of Forces Agreements

A. UN FORCES IN JAPAN (1950)

Article IX

1. Non-appropriated fund organizations authorized and regulated by the United Nations forces, may be established in the facilities in use by the United Nations forces for the use of members of such forces and of the civilian components, and their dependents. Except as otherwise provided in this Agreement, such organizations shall not be subject to Japanese regulations, license, fees, taxes or similar controls.
2. No Japanese tax shall be imposed on sales of merchandise and services by such organizations, but purchases within Japan of merchandise and supplies by such organizations shall be subject to Japanese taxes.
3. Except as such disposal may be authorized by the Japanese authorities and the United Nations forces in accordance with mutually agreed conditions, goods which are sold by such organizations shall not be disposed of in Japan to persons not authorized to make purchases from such organizations.
4. The obligations for the withholding and payment of income tax, local inhabitant tax and social security contributions, and, except as may otherwise be mutually agreed, the conditions of employment and work, such as those relating to wages and supplementary payments, the conditions for the protection of workers, and the rights of workers concerning labour relations shall be those laid down by the legislation of Japan.
5. The organizations provided for in paragraph 1 shall provide such information to the Japanese authorities as if required by Japanese tax legislation.
6. Such organizations may use military payment scrip in their transactions with persons who are authorized to use military payment scrip as provided for in Article XI. Such organizations may not hold deposit accounts in foreign currency with foreign exchange banks in Japan unless otherwise agreed through the Joint Board.

Article X

1. Members of the United Nations forces and of the civilian components, and their dependents shall be subject to the foreign exchange controls of the Government of Japan.
2. The preceding paragraph shall not be construed to preclude the transmission into or outside of Japan of foreign exchange instruments representing the official funds of the Governments of the sending States or realized as a result of service or employment in connection with this Agreement by members of the United Nations forces and of the civilian components, or realized by such persons and their dependents from sources outside Japan.
3. The authorities of the United Nations forces and the Governments of the sending States shall take suitable measures to preclude the abuse of the privileges stipulated in the preceding paragraph or circumvention of the Japanese foreign exchange controls.

Article XI

1. Military payment scrip may be used by persons authorized by the sending States for internal transactions within facilities in use by the sending States in accordance with the regulations of the States which issued the scrip and in whose currency it is denominated. The United Nations forces shall take appropriate action to ensure that authorized persons are prohibited from engaging in transactions involving military payment scrip except as authorized by appropriate regulations of the State which issued the military payment scrip. The Government of Japan shall take necessary action to prohibit unauthorized persons from engaging in transactions involving military payment scrip and, with the aid of the United Nations forces if necessary, shall apprehend and punish any person or persons under its jurisdiction involved in the counterfeiting or uttering of counterfeit military payment scrip.
2. The United Nations forces shall apprehend and punish by due process of law members of the United Nations forces or of the civilian components, or their dependents who tender military payment scrip to unauthorized persons and no obligation shall be due to such unauthorized persons or to the Government of Japan or its agencies from the United Nations forces as a result of any unauthorized use of military payment scrip within Japan.

[This agreement dealt with the status of UN forces in Japan during the Korean War. Although this serves as the legal basis for the use of MPC and BAFSV in Japan (and possibly the Danish "Jutlandia" issues,) it does not answer the question recently raised in the Gram as to whether the other UN forces used MPC or BAFSV.]

B. US-Japan (1960)

ARTICLE XX

1. (a) United States military payment certificates denominated in dollars may be used by persons authorized by the United States for internal transactions within the facilities and areas in use by the United States armed forces. The Government of the United States will take appropriate action to insure that authorized personnel are prohibited from engaging in transactions involving military payment certificates except as authorized by United States regulations. The Government of Japan will take necessary action to prohibit unauthorized persons from engaging in transactions involving military payment certificates and with the aid of United States authorities will undertake to apprehend and punish any person or persons under its jurisdiction involved in the counterfeiting or uttering of counterfeit military payment certificates.

(b) It is agreed that the United States authorities will apprehend and punish members of the United States armed forces, the civilian component, or their dependents, who tender military payment certificates to unauthorized persons and that no obligation will be due to such unauthorized persons or to the Government of Japan or its agencies from the United States or any of its agencies as a result of any unauthorized use of military payment certificates within Japan.

2. In order to exercise control of military payment certificates the United States may designate certain American financial institutions to maintain and operate, under United States supervision, facilities for the use of persons authorized by the United States to use military payment certificates. Institutions authorized to maintain military banking facilities will establish and maintain such facilities physically separated from their Japanese commercial banking business, with personnel whose sole duty is to maintain and operate such facilities. Such facilities shall be permitted to maintain United States currency bank accounts and to perform all financial transactions in connection therewith including receipt and remission of funds to the extent provided by Article XIX, paragraph 2, of this Agreement.

C. US-Australia 1954

Article 16

Should a request be made by the United States for agreement for the use of military payment scrip, Australia would sympathetically consider the request.

[Since I was searching an Australian site, I was only privy to the SOFAs to which Australia was a party. It would be interesting to find out whether the SOFAs or other agreements with any other country not usually associated with MPC contain similar provisions.]

Check marks were omitted from production copies of books. Please check off the following:

Australia: 641, 661, 681, 692
Canada: 461 through and including 591
Korea: 641, 661, 681, 692
New Zealand: 641, 661, 681, 692
Thailand: 641, 661, 681, 692
United States: All
(date listed: 02 APRIL 2002)

Two serial numbers listed for the second printing of

Series 472 .50 cent notes. The first serial number listed is obviously in error as a nine digit number: C040351392C

Correct Serial Number is: C04035139C

D Freyser (date listed 10 April 2002)

Start Number is incorrect. It appears as:

(start) D14784001D (end) D14784000D

Correct start number should be: D09408001D

PK6 (date listed: 03 APRIL 2002)

Ending serial number is incorrect

Correct number is F1112000

(date listed: 02 APRIL 2002)

Page 220, #884/2r - Series 641 .50 Replacements

On page 284, it is broken down into 2 printings. That's correct, BUT, on page 220 he lists only (1) printing reported. It should "list" both first and second printings.

Guy Araby (date listed 04 APRIL 2002)

Page 287, Series 661 Series Summary, 25 cent note: the "list" shows "#CU as 10(7) . It should read, 8(7). As only 8 are known in CU. Just recount P.289.

Guy Araby (date listed 08 APRIL 2002)

Page 398, Series #541 $10 on "UNC." price is $2500, on P.214 the UNC. price is $3500. Also the rest of the prices don't match all the way to "VG" on this issue. They should be the same price.

FEATURED ARTICLE

More Odds & Ends

by Joseph Boling

I am now about 800 emails backlogged; I took time tonight to extract the grams so I could see if anyone had responded to my column of last week. The only reaction I have had was from Tom Koch at a local club meeting; he has one of the Jefferson Park notes, but not both denominations.

Am I the only one for whom Gram 626 was an exact duplicate of Gram 625? Not one person seems to have questioned that, and there was no editorial comment about it. Did anyone get something in 626 that was new?

In further response to Jim Downey's question in Gram 629 about the $0.76 check from Wheelus (not Wheeling) AB, Libya; for many years US cents were used with MPC, as mentioned by John Watta in Gram 630. Later, all transactions were rounded to the closest nickel (that's what the PX and commissary in Heidelberg were doing when I left there in 1992, even though we were using US coins and notes - cents were just too expensive to ship overseas, so all facilities rounded).

In response to Trung Nguyen's query about the difference between ration cards and currency control cards: the ration card was to regulate how many of the controlled items you could buy in the time that each card was valid (normally a year, but there were monthly rations for some commodities, so if you did not use the ration in the month that it was valid for [with a few days of grace], the unused ration expired). The currency control cards were to keep track of the total amount of money you were spending, so that black marketeers could be identified by their excessive spending (over the monthly pay and allowances). Every time you spent over a certain amount (I don't remember how much--probably $20 or $25), you had to present the CCC with the transaction. This included (especially) buying money orders or checks negotiable outside the MPC area. Such cards were still being used in Korea as late as the early 1980s.

In response to the Pravda article about "General Clay's marks" in Gram 632; does anyone know where Bizonia is?

I note the following interesting lot in the Memphis Lyn Knight sale: partial set of matched SN AMC lire, serial number 72. This is a number not reported in SB.

New find: Sunday at a local show, I bought a strip of four chits as follows. seven digit SN [1859921 through ...24] \

IN GT. BRITAIN
AUTO-TICKETS LTD. BIRKENHEAD

Does any reader know which war these were for? The chits are vertical, 32x51mm, perforated horizontally between, printed in black on buff stock. The Angus Bruce collection contains a 1/3 ticket in identical design on gray stock.

And another: Chemical Warfare Pocket Reference Card, RESTRICTED, imprint Hq SOS USAPP 9-43/250M/12077. Anyone know what SOS is? This is the first such item I have seen from the WWII period. It is black on buff, 154x102 folded in the center. It contains instructions on use and care of the gas mask, decon instructions, decon recipes, and use of decon agents, all on one side; and on the other side a table of chemical agents with their physical characteristics, persistency, symptoms, protection, and first aid (eight casualty agents, five harassing agents, and four smoke screen agents). Quite an interesting item (the only connection to military money is that I bought it from a paper money junk box--but not for a junk price).

MAIL CALL

Phil,

I'll have to decline the kind offer to do the 681 article. I am leaving in soon for my summer vacation which involves camping for much of the time until the end of July. So GRAM 681 will come up when I have no access to a computer, or library.

Forwarded to the Gram:

Dear Debbie & Bill,

I read your "Found in Rolls" column in the May 13 issue of "Coin World" and found the "U.S." and anchor on a Indian Head/Buffalo 5 Cents very interesting. I was not in the Navy, but was in the Army and know many men who were in the Navy. Many of these men subscribe to a free emailed newsletter called "MPC Gram". Besides Military Payment Certificates (MPC), the readers of the gram and the articles in it cover many other areas of militaria. I am sure there is someone reading it who would be very interested in adding this piece to their collection. I have cc'ed the editor and publisher of the MPC Gram with this email, but I would request that you contact them and write a short item for the MPC Gram about the piece and offer it for sale to the first collector sending you an email for it. I am really grabbing into thin air about its value, but I would not be surprised if you could sell it for about $15.-20.00. Thank you for your interesting column. I am not a collector of the vast majority of what you find, but I think you guys have found a VERY interesting way to collect.

Page 18, Bottom - Users of Military Payment Certificates

Check marks were omitted from production copies of books. Please check off the following:

Australia: 641, 661, 681, 692

Canada: 461 through and including 591

Korea: 641, 661, 681, 692

New Zealand: 641, 661, 681, 692

Thailand: 641, 661, 681, 692

United States: All

(date listed: 02 APRIL 2002)

Page 201, Bottom Right - Very last sentence on this page

Two serial numbers listed for the second printing of

Series 472 .50 cent notes. The first serial number listed is obviously in error as a nine digit number: C040351392C

Correct Serial Number is: C04035139C

D Freyzer (date listed 10 April 2002)

Page 207, #833/4 - Series 481 .25 4th Printing (table listing serial number breakdowns) line 5

Start Number is incorrect. It appears as:

(start) D14784001D (end) D14784000D

Correct start number should be: D09408001D

PK6 (date listed: 03 APRIL 2002)

Page 214, #855/r2 - Series 541 $1 Replacements,

Ending serial number is incorrect

Correct number is F1112000

(date listed: 02 APRIL 2002)

Page 220, #884/2r - Series 641 .50 Replacements

On page 284, it is broken down into 2 printings. That's correct, BUT, on page 220 he lists only (1) printing reported. It should "list" both first and second printings.

Guy Araby (date listed 04 APRIL 2002)

Page 287, Series 661 Series Summary, 25 cent note: the "list" shows "#CU as 10(7) . It should read, 8(7). As only 8 are known in CU. Just recount P.289.

Guy Araby (date listed 08 APRIL 2002)

Page 398, Series #541 $10 on "UNC." price is $2500, on P.214 the UNC. price is $3500. Also the rest of the prices don't match all the way to "VG" on this issue. They should be the same price.

Guy Araby (date listed 08 APRIL 2002)

FEATURED ARTICLE

The Last Thurski in May

by Larry Smulczenski

The June issue of the Bank Note Reporter arrived in the mail today. It's always a special day when this newspaper arrives. There are always interesting articles, announcements and ads that are featured in this monthly paper. This one was no exception. A wrap around advertisement for Lyn Knight Auctions promoting the Memphis, Dallas and St. Louis Currency Auctions surrounded the paper. The featured article on the first page was again the Knight auction with "4000 lots packed into Memphis". More on that later. Right below that was a picture of a 10 cent Series 541 MPC note with an inverted and misregistured back. The photo leads you to a story about two such amazing errors that went on separate paths, were both culled out of circulation, saved and both surfaced recently. Of course it is Fred Schwan that spins the story in his own inimitable way. It was good to see that Fred and MPC atleast got a small piece of the front page. I won't ruin the story for you if you haven't read it yet, as it is one of those priceless tales that will go down in MPC folklore.

A little post scrip to the article, is that I remember finding an envelope in a filing cabinet on one of our trips to the Archives that had probably 20 different Series 541 errors in it. Everything from miscuts to mislocated serial numbers to smeared ink patterns etc. I am pretty sure there was one of these misregistured notes in the grouping. I was so impress with what i was holding in my hands that I didn't write anything down about this group so I can't swear to it, but there may be a third example out there although it is one that will never end up in a private collection.

Leafing back thru the paper we find that Gramster Dave Seelye has a two page ad listing nothing but MPC and world wide military notes. If your looking to add to your collection, you should be able to find something you need here.

There are also two articles by Joel and Neil Shafer detailing some of the lots in the Knight Memphis Auction. If you haven't gotten your copy of this auction catalog, your missing something. These catalogs are a storehouse of valuable information and are definitely collectors items. The color photographs of offered notes is worth the price of a subscription in itself, but moreso, each auction has brought new finds to the hobby that is adding valuable information to what we already know. One page that really stunned me was the set of specimens from the Cassa Mediterranea di Credito per L'Egitto issue. These are the notes that were printed for the Italian invasion and occupation of Egypt but which were never issued. What a fantastic find this is and to top it off it includes a value not listed in World War II Remembered. I had previously only seen ONE of these notes. That was at least five or six years ago, maybe more, and that one had been professionally reconstructed from two halves. I was thrilled to see that one, but this set is unbelievable. Of course, so is the estimate. For those of you who haven't seen the catalog, the estimated price is $180,000 to $250,000. This has to be a record estimate for a set of world wide notes. If this number is correct and the lot realizes that kind of money, we will really have something to talk about.

Another real find, actually two lots, is the Philippine essays on card or maybe paste-up proposals offered to the Philippine Central Bank circa 1950 by the American Banknote Company. Some of you old time gramsters may remember an article I wrote in Gram 268 about the competition for the contract to print fractional currency for the Philippines won by Security Banknote Co. American Banknote was the low bidder, but could not respond quick enough so did not get the contract. These cards could have been proposals for other values that emerged either from the Philippines or from the American Banknote Company Archives sale. If you don't remember the story and can't retrieve it, email me and I will forward you a copy. The thing that interests me is that the vignette of the peasant girl used on these paste-ups is the same vignette used on the unissued 20 zlotych "liberation note" printed for Poland by ABNC. A number of these Polish notes came out of the ABNC Archive sale. Believe me, I never saw any young lady dressed like that in the Philippines when I was there.

There are hundreds more military notes in this auction catalog that you can spend several evenings drooling over. I'm sure this is going to be another very interesting sale.

DID YOU KNOW?

That as a result of the Doolittle Raid on Tokyo, there was concern that the Japanese would retaliate by attacking the west coast of the United States. In fact they did, but the attack and occupation was on some islands in the Aleutian Island chain of Alaska and not on California. It was on this day in 1943, that the United States reclaimed Attu in the Aleutians from Japanese domination. There are some club chits from Attu that were issued during World War II. The cover for a chit book of that time frame is illustrated in World War II Remembered on page 428.

Excerpt From the June 4 Numismatic News:

A Janesville, Wis., man faces up to 15 years in prison if convicted of stealing paper money May 18 during the Numismatists of Wisconsin Iola show.

According to the criminal complaint, Douglas W. Stener, 54, was observed at the show by dealer Michael Schiller, of Allouez, Wis., and Iola policeman Aaron Reineking, stealing paper money owned by dealer Don Fisher, of Currency Unlimited, Decatur, Ill. The complaint said Stener dropped notes into his lap as he examined a stack given him by Fisher. Stener then took several bills out of his pocket and showed them to Fisher, meanwhile transferring the bills from his lap to his jacket pocket. Stener was searched as he left the building, and 11 bills, valued at $6,545, were found on his person.

Fisher identified the bills as his and said he had no transactions with Stener. Schiller recognized Stener as a suspect in other thefts and pointed him out to police as Stener entered the building. Stener was charged May 20 in Waupaca County Circuit Court with one count of felony theft and released on a $10,000 signature bond, although Assistant District Attorney William Lennon had asked for a cash bond. "We were concerned about the amounts involved and the sophistication of his M.O.," Lennon said, "but the judge felt otherwise."

Lennon said information on the case has been forwarded to Rockford, Ill., and Sheboygan, Wis., police for their investigations into similar thefts that Stener is a suspect in.

Hey, Joe, Fred, etc.:
Please don't ask me where I first read this but "Bizonia" was a name used for the American and British zones of occupation of post-WW II Germany. I must admit that my only 'verification' for this, is that 'sometime' and 'somewhere' in my readings of the history of post-WW II Europe, I read such a definition. I know my credentials may be suspect however, Fred can vouch for my being pretty good about spotting WW II related material. Oh, and for an interesting read on Nazi PW experiences in the US, check out "Nazis in the Piney Woods" which is about PW's in Deep East Texas.

To the Gram:
In answer to Joe Boling's question about Bizonia: Bizonia was the name given to the British and US occupation zones in Germany which were merged for economic reasons on January 1, 1947. The administrative responsibility for running Bizonia was put in the hands of an elected economic council of fifty-two Germans who, under Allied supervision, shouldered the task of economic reconstruction. When the French joined the economic arrangement the name was changed to Trizonia.

EDITORIAL

Anything new and exciting happening out there in MPCLand lately? It has been very quiet here. We have a vacancy for the position of Index Manager. Ed Beaman chose to relinquish his post, so if any one would be interested in saving each issue of the Gram to both a print out and to disk, please contact either Doug or myself.

I also have an unusual request to anyone who can help me. I need a copy of the most recent CAA auction catalog ( The auction with the MPC specimen sets in it) I never received mine, and now find myself in need of a copy for reference purposes. Can anyone help?

Oral History Interview with BERNARD BERNSTEIN- Part VII

July 23, 1975

by Richard D. McKinzie

submitted by Fred Schwan [comments in brackets]

Very quickly we turned our principal attention to the German problems. General Eisenhower's SHAEF headquarters was established in Versailles and the military government division called G-5 occupied the reconverted grand stables of the Versailles Palace. We had begun our German planning when we were in England. In August, 1944 Secretary Morgenthau had come over to England. He came on a number of occasions into the war theatre for the President, not just as the Secretary of the Treasury but also as the President's representative. The President couldn't move about easily and Morgenthau's visits were one of the means whereby the President kept abreast of developments.

I was designated by Generals Eisenhower and Smith to go with General Holmes on General Eisenhower's train to Scotland to meet Secretary Morgenthau and his party. You can imagine what a comfortable trip that was. I had a chance to talk with the Secretary. I had breakfast alone with him that first morning on the train. We discussed the German planning that was going on at the time. Then later that day Secretary Morgenthau had lunch with General Eisenhower at General Eisenhower's headquarters. The Secretary had considerable discussion of what should be the German program with General Eisenhower.

Thereafter, Secretary Morgenthau, during the balance of his stay in England, discussed extensively with American and British officials what should be the Allied military government program for Germany. During those talks the matter of the SHAEF military government handbook came up for discussion. From the time of his trip to England, Secretary Morgenthau became deeply involved in the German program. He developed what was called the Morgenthau plan. The Morgenthau plan became a subject of great, great controversy.

MCKINZIE: Well, perhaps you would be good enough to talk a little bit about your relationship with Secretary Stimson at an earlier period here and then we'll come back to this.

BERNSTEIN: All right. There was one case that I worked on that had many interesting aspects. At the time of the civil war in Spain our government recognized the Republican Government in Spain as the legitimate government. The President and the Secretary of the Treasury decided to purchase some silver from the Republican Government of Spain and from the Bank of Spain that was acting as agent for and under the authority of the Republican Government of Spain.

As Assistant General Counsel I drafted the silver purchase agreements. We also learned that John Foster Dulles, a partner of Sullivan and Cromwell, was acting for the Franco side of the Bank of Spain and he was going to lead a legal fight against the Treasury's purchase of the silver. The first purchase of silver from Spain was bought by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York acting as the agent for the Treasury and the remaining purchases of silver were made by the U.S. Treasury directly from the Republican Government of Spain. Secretary Morgenthau discussed with the President the idea of retaining special counsel for the Federal Reserve Bank to represent it and the Government in connection with the lawsuit resulting from the purchases of the silver from Spain.

The man they decided to select to be the special counsel was Colonel Henry L. Stimson. Col. Stimson was deeply engaged in another massive litigation, relating I think to the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, and he was reluctant to take on the Spanish silver case. He was finally persuaded to do so. He and several of the partners and associates worked on the case. I had the privilege of working with them. A decision favorable to the Government was won both in the Federal District Court and in the Circuit Court of Appeals. I recall that after the argument in the District Court I was a little concerned as to the impact of Dulles' argument on the judge. As I was leaving the Courthouse in the company of Colonel Stimson and Allen Klotz, his partner, I mentioned my concern as to the impact of Dulles' argument, and suggested we might consider the filing of a further memorandum or brief in the case. Colonel Stimson looked at me and said in probably the strongest language he had used in a long time, "Why, we'll go back to my office and we'll roll up our sleeves and I'll go after that stinkadora."

As I say, the Government won the case in the Federal courts. The decisions in effect upheld the power of the Chief Executive to decide what Government legally represented a foreign country in any particular time. The decisions held that the acts of such legally recognized Government would not be questioned in an American court. There was one aspect after the conclusion of the case that left me a little troubled. Colonel Stimson had submitted a bill for $50,000 for the services of himself and his partners and associates covering work over a two year period. When the bill was presented by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York to the Stabilization Fund at the Treasury, the director of which fund was Merle Cochran, Cochran thought that the bill was very high. Merle Cochran is not a lawyer. All his mature life he had been in Government Foreign Service until he came to the Treasury. Probably he was just accustomed to the modest pay of Government officials and not to attorney's fees.

He impressed Secretary Morgenthau about the size of the fee. I found to my considerable surprise, at a conference in the Secretary's office, that the Secretary was opposed to paying such a fee. I pointed out that of all the people in the room, I was the only one who had been a lawyer with Wall Street experience. I then set forth in some detail the services that had been rendered by Colonel Stimson and his office in this case, the volume of work, the high quality of the work and the importance of the work. I stated that I felt confident that by all fair standards, Colonel Stimson's fee was reasonable and that his fee should be paid promptly. I still didn't seem to convince the Secretary. So I finally said, "Mr. Secretary, I think your honor is involved in this matter, and the honor of the President of the United States is involved. The fee should be paid and either you or the President ought to write Colonel Stimson a letter of appreciation." Secretary Morgenthau turned to Cochran and said, "Pay the fee." It wasn't long thereafter that President Roosevelt invited Colonel Henry Stimson to become a member of his Cabinet, as Secretary of War. Colonel Stimson was a tower of strength in his administration during World War II. I think on the fee matter I had rendered a public service.

MCKINZIE: There was a dramatic incident during the course of the movement, the physical movement of the silver from Spain to New York. I wonder if you would be good enough to relate the circumstances of that?

BERNSTEIN: Well, one shipment of silver came in around the 4th of July weekend. We had been told that Dulles had obtained an attachment order, which was going to be served by the Sheriff of New York in an effort to prevent the Treasury from getting the silver. A good part of Saturday evening I spent on the telephone talking to Colonel Stimson about the matter and considering what steps we should take to forestall Dulles' legal proceeding and to obtain the silver for the Treasury. At the end of the discussions I told Colonel Stimson I was taking the night train to New York and would appreciate his having an assistant of his meet me at the dock. believe the ship that brought the silver was at the dock of the U.S. Lines. When we got to the dock, we saw the stacks of silver. We had had wooden horses placed all around the silver, saying that this was the property of the U.S. Government. There were also on the dock many deputy sheriffs from the New York Sheriff's office. I carried on discussions with some officials of the U.S. Lines. I noticed that every time I would make a point one of the officials would leave the room and walk down the hall and come back in about five or more minutes and present me with a counter argument. I said, "Who is that you're talking to down the hall, a lawyer for your company?" And he said, "Yes." And I said, "Well, ask the lawyer to come down here. I'd like to talk to him face-to-face." The lawyer came in and just shortly after he arrived I again made the demand that we be allowed to take the silver off the piers on our trucks. The entrance of the pier was blocked by a huge steel door that was down to the floor. I asked the lawyer to have the steel door lifted so our trucks could move the silver.

The lawyer suggested to me that it would be all right as far as the U.S. Lines were concerned if I broke down that steel door. I had a quick thought of what that would look like in the next day's newspaper, and I told them we were going to do no such thing. "You're going to lift that door because otherwise you're interfering with the movement of Government property."

Apparently the argument worked, the steel door was lifted, the silver was moved to the Assay Office, and the next part of the case took place in the courtroom.

Dear Editor,
The information that Jim Downy found about the use of AMC and MPC in treaties/SOFAs is wonderful. Of course as many questions are raised as answered, but it is nonetheless great stuff. I particularly liked the language of the SOFA when referring to "generic" army issues: military payment scrip. This would include MPC and BAFSV. In Europe it would then include other issues as well. I liked it alot!

On page 284, it is broken down into 2 printings. That's correct, BUT, on page 220 he lists only (1) printing reported. It should "list" both first and second printings.

Guy Araby (date listed 04 APRIL 2002)

Page 287, Series 661 Series Summary, 25 cent note: the "list" shows "#CU as 10(7) . It should read, 8(7). As only 8 are known in CU. Just recount P.289.

Guy Araby (date listed 08 APRIL 2002)

Page 398, Series #541 $10 on "UNC." price is $2500, on P.214 the UNC. price is $3500. Also the rest of the prices don't match all the way to "VG" on this issue. They should be the same price.

FEATURED ARTICLE

SS Breda

by Brad Peacock

Recently I acquired a fragment of a large sheet of paper that when held to the light has a watermark "RESERVE BANK OF INDIA" with two numeral 5's and a portrait of King George VI. The seller stated that this was recovered from a shipwreck called the SS Breda. I've done alot of searching on the net for more information on this ship and came up with an interesting story. You can see the fragment at these two links:

<http://home.swbell.net/bp22/pics/breda1.JPG>
<http://home.swbell.net/bp22/pics/breda2.JPG>

On December 23, 1940, the S.S. Breda was sunk by German bombers off the coast of Scotland. The ship was on its way to India carrying among other things banknote paper to be used to print India 5 Rupee and 10 Rupee banknotes.

Built in 1921 for the Koninkl Nedrl, Stoomb, Maats NV the Royal Netherlands Steamship company, at the New Waterway Shipbuilding Co, near Rotterdam. The Breda was a cargo ship before being put under the control of the P&O shipping company for use in the war.

Whilst on route from London to Mombassa, Karachi and Bombay, she was sheltering in the Oban Roads off the west of Scotland. The cargo on board was varied and included 3000 tons of cement, 175 tons of tobacco and cigarettes, 3 Hawker biplanes, 30 De Havilland Moths, spare parts for the aircraft, rubber soled sandals, military lorry spares, NAAFI crockery, copper ingots, 9 dogs and 10 horses one of which was apparently a present from the king of Denmark to the Aga Khan..Throughout the war the Germans laid mines by attaching them on lines to the seabed. The Oban roads being some of the deepest waters around the British coast made it impossible for the Germans to lay mines in such depth.

On the December 23, 1940 a small group of Heinkel 111's took off from Nazi occupied Norway, bound for Oban and the convoy sheltering in the nearby waters. One of the planes chose the Breda as a target and dropped its four 55lb bombs, none of the bombs actually hit the Breda but they were close enough for the force of the blast to fracture the water inlet pipe. Tons of water started to flood into the engine room and within a few short minutes the ships electrics and all the steam had been killed.

Within 15 minutes captain Johannis Fooy ordered the life boats to be lowered and the crew made for the shore. An admiralty tug came alongside and realising that the Breda was going to sink very quickly the captain decided to try and run her aground onto a shallow shelf only 6 metres deep. After towing her for 2 hours the tug managed to get the Breda over the shelf and let the cable go. The horse's were let out into the water so they could swim ashore. At 2030Hrs captain Fooy having decided the ship was safe under the circumstances left the ship and went ashore. The next day, Christmas eve, the Admiralty were able to assess the situation, having decided the ship could be salvaged some of the cargo was taken off. During the removal of the cargo a storm blew up and forced the ship further inshore but off the 6 metre shelf into 30 metres of water where it remains to this day.

The ship was forgotten for many years even though at low water her funnel, bridges, masts and derricks were visible. In 1961 the Royal Navy swept her with a wire to a depth of 28 feet at the request of the Northern Lighthouse Board, so as not to be a hazard to shipping. In 1966 she was rediscovered by Edinburgh Sub Aqua Club.

Throughout the 60's and 70's the Breda was heavily salvaged and one of the most publicised removals was that of the propeller. The wreck itself sits upright on a sloping seabed with her bow pointing in to shore. The stern sits in 28 -30 metres of water with the deck level at 22 metres whilst her bow lies in 18 - 20 metres of water with deck levels ranging between 12 - 14 metres. Salvage work in and around the engine room have caused some damage and the superstructure no longer remains. The main points of interest are her 5 cargo holds which still hold much of the original cargo just waiting to be uncovered. In holds 2 and 3 are the remains of her cargo of aircraft. In hold 4 are sheets of Indian rupees. Scattered throughout the wreck are the remains of gas masks, shaving kits, tennis balls, toothbrushes, shoes, jars of olives and a wide range of bottles plenty of which remain full and intact.

There is plenty of life to be found in and around the wreck including wrasse, pollock, brittle stars, conger eels, saithe, dragonets, butterfly, leopard spotted goby fish, squat lobsters, plumose anemones, dead mens fingers, sunstars and peacock worm. The wreck is located in Ardmucknish Bay, Oban at position Lat 56 28 33.0 N Long 05 25 00.0 W and can be dived at any state of tide but it is best at high slack water. Due to large amounts of freshwater from Loch Etive working its way to the Breda via the Falls of Lora there is a Halocline for the first 2 - 3 metres during descent but this quickly disappears and leaves you to dive the Breda in an average visibility of 6 -10 metres.

Finally, and rather intriguing, the ship's crew were said to have had a pet monkey aboard and there were frequent monkey sightings in the hills around the bay after the Breda sank. In the '70s the remains of a monkey were found in the area, it had a silver bracelet around its neck inscribed "S.S. Breda".

You can see a pic of the ship here:

Thanks to Nicola Morgan at the Puffin Dive Centre ( nicola@puffin.org.uk ) on the waters edge at Port Gallanach, 1 ½ miles south of Oban on the Kerrera Sound coast road, Scotland, for permission in using most of this story.

MAIL CALL

Dear Gram

As can be imagined, I read Ski's article in Thursday's Gram with great interest. Lyn Knight's Memphis catalog contains many outstanding rarities and should be a quality reference for many years to come. There are a significant number of notes that had never previously been reported/had never been illustrated. Larry touched on the very important and excessively rare Cassa Mediterranea di Credito per L'Egitto issue. As he states, there is a denomination not in World War II Remembered. Needless to say, it was a great privilege to be able to work with this set. Do not overlook the Greek Specimen sets-these are very rare in this form. Also of particular note is the strong array of Foreign Trade Payment Certificates (listed under Japan), including the UNIQUE 5 Dollars! This is another area to take a close look at. The three Philippine essays are amazing. How many of you ever thought that any notes would be denominated in "and Dollars"? Simply put, these are great items. As Larry states, military notes are located throughout the catalog. Feel free to contact me if you have any questions.

Two serial numbers listed for the second printing of

Series 472 .50 cent notes. The first serial number listed is obviously in error as a nine digit number: C040351392C

Correct Serial Number is: C04035139C

Start Number is incorrect. It appears as:

Correct start number should be: D09408001D
PK6 (date listed: 03 APRIL 2002)

Page 220, #884/2r - Series 641 .50 Replacements
On page 284, it is broken down into 2 printings. That's correct, BUT, on page 220 he lists only (1) printing reported. It should "list" both first and second printings.
Guy Araby (date listed 04 APRIL 2002)

Page 287, Series 661 Series Summary, 25 cent note: the "list" shows "#CU as 10(7) . It should read, 8(7). As only 8 are known in CU. Just recount P.289.
Guy Araby (date listed 08 APRIL 2002)

Page 398, Series #541 $10 on "UNC." price is $2500, on P.214 the UNC. price is $3500. Also the rest of the prices don't match all the way to "VG" on this issue. They should be the same price.

FEATURED ARTICLE

39th Field Artillery Battalion Scrip

by Bill Murray, Memorial Day, 2002

A friend of mine, COL (Ret.) John Byrne, wrote an article, "Light Artillery in Pursuit in Sicily, 1943," for the 1998 July-August issue of Field Artillery Journal. It was an interesting article, which might properly have been applied in the recent events in Afghanistan. However, my reason for sending it to the MPC Gram has nothing to do with his points of the tactical employment of light artillery and the value of proper training.

Colonel Byrne, at the time of the action, commanded the 39th Field Artillery Battalion as a major. His article highlights in detail the two weeks training, at Brigadier General "Iron Mike" O'Daniel's Invasion Training Center in Algeria. Perhaps tedious to subordinates, that training paid off in the event. But my purpose for sending this to the Gram relates, as it must, to "the entire World of Military Numismatics."

I now quote from COL Byrne:

"After Palermo fell, the 39th FA reconstituted its batteries, opened the unit messes and prepared for a holiday. With "liberated" materials, the men constructed an oval carnival midway with ingenious rides and games. Mimeograph machines (How many of you remember the mimeograph?) printed "money" with a set amount per person. The ubiquitous service battery found an Italian ice cream shop, sterilized its equipment and produced ice cream from powdered milk. Each 39th artilleryman received a special piece of the mimeographed money entitling him to half a melon filled with ice cream. Needless to say, a great time was had by all."

Wouldn't I love to close this with, "... and John Byrne had a small amount of the 39th FA money, which he gave me."

Don't I wish!

MAIL CALL

Howdy, Fred and other Gramsters!

In the Handbook of Texas article labeled "German Prisoners of War," the statement is made that local farmers paid the US Gov for the prisoners' services at the prevailing wage per day at the time which was $1.50. Out of that money, the prisoner received 80 cents "...in canteen coupons..." and the balance was paid to the government to defray the cost of administering the PW program. Visit the link below for the full article on the German prisoners.

EDITORIAL

Brad Peacock sent me a link to an eBay auction today. Thinking it was of numismatic interest, I opened it, and to my amazement, it was an auction for a "ENIGMA" Cipher machine. I find this very interesting and coincidental if for no other reason, than to be offered around the date of June 6th. Who would of thought an item of this historical importance, (and rarity?) to have surfaced. You would think they (the machines) would all have been accounted for and either destroyed or presented to various museums. If you wish to see it, here is the link:

HOT CONTACT LIST - DEALER & RESOURCE LIST

Below is the BNR Press Hot Contact List. This list serves several functions. Obviously it is an outreach by the dealers listed for your business. Most of them buy and sell MPC. Others organize shows or publish periodicals, or furnish information dedicated to this field. They have supported the new Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates with their advertising.

They deserve your support and patronage!

MPC CATALOG CORRECTIONS & ENHANCEMENTS

Page 18, Bottom - Users of Military Payment Certificates

Check marks were omitted from production copies of books. Please check off the following:

Australia: 641, 661, 681, 692
Canada: 461 through and including 591
Korea: 641, 661, 681, 692
New Zealand: 641, 661, 681, 692
Thailand: 641, 661, 681, 692
United States: All

(date listed: 02 APRIL 2002)

Page 201, Bottom Right - Very last sentence on this page

Two serial numbers listed for the second printing of

Series 472 .50 cent notes. The first serial number listed is obviously in error as a nine digit number: C040351392C

Correct Serial Number is: C04035139C

D Freyzer (date listed 10 April 2002)

Page 207, #833/4 - Series 481 .25 4th Printing (table listing serial number breakdowns) line 5

Start Number is incorrect. It appears as:

(start) D14784001D (end) D14784000D

Correct start number should be: D09408001D

PK6 (date listed: 03 APRIL 2002)

Page 214, #855/r2 - Series 541 $1 Replacements,

Ending serial number is incorrect

Correct number is F1112000

(date listed: 02 APRIL 2002)

Page 220, #884/2r - Series 641 .50 Replacements

On page 284, it is broken down into 2 printings. That's correct, BUT, on page 220 he lists only (1) printing reported. It should "list" both first and second printings.

Guy Araby (date listed 04 APRIL 2002)

Page 287, Series 661 Series Summary, 25 cent note: the "list" shows "#CU as 10(7) . It should read, 8(7). As only 8 are known in CU. Just recount P.289.

Guy Araby (date listed 08 APRIL 2002)

Page 398, Series #541 $10 on "UNC." price is $2500, on P.214 the UNC. price is $3500. Also the rest of the prices don't match all the way to "VG" on this issue. They should be the same price.

FEATURED ARTICLE

Still More Odd and Ends, and a Different Ceylonese Fake

by Joseph Boling

Well, I am pleased to have two responses to my question about Bizonia (and even Trizonia). It's a term I never ran across, and sounds like something out of a Peter Sellers movie. Thanks, guys.

I also had a direct response about the ARC in Britain chits I wrote about last week, but not the key bit of information--which war? Here's what I got--If it is any help, Birkenhead [where the chits were printed] is across the river from Liverpool, a bit like Brooklyn to NY. Less than 20 miles away is Burtonwood which during the Berlin airlift was a major US base. It used to have the longest runway in Europe. Now closed and a motorway slap through the middle. Tom [Warburton]

I have been peripherally involved with Burtonwood twice in my career. During operation FRELOC (fast relocation), when we had to take everything out of France after they withdrew from NATO (maybe not officially, but practically), a lot of stuff from France went into Burtonwood (1967). Then, when I was in Germany again in 1976-79 (or maybe 89-92--I can't remember which tour), we were closing Burtonwood, and moving all that stuff again (I don't remember where it went). I was not aware of the significance of the strip there, nor of the Berlin Airlift connection.

In response to Joel Shafer's "shameless plug" of the Lyn Knight Memphis sale, the $5 FTPC catalog listing says "At one time, another was known but it was lost in the mail!" In fact, the one lost in the mail was a design set 2 note, serial # 104593, in green and salmon. The piece in the Knight sale is the first reported in design set 1. I don't know if the booklet that it came from had more than one $5 note in it; I have a record of only one $5 piece reported in that SN, and one $1, and a full page of each of the fractional denominations (of which a set is in the sale with the $1 note). It appears that a page of each denomination was saved--five each of the 5c and 10c, four each of the 25c and 50c, one each of the two high denominations. What is truly unusual about the Knight offering is that there are so many design set 2 fractionals; when SB was written, only the 50c piece was known in the minors (three of them). The Knight sale has at least one each of all three unreported denominations, plus the really weird one with the alphanumeric serial number. A great selection--I'm eager to see what they bring (now that I own not a single piece).

One more note about FTPCs--remember that the $1 and $5 design set 2 pieces can be distinguished from design set 3 only by the paper; I will be looking at all the ones offered in Memphis to see whether they conform to my previous observations about the paper used for design set 2.

In looking through my stacks of unaccessioned purchases for an interesting item to write about, I found a Ceylon 1 Jan 1942 50-cent pair - good and fake. Recall that back in February Ski and Trevor Wilkin talked about 25c and 50c specimens that they had acquired, which turned out to be modern fakes. I have a counterfeit of the 50c piece, along with a good one. The watermark in the original says CEYLON GOVERNMENT in a large oval, with smaller block letters across the center of the oval saying RESTRICTION (not "restricted," as Ski reported). Only half of the watermark appears on one note. The fake has no watermark at all. The original has a green AND YELLOW underprint of interlocking circles. SB does not mention the yellow, and it is invisible to the naked eye, but quite visible under an 8x glass (which is why I always use a glass when I am writing catalog descriptions--I'll blame the SB omission on Fred, or on the fact that it was written during my thirty- day sojourn at his place in 1993, when I was working without a desk lamp and probably did not have my pocket glass with me). Now, the SB description says the 50c colors are like the 25c; will someone please look at a 25c and see if it has the yellow underprint as well as the green one? Looking at the SB description again, it looks as if the "green tint" in the 25c description is actually referring to the major guilloche, and not to the fine underprint at all. Is there a separate underprint even on the 25c pieces? If so, what color(s)? My fake is not a modern piece; it is not an exact copy of the original typography, but a new setup using slightly different fonts and a different SN machine. And, it is true line art; there is no dot pattern in any portion of the design.

MAIL CALL

In response to yesterdays editorial:

<< Who would of thought an item of this historical importance, (and rarity?) to have surfaced. You would think they (the machines) would all have been accounted for and either destroyed or presented to various museums. >>

In fact, an Enigma machine offered in a recent auction had been stolen from a museum and was recovered when the sale was publicized. I don't remember the details, but I'd be leery of bidding on one, for the very reasons you gave.
Joe

* * * * *

You mentioned the auction of a German Enigma code machine in a recent MPCram. These have been offered several times over the years. They are not all that uncommon. It is my understanding that after the end of WWII the British sold such confiscated machines to several emerging African nations. The code-breaking techniques of WWII were still top secret, so the African nations were told that the machines were unbreakable and could be used with complete security. The British then commenced to read their mail for the next 10-20 years. Of course, that could all be just an old intelligence myth...
Herb

=====

EDITORIAL

Wow! Looks like I struck pay dirt mentioning the ENIGMA machine! Two letters about my statement in 24 hours... The other thing I failed to mention is the ENIGMA machine met the reserve and sold for $31,000. I'll have to run out and get one of each color... :o)

Seriously though, it's nice to see history of that caliber appreciated. We ourselves appreciate history by our interests in MPC & WW2 Military Currency.. I just can't imagine anyone paying $31,000 for a single MPC note although I'm sure there is some collector willing to prove me wrong.... But I bet I can think of a SET of notes worth that... MUCH more than that...

With Gram 661 coming up shortly, anyone care to express their opinion in what they think the complete Series 661 Progressive Proof set is worth? Just wondering what it means and how much it means and to whom. I'm sure Fred would like to have some input...

(date listed: 02 APRIL 2002)

Two serial numbers listed for the second printing of
Series 472 .50 cent notes. The first serial number listed is obviously in error as a nine digit number: C040351392C
Correct Serial Number is: C04035139C
D Freyser (date listed 10 April 2002)

Page 207, #833/4 - Series 481 .25 4th Printing (table listing serial number breakdowns) line 5
Start Number is incorrect. It appears as:
(start) D14784001D (end) D14784000D
Correct start number should be: D09408001D
PK6 (date listed: 03 APRIL 2002)

Page 214, #855/r2 - Series 541 $1 Replacements,
Ending serial number is incorrect
Correct number is F1112000
(date listed: 02 APRIL 2002)

Page 220, #884/2r - Series 641 .50 Replacements
On page 284, it is broken down into 2 printings. That's correct, BUT, on page 220 he lists only (1) printing reported. It should "list" both first and second printings.
Guy Araby (date listed 04 APRIL 2002)

Page 287, Series 661 Series Summary, 25 cent note: the "list" shows "#CU as 10(7) . It should read, 8(7). As only 8 are known in CU. Just recount P.289.
Guy Araby (date listed 08 APRIL 2002)

Page 398, Series #541 $10 on "UNC." price is $2500, on P.214 the UNC. price is $3500. Also the rest of the prices don't match all the way to "VG" on this issue. They should be the same price.
Guy Araby (date listed 08 APRIL 2002)

Ancient MPC

by David Klinger

Since the banner at the top of the GRAM says "Covering the entire World of Military Numismatics", I thought it would be appropriate to give some coverage to coinage, rather than keeping the GRAM exclusively a rag picker's journal.

There is an antecedent to modern era military payment money. I found it in the coinage of the ancient Romans. I have been corresponding with Richard Alston, (University of London), who has written widely on the life of the Roman Soldier. He told me that it is clear that the history of Roman coinage and military pay are very closely connected. The patterns of high minting of coins correlate neatly with the high levels of military activity and that it is clear that the army was the major item of expenditure in the Roman state budget. But, it is not always easy to determine for what audience particular coins were minted.

So now to the point, the Romans did mint coins specifically to meet the pay needs of their troops. Those coins can be properly called Military Payment Coins (MPC). Some who write about these coins call them "military issues". Others don't differentiate them at all from general issues. But, some of these MPC were unique types, not otherwise minted for general circulation - so they can be separated from the overall population of coins minted for general circulation. Of course, after they were used as pay to the troops, they did enter circulation along with other coins.

The earliest example of a Military Payment Coin (MPC) I found, is a Denarius from the Roman Republic, listed by Michael Crawford in Roman Republic Coinage, and various other sources:

Issuer: Gens ANNIA. Gaius Annius T. f. T. n. Luscus. Military issue in Spain circa 82-81 BC. AR Denarius.
Obverse: C.ANNIVS T.(F.T.N)PRO COS.EX.S.(C), Diademed head right of Anna Perenna wearing earring and necklace.
Reference: Crawford 366/1c; Babelon 4, Sydenham 748d

There were many and varied issues of MPC during the Roman Republic and Empire. Even some new denominations were created because of the influence of military pay on Roman coinage. For example, when Julius Caesar changed the basis of payment for troops so that pay could be represented in gold coin, we immediately get the first significant mintings of gold coin, though the soldiers were still normally paid in the far more useful silver. It was also during Roman times when the first "siege coins" appeared:

"During the fourth year (69/70 CE) of the five year heroic revolt against the Romans (known as The Jewish War), the first "siege coins" ever minted were struck by Jewish resisters in Jerusalem. Only they and the Zealots of Masada, under ben Yair, remained to fight by the time these coins were minted."

[Hendin, Guide to Biblical Coins, 3rd Ed., p. 165-179, 1996].

Most of the siege coins minted over the next two millennia were clearly Military Payment Coins (MPC). I'm sure all of you know about siege coins, so I won't say much more about them. (Of course there was also siege paper money, which I seem to remember Gene Hessler wrote about some years back.) The ANA has a "Money Talks" segment on siege coins (item1956, Apr 2000) available on their Web site at www.money.org.

On top of what I covered so far there is the obvious area of collecting coins with military related designs, something I have been doing for more than fifty years. It is thought that some of the Roman military coin designs such as those used by Hadrian were directed particularly towards the troops. [to maintain their loyalty?] I've just tried to point out here that "The Entire World of Military Numismatics", which this journal claims to cover, should include some coverage in the area of coinage, especially Military Payment Coins (MPC). Who knows, maybe someone may write a book on MPC.

MAIL CALL

Dear Editor,

Here is some more information about the use of MPC by UN forces during the Korean War.

"Payments to military personnel of United Nations Netherlands Battalion (NDVN)

In response to your e-mail of 30 April 2002, I am able to provide you with the following information. While on board the transport ship, personnel of the Netherlands Battalion of the United Nations received so-called 'ship money' of NLG 60 and GBP 3 for use in ports of call en route to Korea. In Korea, NDVN personnel received a portion of their salary in Military Payment Certificates or, when this was desired, partially in Korean won. The remainder of their salary was paid out in the Netherlands.

In consultations with the United States authorities, the 'day rate' was set at:

|                                                            |             |
|------------------------------------------------------------|-------------|
| field officer:                                             | USD $3.00; |
| captain                                                    | USD $2.25; |
| 1st lieutenant,                                            | USD $1.75; |
| 2nd lieutenant, cadet, sub-lieutenant and warrant officer, | USD $1.50; |
| sergeant major and sergeant                                | USD $1.25; |
| corporal and private                                       | USD $1.00. |

In addition, NDVN personnel were eligible for various allowances.

I trust that I have been able to inform you sufficiently. Yours truly, for Director Institute of Military History
W.C.M.Smit

Hello David,

Great research, good job!! I have an article pending on your question of the only living person on MPC (hint--there may be at least one other person).

SCHOLARSHIP DEPARTMENT

Finally it is Official! The review committee has made their decision and the recipients have all been notified. Before the names are revealed, we would like to thank everyone who supported this year's scholarship.

It is already time to be thinking about the 2003 Summer Seminar. Actually, I was not ready to think about it, however some anxious gramsters were. Would you believe that we have received the first donations for the 2003 fund. Yes I said donations with an "s". Last year Steve Feller was the first to make donations at the M2C2 meeting in Memphis. This year, even before Memphis, we have our first donations. The donations were made by Ed Hoffman and RA Medina. Both donations arrived in my mailbox on the same day, so you guys will have to share the honor of being the first donors for the 2003 fund. Thank you again!

EDITORIAL

Hello all in MPC Land.. Don't know what happened to yesterdays Gram, I must have sent it out without filling in date and issue number. I must have been tired, cause I don't even remember sending the Gram out period!

As from Marcus' letter above, we now have our first 2003 Scholarship Donors. Who's going to be next?

HOT CONTACT LIST - DEALER & RESOURCE LIST

Below is the BNR Press Hot Contact List. This list serves several functions. Obviously it is an outreach by the dealers listed for your business. Most of them buy and sell MPC. Others organize shows or publish periodicals, or furnish information dedicated to this field. They have supported the new Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates with their advertising.

Series 003 - Number 641      Thursday - 06 JUNE 2002

267 days to Fest IV

FEATURED ARTICLES

D-Day

by Larry Smulczenski

The allied invasion of Normandy was actually scheduled to begin the morning of 05 June 1944 some 58 years ago. However highwinds and rough seas forced a postponement of the plan known as Operation Overlord. Weather conditions were still not good on the night of 5 June, but weather reports indicated that the storm coming in from the Atlantic was moving faster than anticipated. Predictions were that conditions beginning late on 5 June and lasting through the next morning would be fair with a drop in wind velocity and some breaks in the clouds. The conditions were marginal at best. Eisenhower and his staff huddled to make the decision knowing full well that the American fleet had to be launched almost immediately. If a subsequent decision was made to abort after that, it would take the fleet two days to be ready to go again. That two day postponement would mean a change in tidal conditions which would not be right for an amphibious landing until June 19th--again with no assurance of good weather. Eisenhower made the decision and some 5000 ships headed for the French coast. Thus began one of the largest sea and air invasions of World War II, an event we know as D-Day the 6th of June.

Along with the troops went an issue of Allied Military Currency, which we call the Supplemental French Franc or the Flag back issue. These notes were printed well in advance by Forbes Lithograph Company, but had not been approved by the French Committee of National Liberation. General de Gaulle protested their use and called the series "counterfeit money". This series was put into use immediately after the landing and continued in use until it was withdrawn on the 15th of June 1945. At that time, the Provisional French franc or France back issue was substituted for the Flag back issue. The high values for the supplemental franc (500 and 1000 francs) are difficult to find and are expensive. The 5000 franc note was printed, but was not issued. It is believed to exist only in specimen form.

Forbes used an eight wheel numbering machine on these notes without a prefix or suffix letter, so that when the serial number got to 99,999.999 a block number was printed on the note. For these supplemental francs only the 2, 5 and 100 franc notes exceeded the 100 million printing quantity which resulted in their exhibiting the block "2" designation. The series was extensively counterfeited while in use. This counterfeiting problem may have resulted in limiting the number of high value notes in circulation. This in turn may be the reason for the scarcity of the high values mentioned above. The counterfeits are interesting and range from excellent forgeries to pretty poor examples that could only be passed in a dimly lit bar and then only to a drunken sailor. I have a 500 franc counterfeit whose colors are very washed out and the serial number is almost double the number of notes that were printed, but it still saw an excessive amount of circulation, if it's condition is any indication. But only a collector would recognize that the serial number is too high and most users would not recognize the color problem, unless they had two notes to compare to one another. Also very few World War II G.I.'s would be walking around with two 500 franc notes in their pockets.

Anyway, the next time you look at your Flag back French AMC, try to imagine that young soldier, sailor, airman or marine that might have held some of these notes after participating in Operation Overlord.

DID YOU KNOW?

That at the same time Operation Overlord was happening on the northern coast of France, American and British troops were occupying Rome. This was the first Axis capital to fall into Allied hands. The city was taken without a shot as the Germans had evacuated a couple of days earlier. So as French AMC was being introduced in France, Italian AMC was continuing its use up the Italian peninsula.

Where do I begin? I guess we all know why I'm authoring the Gram 641 article. Most of us know how much I like the vignette Nicole on the front of the Series 641 Fractionals. I liked it so much, I had commissioned art work by Sue Bauman, which was displayed at Fest II.
